THE HOLIDAY HABIT.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

There hangs before me, as I write, a 1928 calendar, with the sheet for January exposed. As is getting to be usual with really worthwhile calendars, this sheet not only contains the days for January in big black letters on a white ground, but also, at the bottom, two smaller calendars for the month preceding and month following, i. e. for Dec. 1927 and February, 1928. This enables the looker to take in a period of 91 days, without having to turn over the sheet or hunt back for a discarded last year's calendar. It is a convenience. So, also, is the scheme of printing the working days in black and the Sundays and holidays in red.

It is those red-printed days which are attracting my attention, just this minute.

There are the 13 Sundays in the three months, to begin with. Then there are four extra holidays, — the Monday following Christmas, the Monday following New Years, Lincoln's birthday and Washington's birthday. Instead of 13 days set apart for rest and recuperation, there are 17.

When I was a youth and being taught the principles of physiology it was impressed upon me that the idea of using one-seventh of the time for rest and renewal was, regardless of its divine sanction, physiologically the perfection of wisdom. I was taught that various experiments with differing rest intervals had demonstrated beyond a question that one day's rest in seven was just exactly what the physical system needed to keep it at its best. No more and no less.

It was shown that the ten-day substitute enforced during the French revolution had resulted badly in every way. It was similarly shown that the numerous "festas" and Saints' days, kept religiously by the Italian and Spanish populace and which called for almost a third of the working days, were a cause of emasculation and racial deterioration.

One-seventh of the time for rest was just right: one-tenth was not enough; one-third was too much. We were taught that, if the keeping of the seventh day had not been commanded on Sinai, it would still have been the duty of a wise government to enforce it, purely as a matter of economic good sense; as a conservator of human health and strength and a means of human welfare.

Yet those red-printed dates on the calendar, staring me in the face this morning, call for, not one day's rest in seven during the three months involved, but practically one day's rest in every five and a half.

The Sinaitic rule of old, corroborated by the teachings of modern physiologists, emphasized the wisdom of one day's rest in every seven. But the calendar for 1928 calls for one and shalf days' rest in every seven,—if the three months ratio before me holds good for the rest of the year.

Did you ever stop to reckon up the number of secular holidays now on the calendar? There's New Years to begin with, Lincoln's birthday, Washington's birthday, in several states Bunker Hill day, in many cities St. Patrick's day, Decoration day, Fouth of July, Labor day, Columbus day, Thanksgiving day and Christmas.—And I'll bet a cookie I've left some out, now! My memory isn't as good as it ought to be.

Now, I haven't one word to say against a single one of these holidays, the occasion which it marks or the memory it seeks to keep green.

But they do not begin to cover all the events and lives which are important to America. There is already talk of a Roosevelt day and, in certain quarters, of a Wilson day. Can you tell me why anybody should not be as anxious to celebrate Yorktown day, which marked revolutionary victory, as Bunker Hill day, which inaugurated the struggle? Or why Appomattox day, which re-cemented a divided Union and marked the end of the most gigantic civil war on record, isn't as worthy of celebration as Decoration day?

Or why we can't have a Jackson day and a Grant day and a Robert E. Lee day and a Dewey day, and a Fulton day for the inventor of the steamboat, and an Edison day for the inventor of the telephone, the phonograph, the electric light, etc., and a Wright day for the first aviators? There are, I believe, enthusiasts who hanker after having every one of those days also set apart, to say nothing of others.

Hardly a year passes but some "movement" is started by some well-meaning crank or cranks to add another to our list of holidays. Nor is there a single one which hasn't a real argument behind it.

The significant question is how far are we going along this holiday-making road before we stop? Just where are we going? And just where shall we be when we get there?

And the most ominous feature of the whole trend is the almost boyish willingness which hordes of people exhibit to take any day "off" which anybody offers them.

We've all heard the phrase about this "work-a-day" world. If things keep on as they're going it will eventually become a "play-day" world, with just enough working-days left to keep the holidays from running into each other.

"Well," I can imagine some one asking, "what would there be so bad about that?"

Ah, brother, such a question marks a conception of life which is unfortunate, to use the mildest term. At the same time, it marks a conception which is growingly prevalent.

Is the highest and noblest object of life to have "a good time?" Is "the pursuit of happiness" the supreme activity of life?

If so, then the world is diabolically unfitted for life. For no man who devoted himself solely to chasing "a good time" ever yet caught it. No man who deliberately made the "pursuit" of happiness" his only aim ever yet overtook it.

Worst of all, no man who purposely set out with either of these two objects in sole view, ever did the world or his fellows or himself any good. He lived and ate and drank, as I suppose a clam does in his oozy mud-bed, and amounted to just about as much. Nobody has ever yet exalted a mud-inhabiting clam into an exemplar for human imitation. On the contrary, a popular slang phrase bids you "Don't be a clam."

Yet, if you'll stop and give your think-stuff a chance to work, you can hardly avoid the conclusion that the clam existence, with nothing much to do except wait for the tides to float something eatable your way, is really the ideal which a great many people seem to hold. Their thought apparently is not, "How good work can I do and how much of it?" but "How little and how poor work can I do and get away with it?"

There are still, thank God, men who put their duty and the opportunities for service ahead of everything else. There are still men who are more interested in turning out a good job than in watching the time-clock. There are still men who care more for their reputation as experts and artists than for the contents of their pay envelopes. There are still men who would rather work "for the future in the distance and the good that they can do," than for their own selfish enjoyment of the passing moment.

I haven't the slightest doubt that "human nature," so-called, has always been inclined to thriftlessness and shiftlessness and sheer laziness. But, in the old days, merely getting a living was so strenuous and difficult a task that they had to overcome these inclinations, in a measure, merely to exist. Now that the getting an existence is easier, the traits are showing more markedly on the surface.

This hankering after more and still more holidays is just one symptom of the disease.

Of all the ostensibly civilized nations, Spain, Italy and Mexico have been the most backward,—the nearest stagnation. One strongly acting cause for this backwardness has been their innumerable succession of fete days and saints day on which no one must work. Whatever we may think of Mussolini, we must admit that his dictatorial order abolishing the whole list except Sundays has been one of the most effective agents in promoting the late surprising recrudescence of his country. All Italy is working, again, and,—here is something for the easy-going, happiness-hunting shallowpates to reflect upon, — travellers report that Italy seems to be happier than it ever was before.

Happiness, in itself, is not the chief aim of any sound life. It comes to many, not as the payment of a deliberate striving for it, but as the incidental result of work well done, of opportunities properly utilized, of selfishness and greed kept in check.

Work is the doing something we don't especially want to do for the attainment of some ulterior purpose; Play is the doing something we most emphatically want to do, just for the fun of it. One is usually quite as hard as the other. Neither one is an end in itself, but simply a means to a more desirable end than either.

And that more desirable end is vastly more likely to be attained through work than through loafing.

There used to be a sort of rhyme which ran something like this:

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy;
All play and no work makes Jack a mere shirk."

As a matter of fact, to make a grammatical paradigm of it:

I don't like to work;
You don't like to work;
He doesn't like to work;
We don't any of us like to work, etc.

But we all have to work, just the same. If not at one thing then at another,

And the wisest man is he who magnifies and exalts and exults in his task, doing it to the limit of his strength and his ability, mastering it, instead of being mastered by it.

He is also much the more apt to find happiness unveiling her beauty to him than he who slurs his work to chase after that elusive hoyden.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

Springlike weather is not at all inconveniencing the local contractors and much work that was expected to be held up by the cold weather has been done. Cement work and brick laying that is usually hampered by the cold has gone merrily on and buildings are really ahead of the contract dates. During the first week of the new year there were three building permits issued by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. The permits call for an expenditure of approximately $7700 as estimated by the owners. The last single permit is for the house to be erected for James L. Young on Palmer avenue. This house will be one of six rooms and bath.

To P. F. Sweeney to alter present building at 167 West Main street for Abraham Jacobson. The present front will be removed and a new plate glass front installed. The owner's estimate of cost is $648.

To P. F. Sweeney to alter the present building at 374 North Main street for Lorenzo Rinella. The work will include the removal of the present front on north end of the building and make over into two stores. There will be new plate glass fronts installed. The owner's estimate of cost is $1500.

To George W. Allen of Versailles to erect a frame house on Palmer avenue for James L. Young. The house will be two stories high and will have stone and concrete foundation. The house will be six rooms and bath with a garage in the basement. The exterior will be finished in clapboards with a composition shingle roof. The owner's estimate of cost is $5500.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were three sales of real estate as compared to 12 sales during the corresponding week in 1927. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $24,200 and $36,560.

The sales of real estate in New London during the past week numbered four, one less than during the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $31,950 and $20,216.

Building Permits.

In the closing week of 1927 the totals of building permits issued in the Connecticut building centers were larger, in the aggregate, than in the corresponding week of the preceding year. There were 167 permits issued during the week, calling for construction work estimated to cost $594,453. In the like period of the preceding year the total of permits issued was 114.

New London.

Prospects of increased building activities in 1928 look promising for New London as they do for the entire state. The past year has witnessed a tremendous readjustment of all business and unless there is an unforeseen break in general there is every reason to believe that following this adjustment, which has placed all business on a firmer basis, business in general will be carried on in a profitable and conservative manner.

Locally, the business situation at the opening of the year is good, considering the season of the year. The usual slump which occurs in the building industry during December and January is hardly to be felt in New London and at present there is considerable new construction work under way.

The year 1928 may prove to be one of utmost importance for New London with the present prospects of the city becoming the western terminus of the biggest and most up-to-date trans-Atlantic steamship service ever proposed. Should this project go through and New London be selected as the western port the building aspect of the city will be changed overnight.

Work will be started next week on extensive alterations to the Crocker house annex. The section of the building occupied by the Southern New England Telephone Co. at the Union and Golden street corner, will be abandoned by that company with the inauguration of the dial system and work will start at once on the conversion of the former telephone company space into office space to be occupied by the accounting department of the Connecticut Power Co which already occupies a part of the annex but which needs expansion. During the alterations the accounting department of the power company will be temporarily transferred to the Plant building.

Bids are being received for alterations to the structure at 103 Federal street owned by Howard E. Beckwith. The alterations will provide two five-room apartments and one three-room apartment. There will be a new third story porch and stairway, a new stairway in the rear, new hardwood floors, plumbing, heating and electrical work.

A new show room being erected in Montauk avenue for W. M. Meek, has been enclosed. The structure, which is of brick construction with steel supports and trusses, is 36 by 72 feet, arranged for a show room in front and joining the old garage in the rear. The brick sidewalls have been completed.

J. S. Scripellit, et ux, cement store, Hempstead street, $1,000.

Barney Belgrade, garage, 419 Montauk avenue, $300.

Theodore Bodenwine, bungalow, Norwood avenue, $7,000.

Total number of permits issued for the week, 4; estimated cost of building, $2,100.

Noank.

Eugene MacDonald of Noank has been awarded the contract for the erection of a residence for Mrs. F. M. Bird at Groton Long Point. The proposed house will be of Colonial design, 28 by 48 feet, and will contain nine rooms and three baths. There will be a hot water heater installation and all modern conveniences including the latest designs in electrical and plumbing fixtures. The sub-contract for the heating has been awarded. A garage and chauffeur's quarters, 20 by 40 feet, also will be erected on the property in the rear of the residence.

Westerly.

Continued cold weather for the first of the past week has tended to put a stop to active outdoor construction work in Westerly. But on the end of the week milder weather prevailed with the result that on Saturday much progress was made in pouring the cement on the roof of the addition to the Westerly Memorial and Public Library building on Broad street. At the new Chester business block on Railroad avenue the first wooden floor has now been laid over the basement part of the new business structure. Front brick piers for the support of the street side of the two-story building have been started. The metal lathing at the Morrone and Castagna block on Canal street has been completed on the first floor and awaits the plasterer.

During the first week in January Westerly Zoning Inspector Louis J. Rossi and Westerly Building Inspector Thomas Wills have issued but one permit as follows:

Jan. 6, Mrs. Lena M. Hiscox, 8 Spruce street. Reshingle roof of cottage at 8 1-2 Spruce street with slate coated shingles. Nu Art Tile Roofing company, Norwich, contractors.

There are several permits pending which have not met with all the requirements of the zoning and building codes. Among these is a permit which was passed upon by a special town council meeting which directed the R. A. Sherman Sons company, building contractors, to make assurance that in the alterations by them to the property of Abraham Liebovitz on High street, the structure would be properly strengthened, where a visit by some of the councilmen had shown a structural weakness.

BOZRAH

Rev. George H. Strouse preached an able sermon Sunday morning from the text "We spend our years as a tale that is told." There was a large congregation. Mrs. A. J. Bailey and Mrs. H. B. Wightman were heard in pleasing solos.

The church meeting and roll call is to be held at the church Thursday evening. Supper will be served at 6.30.

Miss Mildred Grandy, who teaches in Baltic, is boarding there through the winter months.

C. B. Davis, master of Bozrah grange, is attending the sessions of the Connecticut State grange at Hartford Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Gilman of Bozrahville took the sixth degree Tuesday evening.

Tangible evidence as the magnitude of the smoke problem has been gathered by weighing the annual fall of soot in several large cities. Speckles the Starling is Brought to Trial

Judge not until you know all facts
Pertaining to the prisoner's acts.
—Old Mother Nature.

The trouble with most judgments is that they are based, not on all the facts, but on only a few of the facts. You know how it is that a boy or girl can do something naughty and still not be a bad child. And a bad boy or girl can do a nice deed and still not be a good child. Nobody is good all the time and very few are bad all the time. So, in judging others, we should remember these things.

Speckles the Starling had been disliked ever since he had been in the Old Orchard to live. He and Mrs. Speckles had been outcasts among the other feathered folk. Nobody wanted anything to do with them or would have anything to do with them. They were gossiped about by all the other feathered folk. My, my, how they were gossiped about!

Tommy Tit the Chickadee was the only one who stood up for them. He didn't really stand up for them. What he did stand up for was for fair play. Tommy is a very wise little bird. Everybody loves him. He is cheery and good-natured and happy all day long. It was Tommy who suggested that perhaps they didn't know all they ought to know about Speckles the Starling. He was laughed at and made fun of. But he insisted that he was right. He insisted so persistently that finally it was decided to put Speckles on trial. Yes, sir, it was decided to put Speckles on trial. That is, it was agreed to do so, provided Speckles would go on trial, or provided they could make him go on trial.

When the idea was first suggested to Speckles he refused promptly and he got quite peeved about it. Yes, sir, he got quite peeved about it. He said that what he and Mrs. Speckles did was no business of their neighbors. He said he could attend to his own affairs, and he invited his neighbors to attend to theirs. Speckles got very indignant indeed.

So then it was decided that Speckles must be made to stand trial. Sammy Jay agreed to bring him to trial. Blacky the Crow said he would act as judge. All the other feathered folk agreed that they would tell what they knew about Speckles and his ways. That is, all agreed to this excepting Tommy Tit the Chickadee. So it was agreed that Sammy should at once go about bringing Speckles to trial in the Old Orchard.

Now this is the way that Sammy went about it. He waited until Speckles was over in the Old Orchard. Then he picked a quarrel with Speckles. You know, Sammy delights to pick quarrels with other people, and Speckles is just like him in this respect. So there was no trouble at all in picking a quarrel. Now, you know what a quarrel leads to, or is very likely to lead to. It is very likely to lead to a fight. That is just what happened this time. In no time at all Sammy Jay and Speckles were fighting. It was a good fight while it lasted. Speckles is no coward. He fought and he fought hard.

Meanwhile Sammy Jay was screaming at the top of his lungs, "Thief! Thief! Thief! Fight! Fight! Fight!" That brought everybody within sound of his voice, just as he knew it would.

Pretty soon all the little feathered folks gathered about the two fighters.

Pretty soon all the little feathered folk were gathered about the two fighters. Sammy was a little bit the bigger and a little bit the stronger. After a while Speckles was so tired out that he just couldn't fight any more, nor could he fly away. Then Sammy Jay stopped fighting.

"Now," said Sammy, as he tried to smooth out his rumpled feathers, "We'll have a trial." He turned on Speckles fiercely. "If you are wise," said he, "you'll answer the questions and answer them fully."

STOCK PRICES TURNED UPWARD IN RESPONSE TO FAVORABLE TRADE NEWS

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—(AP)—Stock prices drifted rather aimlessly in the early part of today's session and then turned upward in response to favorable trade news. This included the prediction of President Sloan of the General Motors corporation that first quarter sales and profits would break all records, and a further pick-up in steel mill operations, now reported to be around 75 per cent of capacity.

The recovery which ran from 1 to 6 points in a number of issues, and even higher in a few specialties, was by no means general as final quotations disclosed a number of 1 to 2 point declines. Trading showed a marked reduction in volume, reflecting the waiting attitude on the part of many professional operators, the transactions running just over 2,100,000 shares.

There was no change in the credit situation, call money being in plentiful supply all day at the renewal figure of 4 per cent. The New York Federal Reserve bank announced no change in the 3 1-2 per cent rediscount rate. The weekly report of brokers' loans, issued after the close of the market, showed an increase of $9,550,000, compared with a week ago, setting another new high record at $3,819,573,000.

General Motors, which has been rather sluggish for the past fortnight on selling inspired by the belief that recent automobile price cuts would impair the corporation's earnings, turned sharply upward on President Sloan's statement, closing nearly 3 points higher at 133 7-8. Hudson, Hupp, Studebaker and Yellow Truck preferred also advanced a point or two, but the other motor changes were largely fractional.

Despite the better trade news U. S. Steel common appeared to meet strong selling resistance on the way up, closing only fractionally higher at 147 5-8. Independent steels were quiet, but firm. Oils displayed a fairly firm undertone, but attempts to stage bullish demonstrations in those issues made little headway. Houston developed special strength.

High priced specialties again moved with considerable violence. Midland Steel Products preferred rallied from 251 to 263 and eased to 261, up 10 points net. Christie Brown ran up 11 points to 115, closing within a point of the top. Greene Cananea Copper closed 5 points net higher at 140 after touching 143 1-2. Brooklyn Edison, Brooklyn Union Gas, National Surety, Purity Baking B and Warren Bros. closed 5 to 7 1-4 points higher.

With the poor 1927 Armour report out of the way, packing shares again attracted a good following. Corn Products, Liggett & Myers B, Oppenheim Collins, The Pillsbury Flour issues, and some of the tobacco stocks were heavy. Heaviness of the St. Paul issues featured the rail shares, most of which improved fractionally.

There was no change in time money and commercial paper rates.

Commodity markets were mixed. Wheat futures were slightly reactionary, but corn advanced a cent or more a bushel. Cotton moved up about $1 a bale in the face of further mill curtailments in New England. Coffee and sugar prices held steady.

Except for a 35-point jump in Japanese yen to 46.88 cents, there was little interest in the mixed foreign exchange market. Sterling cables were firm around $4.87 13-16.

New England Industries

RADIO EQUIPMENT.

The radio industry in New England is as young and exuberant as might be expected from the flourishing condition of the industry as a whole, according to a survey conducted by the United States department of commerce and the New England council. One serious problem, however, is not yet solved—the development of supplementary products to fill in slack periods. The variation between maximum and minimum periods of employment was 150 percent in 1923 and 240 percent in 1925. Here are some of the comments received from New England manufacturers of radio apparatus, supplies, and parts:

"We are working toward the development of supplementary products, but these are at present in an uncompleted stage."

"We are producing auto accessories and engineering power station apparatus as supplementary products."

"We are badly in need of additional items in demand throughout the year."

"Developments in radio have been so rapid as to require entire attention. Supplementary lines will have to be developed later."

The average plant in this group has been in operation for nine years. Average annual sales amount to $450,000 with individual plants selling from $60,000 to over $1,000,000. Changes in management during the last seven years have been made by one-third of the companies, and the average period under present management is seven years for the group. Branch plants are not generally in use, but one company established one on account of tremendous increase in sales.

Radio Equipment.

Most of the companies reporting in this survey are selling a major portion of their products outside of New England, and the average ratio of sales in New England to total sales is 38 percent. The following figures show the New England sales increases since 1921:

1922	10 percent
1923	68 percent
1924	120 percent
1925	160 percent

In marketing this product practically every company is using a brand or trademark, the average of all products thus sold being 79 percent of the whole. The method of distribution most widely used is through the wholesaler or jobber.

The chief raw materials are brass, iron and steel, most of these being purchased in New England. Copper wire comes mostly from the middle west. Incentive methods of wage payment are in use by about half the companies reporting, and 29 percent of all employes in the industry are so paid. Improvements have been mostly in organization and executive control, elimination of cancellations and curtailment of returns, production control, an dcelations with workers.

WESTMINSTER

Pupils of Westminster Hill school perfect in attendance for December are: Harry Helstrom, Violet Helstrom, Robert Joselyn, Manfred Moody, Edward Newton, Irene Raitala, Sulo Raitala, Addie Robbins, Annie and Lena Vitiaz.

A community tree and social time was held the Friday before the holiday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Davis of Raymond district. All had an enjoyable time 37 being present.

Mrs. T. C. Douglas is improving in health and is able to be about the place.

Oscar Olsen and his bride were recent guests at the home of his father, Longview.

Wm. Prescott Gurley, who has recently been keeping his cows and pair of horses in the barn rented of Ben Davies, sold his cows and is making Plainfield his headquarters after teaming during the time of the construction of the new road.

Mrs. Chas. Robbins has the sympathy of friends in the recent death of her oldest daughter.

Mrs. Allen Moody was in Washington, R. I., lately, for several days.

Buell Union, Canterbury's W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. T. Edward Davies at 2 p. m. Thursday, Jan. 12th.

Jan. 8 the Christmas of the Russian church was observed with customary festivities by a number of families in this vicinity.

Ellsworth Barrett of Massachusetts and Mrs. Geo. Couch of Brooklyn recently visited their mother, Mrs. Chas. Robbins.

Friends rejoiced to know of the complete recovery of Lydia, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, after her recent serious illness.

Mrs. Geo. Mooney, wife of the head teamster who provided five fine pair of horses for work on the new road, left Saturday evening with her grandson, Charles Oakes to join her husband, now employed in Providence. They had lived over a year in a shack built for them by Contractor Amos Bridge's sons on the Huling-Linnell land. Their two pet Shetland ponies and household goods preceded them by auto truck.

State Inspector Joe Diffley returned after Christmas to supervise work done by the state with local help, closing his work here Saturday, January 7th.

Mrs. Albert Greene of Danielson, for many years with her husband active members of Westminster church and still deeply caring for it, wrote of their Christmas in a note received last week. "We were made very happy by the gathering of all our children but the second son who lives in Indiana. The last we heard he had a sick son—it must have been impossible for him to get away. It is seldom so many of a large family can gather at one time. It is truly wonderful that we should live together 62 years and over and have our circle unbroken and at this time have all our children here but one."

Last Sunday's text was Prov. 1:10, a talk for children, How, When and to Whom, to say "No."

HANOVER

At the home of Mrs. Webster Standish Saturday afternoon a very pleasing reception was given Mrs. Reginald Rose and daughter, Shirley Jean, of Petersboro New Hampshire, Mrs. Rose (Miss Minnie Lord) was formerly postmistress at Hanover post office.

Under the Cross and Crown system adopted in the church school of the Congregational church, Miss Elizabeth Adams is the second one to be awarded the pin for perfect attendance during the entire year. Miss Jessie Still received the same reward a number of weeks ago.

The trustees of Hanover Congregational Church, Inc., held their annual meeting Tuesday evening. The church held its annual meeting in the main audience room Wednesday evening, immediately following a supper served to a goodly number in the parish house. After the roll call and prayer by the pastor, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, the officers of the church and its allied organizations submitted their reports. All of the various societies showed themselves to have done excellent work during the past year, and handled more money a good proportion of which has been expended elsewhere, some even going to the uttermost parts of the world to assist in establishing and maintaining hospitals, schools, churches and industrial institutions calculated to aid in the improvement of living conditions of the children of men. New dishes have been supplied for the parish house; the interior of the church has been painted and redecorated, and a steam heater installed to take the place of the hot air one formerly used, the visible parts of the chimneys built against the west wall, and the sheds in the rear being no longer needed, have been removed. The election of officers shows the personnel, with few exceptions, to be the same as during 1927. Printed reports are to be ready for circulation in about two weeks.

The children and the Daughters of the Covenant met at the parsonage on Friday afternoon and evening respectively. The choir rehearsal is to be held Sunday morning at ten o'clock. There will be the usual preaching service by the pastor at 10.45, and the session of the church school at 12 o'clock.

Under the auspices of the Endeavor society the next in the series of community services will be held in the parish house at 7 o'clock. The speaker will be Miss Lucy A. Abbott, superintendant of the W. W. Backus hospital, Norwich who will talk to the assemblage and answer questions pertaining to the care of health in the homes. The address is open to the public.

LIBERTY HILL

C. E. Goodrich is doing jury duty in the superior court in Norwich for th January term.

The Liberty Hill church Sunday school held its annual business meeting Sunday. The following officers were elected: Superintendent, John Clark; assistant, E. E. Caples; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Horace Foote; pianist, Mrs. H. V. Oehlers; librarian, Mrs. J. George Clark.

The Liberty Hill Men's club met in the church rooms Monday evening. J. Choquette and Earl Hoxie furnished lunch.

Mr. and Mrs. I. Colt Harris and son, Donald, and Mr. Harri's father, Albert Harris, and Mrs. Delaney, all of New London, came Saturday afternoon and made a short visit with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. J. George Clark.

There have been two seasons of freezing and thawing the past three weeks, which has made the roads very difficult for travel. After a hard freeze and getting the ruts smooth, a thaw made deep mud.

Mrs. Ruth Haddad, wife of Kalil Haddad, died Wednesday, Jan. 4th. The funeral was held Friday afternoon at one o'clock in the Exeter Liberty Hill church. The services were conducted by Rev. L. L. Harris, pastor of the church and a former pastor, Rev. W. S. Woolworth, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Joseph Haddad pronounced a eulogy. Burial was in Lebanon South cemetery. The bearers were William Haddad, Shaheen Haddad, Salim Haddad and Nicholas Haddad. Many relatives were present. Among the beautiful flowers were carnations from the church and a floral remembrance from the Men's club. Mrs. Haddad was a member of the Exeter and Liberty Hill church and a devoted Christian. She leaves her mother, her husband, a daughter and five sons, also two brothers. The mother and one brother live in Ohio and one in Coventry. Mrs. Haddad was a very devoted wife and mother and beloved by all who knew her.

METHODIST PASTOR'S RETURN REQUESTED AT CONFERENCE

The fourth quarterly conference of the Methodist curch was held in the vestry Wednesday evening at 7:30. Rev. Myron E. Genter, of Norwich, the district superintendent, presided. The pastor gave his report which revealed a steady progress in all departments of the church work. The contributions to World service and Woman's Foreign missionary work were especially gratifying and showed a marked increase.

The death of Mrs. George H. Thornton was commented upon by the pastor, and a permanent record of it was made upon the roll. Lester Gardner was transferred to Westminster, Conn., and Mrs. Mabel Winroth was transferred from Lafayette, N. J., to this church. Mrs. M. H. Bartlett and R. W. Robertson were confirmed as presidents of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society and Sunday school respectively. George H. Thornton, James McCluggage and Henry Davis were approved as trustees. Mrs. A. C. Burdick gave a fine report of the Sunday school activities for the year. She also read the excellent report of the W. F. M. S.

Frank Mell gave a detailed statement of the benevolences. Mrs. L. D. Howe read a good report of the Gardner class and George H. Thornton reviewed the Men's class program. The two local preachers, Christine E. Burdick and David Carter, sent in reports of their work during the year. They were passed in character and their licenses were renewed by the district superintendent. Everett Thornton was elected lay delegate to the annual conference and Harold Mell reserve delegate. Previous to the business meeting, Rev. M. E. Genter spoke on The Cripple at the Temple Gate. It was unanimous judgment of the meeting that Rev. J. W. Carter, the present pastor, remain for a fifth year as their leader. The following officers and committees were elected:

The Woman's Missionary society of the Congregational church held a most enjoyable meeting Thursday afternoon at the parsonage. Mrs. F. E. Robinson, the president, presided. The form of conducting the meeting was somewhat reversed. It was opened with the Lord's Prayer. The business followed, the annual reports of the secretary and treasurer being read. Besides raising money for the apportionment, barrels of clothing have been sent to Atlanta, Ga., and the Tougaloo school. A box of Christmas toys and games was sent to Brelven hospital, in South Carolina. A letter of acknowledgment was read, which was so very appreciative that it was an incentive to keep up the good work. Mrs. G. H. Jennings, the nominating committee, reported for re-election: Mrs. F. E. Robinson, president; Miss S. K. Adams, vice president; Miss Helen Hull, treasurer, and Mrs. C. D. Wolf, secretary. These officers were unanimously elected. The scripture was read by the president, Mrs. G. F. Godenough reading a response for each verse. It was announced that several missionaries were present, who would tell of their different phases of work. Miss M. A. Burdick spoke for the emigrants, Mrs. G. H. Jenning for work on the frontier, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox the situation in lumber camps of the northwest, Mrs. J. H. Whalley of the southern mountaineers and Mrs. C. D. Wolf of work in the slums. Mrs. E. A. Faust then gave the charge to these missionaries by which their work should be guided. Miss Adams gave very informative sketches from the study book, The Adventure of the Church. The pastor spoke of the new church envelopes for this year, the duplex form making it possible to help raise the apportionment. Mrs. Goodenough, assisted by the pastor and her daughter, Priscilla, served delicious home-made bread and peanut butter sandwiches, ginger wafers, cake and tea. The prospects are very bright for a prosperous year in this line of church work, new plans being suggested, and much enthusiasm expressed.

On the Jewett City alleys Wednesday evening, an enthusiastic gallery cheered the winners in the contest between the All-Stars and the Speed Maidens, the latter winning by a margin of an even 50 points. High single, Miss Doris Couture, 91; high total, Miss Beatrice Lepage, 267. Score:

PENALTIES IN TWO LIQUOR CASES OUT OF FOUR TRIED AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—Four continued cases of violation of the liquor law were given a hearing in the police court this morning. In two instances fines of $200 and costs were imposed on counts of actual sale and keeping with intent to sell, for the accused pleaded guilty. They were Frank LaFemina, 44 Smith street, whose place of business has been a source of continual complaint by officers at the United States Coast Guard academy, principally because their sailors were supplied with liquor by LaFemina, and Joseph Poretta, 47 Summer street. Mrs. Poretta was one of 11 arrested earlier in the week when the police staged the raids and was held in bail of $1,000 for trial today, but when the case was presented her husband was substituted on the complaint and he pleaded guilty. Nicholas Stamiton, proprietor of the pool room at 324 Bank street, requested a continuance until tomorrow, when, it is understood, he will plead guilty and will be fined the same as the others have been. The other case was that of Mrs. Fridora Castagna, wife of the proprietor of the so-called Crown restaurant, 101 North Bank street. She pleaded not guilty and fought the case, but after evidence of two stool pigeons, Frank Weeks and Morris Utash, members of the United States Coast Guard, Judge Victor Prince found the woman guilty and imposed a fine of $200 and costs on each count. Weeks and Utash testified to having gone to the restaurant and obtained drinks, but were not supplied with bottle of liquor. They said they asked for Scotch whiskey and were provided with liquor, but they did not know whether it was the brand they asked for. They did say, however, that they purchased these drinks and that if they were provided any more they would have been "knocked out" because of the alcoholic strength of the drinks. They also said that they considered themselves thorough Americans and belonging as they do to a branch of the federal service whose duty it was to enforce the prohibition law, they deemed it their duty to procure evidence against the sellers of liquor. Some of the liquor furnished the sailors was made possible by a chief petty officer, who introduced the pair to the proprietors of at least two places, because the former had known the sailors a long time and believed that they would not perform stool pigeon work. Wicks, on the witness stand, testified that before enlisting in the coast guard he had been employed by the state police of New York state.

Several other cases will be given hearings tomorrow and Saturday. It is believed that Saturday an additional case will be presented, for a young man known to have sold liquor to the sailors, has been missing from the city since, but it is expected that he will return here by Saturday and be fined.

Mrs. Allen Nelson and infant son, of Groton; Charles Steyer, 37 Glenwood avenue and Mrs. Henry Marquardt, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Emily West, of Hartford, has sold a house and lot, corner of Frost street and Connecticut avenue, to Ursula Lo-Gioci.

Rose Zimmer has sold a house and lot on Federal street to Israel Goldstein.

Alton T. Miner has sold to Elmer H. and Annie Kennerson a building lot on Park avenue.

Miss Alice T. Farrell, of Ocean avenue, daughter of the late Thomas and Hannah Farrell, died last night at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where she had been a patient about six weeks, death resulting from a complication of diseases. She is survived by a brother, John T. Farrell, a letter carrier and by two sisters, Mrs. John T. Hooper, of Ocean avenue and Mrs. James H. Nolan, of Williams street. Miss Farrell was born in New London and had always resided here.

Horace Beebe, 75, of New London, where he resided at 14 Lee avenue, died this morning at Norwich State hospital. Mr. Beebe, who had been a patient at the hospital since last March, is survived by a son, Edgar N. Beebe, of this city. Mr. Beebe was born at Greenport, N. Y., but had resided in New London many years.

GIRL ON LEAVING WORK RUNS INTO MONTVILLE CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—Miss Anna McCaughey, 19, of 40 Reed street, employed at the New England Collapsible Tube company, Waller street, was painfully injured this afternoon when she ran against an automobile driven by William J. Smiddy, Jr., of Montville. She is at the Lena hospital suffering from a fractured skull. Her condition is said to be critical and it will not be determined for several days whether she will recover. The girl, accompanied by her sister, was one of the first of the young women to leave the plant to start for lunch. When the two girls reached the sidewalk, Anna started to run across the street as the automobile was approaching. Smiddy observed the girl running toward the auto and as she continued to run she kept looking backward after her sister. Before Smiddy could stop the machine the girl ran against the rear fender, causing her to be thrown forward with such force that she was knocked down and rendered unconscious. Smiddy stopped the car and with employes of the factory went to the form of the unconscious girl, who already had suffered hemorrhages. She was rushed to the hospital where emergency treatment was administered. Late this afternoon the girl displayed signs of partial return of consciousness. Smiddy was not arrested as his father, who is a justice of the peace at Montville, came to New London and assured the police that his son would be available at any time that he might be wanted to be questioned by the police or by Coroner J. J. Desmond.

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 12—A memorial service to be held at the First Church of Christ Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock will be participated in by many of the clergymen of this city. It will commemorate the crew of the S-4 sunk by the Coast Guard destroyer Paulding three weeks ago off Provincetown. The very large attendance at the funeral of Arthur Hodges led to a conference of ministers after the ceremony, when a committee was appointed to arrange for the memorial service Sunday. The Coast Guard will send a detail of cadets and the Coast Guard band, and the submarine base will be represented by a detail from that branch of the service. Old Zion has held some very large congregations, but it is doubtful whether it ever held as many as will want to attend the Memorial service.

When the weather permits open windows on the 12th of January, as it did today people here are in the enjoyment of temperature as is rare indeed in the middle of winter. In many residences and in the hotels windows were open today for ventilation and airing and in appearance indicated spring.

Two or more men of this city are on the way to the state hospital for inebriates, unless they decide to get on the water wagon. Their families will, it is said, complain against them, that they may be treated for the habit they have acquired.

The Bronstein building at Pearl and Union streets has gone into history, for it has been demolished to the foundation, the city council having condemned it as a fire menace, on recommendation of the building inspector. It was a large frame structure that formerly was the residence of four families. But it was allowed to deteriorate until tenants would not occupy it. Recently every pane of glass in the twenty or more windows was broken out. The property in recent years has not even yielded what would pay the taxes.

It is understood that Simon Ewald will resign the presidency of the New London Building and Loan association at the next meeting of the directors and that he will be succeeded by Ludwig Mann, a hustling business representative of New London.

District Deputy John R. Edgarton of Willimantic with his suite visited New London lodge of Elks this evening. The meeting for business was held in Union Masonic lodge room, because the lodge room of the Elks is undergoing alterations and redecorating. Deputy Edgarton found the New London lodge in a prosperous condition and growing numerically. At the close of the business session the members adjourned to the Elks' home, Washington street, where there was an entertainment and where a feast was served. The entertainment proved one of the most enjoyable of the season.

M. C. Morley, 314 Jefferson avenue, reported to the police tonight that his little daughter was missing from home. She was described as being 5 years old, wore a blue coat and blue bonnet. While the police were searching for the child, an automobile patrol officer found the girl at the corner of Lincoln and Jefferson avenues and returned her to her parents.

William W. Whitcomb, 14 Wightman street, was ordered to present himself in the police court tomorow morning by Sergeant Samuel Hick and answer a charge of driving an automobile without having an operator's license.

An automobile, owned by John W. Kramer, of East Lyme, was stolen tonight and the New London police, as well as the state police, of Groton barracks, have been requested to be on the lookout for the car. It is an Overland sedan, 1926 model, painted black and blue and carries Connecticut registration, N-4531. The auto was stolen while Kramer parked it in Waterbury this afternoon.

The city is increasing the efficiency of its fire fighting equipment for today new fire hydrants were set up on State street, in the heart of the city's business district. Hydrants with increased power were installed on State street, corner of Green street and at the corner of State and Main streets. The new hydrants will provide a much increased water pressure, which would be needed in the event of a serious fire. This type of hydrant will be installed in other parts of the city as soon as workmen of the water department can perform the task.

"RINSO is the safest and easiest way to wash clothes I ever heard of! I pity women who still use the old way.

"Why, all you do is soak your clothes in the rich, creamy Rinso suds for a while, and all the ground-in dirt loosens right out so you don't have to do any hard rubbing.

"Just soaking gets my wash whiter than if I had spent hours scrubbing and boiling it. My clothes last longer, too!

"I find that Rinso goes farther than other soaps. That's because it's so sudsy. And it saves my hands—doesn't make them a bit red, because they're not in the hot suds at all."

...Millions use Rinso. Thousands write us letters like this one, which is from a woman living right around here...

Rich, creamy suds—in washer or tub

In hard water or soft—suds instantly! Soft, thick, long-lasting suds that dirt just can't resist. You never saw such suds!

More than 32,000 demonstrators of washing machines use Rinso for whiter results. The makers of 32 leading washers recommend it for safety.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Strand Theatre

In "The Reckless Mollycoddle" starring Richard Holt, there is nothing left to the imagination. Every foot of it is laughs and action. Mary Beth Milford as the beautiful heroine leaves nothing to be desired in the way of dash and screen personality. One of the outstanding characters of the story is Gerry O'Dell in a dual role as Gordon Randall, man about town, and the Gray Shadow, a much wanted and notorious crook. The story is fast running and finishes with a hair raising climax.

Breed Theatre

"Hard-Boiled Haggerty," Milton Sills' latest starring picture, which will have a showing today and Saturday at the Breed theatre, is particularly notable for the fact that it contains not only a powerful characterization for the star, but unusually strong and effective ones for many other story characters.

Molly O'Day plays opposite the star in the role of a French girl of mystery, with whom Haggerty falls in love. Much comedy, and a burden of tense drama as well as the romantic side of the picture falls upon this new, very capable and attractive little actress.

Arthur Stone, army "buddy" of the fighting flier hero, is both clown and dramatic figure, and Mitchell Lewis as an air service major has a big dramatic part as human and powerful, as his "Poleon Doret" of "The Barrier," or his famous stage role of "Captain Flagg" in "What Price Glory."

George Fawcett ap[illegible] in one of the strongest and mo[illegible] only human characterizations of his screen career, and Yola d'Avril, French dancing girl "find" of First National Pictures, producers of "Hard-Boiled Haggerty," has a splendid part as the cafe dancer.

Palace Theatre

"Open Range" the latest of the Paramount-Zane Grey picturizations, will be shown at the Palace theatre today and tomorrow. Betty Bronson, Lane Chandler and Fred Kohler are featured in a cast that includes Bernard Siegel, Guy Oliver, Al St. John, Jim Corey, George Connors, and Flash, the Wonder Horse.

Miss Bronson, making her initial appearance in a western, appears as the belle of Marco, a tiny frontier town. Chandler, a new cowboy "find" is a happy-go-lucky puncher who makes up his mind to marry the girl who has posed as "Miss Marco" on the silver anniversary poster. However, Fred Kohler, the half-breed villain, has other ideas on the subject and needless to say he does everything in his power to prevent Chandler from accomplishing his purpose.

As is usual, fast riding, sharp shooting, virile romance and gorgeous scenery are said to feature this Zane Grey story.

Broadway Theatre

Rose's 25 Royal Midgets will be the feature attraction at the Broadway theatre here, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. These tiny men and women have all been imported to this country after completing sensational runs in London, Paris and Berlin. They are all foreign born, coming from Germany, Italy, Prussia, Poland, Austria, Java, Spain and Mexico. They offer a complete hours stage production with a carload of scenic and lighting effects entirely in the English language.

Among this nationally famous troupe of tiny men and women are Lilliputians of rare ability. Singers, dancers, musicians, acrobats, jugglers and unusually clever entertainers. They come here following a record breaking engagement in New London and Middletown. The only American born midget in the company is Ivan (Dixie) Turner, the only colored midget in the world. He was born in Wheeling, W. Va., and gives as his share of the show a masterful impersonation of Eddie Leonard. Kurt and Freidel, the two cutest midgets in the world are a positive sensation with their entertaining dialogue, songs and dances. Another star of the production as offered by Rose's Midgets is Pepi, the smallest midget on the stage in the world. Prince Pani is also with the company as the midget with the greatest personality in the universe.

The meeting was opened with a hymn and scripture lesson after which the clerk, Allan Bogle read the report of the last meeting. Various reports were made covering the activities of the different parish societies, and all were accepted as read. The report of the treasurer, George N. Albert J. Aberg and George H. Young were elected as members of the standing committee. After adjournment there was a social hour and refreshments of fancy cake and coffee were served by the members of the board of management of the Ladies Benevolent society, of which Mrs. Clarence J. MERCHANTS DISCUSS BUSINESS METHODS FOR NORWICH STORES

The first of the "better business" conferences was held at the office of the Norwich chamber of commerce Thursday evening and resulted in a lively discussion regarding the retail problems of Norwich and the past and future work of the merchants' bureau. John P. Lyston and Clifford E. Wilson, who called the meeting, opened the discussion and supplied information on behalf of inquirers who showed a keen interest in the activities of the merchants organization.

The competition of surrounding cities was presented as a definite factor with which Norwich must contend. Recent experience, principally during the Christmas season, had shown several merchants that other cities within trading distance of Norwich were inducing trade to go there through an unusual extension of credit, returned car fares and other methods. It was shown that this was one of the reasons for the present campaign of the merchants bureau. The working funds of the bureau are primarily designed to advertise Norwich abroad. No arbitrary methods such as returned car fares had been used in recent years. The bureau has endeavored to bring trade to the city and then it was up to each merchant to induce customers to share their patronage by a visit to his store.

The work of the credit bureau came up for frequent discussion. Every merchant present who is in the habit of granting credit showed a keen interest in the new plan which will allow merchants of the bureau to use the services of the credit bureau without further charge, the sole condition being that they will exchange credit accounts with the other members of the credit bureau.

Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce gave a very clear description of the work of the credit bureau and the steps taken whereby absolute secrecy is maintained. Each member of the bureau is given a number. Each credit account is listed on a master card. On that master card are listed numbers only. These are the secret numbers of the members of the bureau with whom the customer has had an account.

A member calls up about "William Jones." He does not give his own name, merely saying he is merchant number "73." The confidential employe of the bureau looks on the card of "William Jones" and finds there that "Jones" has had credit dealings with merchants "30," "67" and "102." She calls up these three members, learns their latest experience with the customer and calls back merchant number "79" telling him that one store reports "William Jones" as having an account of $150 seven months old; the second store has an account for $50, unpaid for 30 days; a third store reports $15 paid toward a $45 bill, two months old. From this information merchant "79" makes his own decision as to the wisdom of granting credit to Jones. The whole process is designed to maintain the relations of the members as confidential, with maximum service.

Another important fact brought out in the discussion was the high rates of fire insurance in Norwich as compared to those in New London and other cities. It was shown that the fire loss in New London was three times as large as that experienced in Norwich but the fire insurance rate for Norwich was three times as large as the rate in New London. It was felt that the time has come for an investigation and a clear cut presentation of the reasons for this condition. Norwich, it was felt, deserved a better rate, more favorable to its merchants. Everything had been done here to provide a fire department second to none. Norwich is proud of its department and in view of the remarkably small losses should command a more favorable rating, it was brought out.

Two more conferences will be held at the chamber offices Friday night at 7:30 o'clock. The meetings are for merchants, irrespective of their present membership in the merchants' bureau. They are designed to be a clearing house for suggested activities in 1928 of direct benefit to merchants and helpful in creating more and better business here.

LIONS DECLARE FOR TAX EQUALIZATION HERE

There was the usual large attendance at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Norwich Lions club Thursday noon at the Wauregan hotel. President William R. Frisbie presided and Earl E. Taggart was the song leader. The meeting opened with the singing of America, after which President Frisbie read the following communication to the club:

Lions Club, Norwich:

My dear Mr. Frisbie; We want to thank you for the latest pleasure you have given, you and all the members of the club, to the children of the county home. It is all appreciated by yours sincerely, and other members of the management of the home.

MARTHA H. C. MITCHELL,

It was proposed that at each meeting of the club a five minute talk, on a subject of interest to Norwich, be given by a member of the club. The plan was unanimously adopted.

J. B. Caron spoke of the retail merchants' campaign, pointing out how it will materially assist in making Norwich the best shopping center in this section. Max Hanover seconded Mr. Caron's plea for cooperation in the campaign and then spoke of the need of immediate equalization of taxes in Norwich. C. E. Carpenter also spoke of the need of tax equalization as did other members of the club. President Frisbie spoke of the unjustness in the present method in assessing property. He said it was impossible for the present assessors to do more than they are doing and that outside help should be retained to make a just and adequate assessment. The club went on record as favoring the immediate enforcement of tax equalization in Norwich. The meeting closed in the usual form.

Frost in Florida

In a letter to a Norwich correspondent a friend in Floida wrote this week that they had frost at Eustis on Jan. 2 and 3, which took all the poinsettia and hybiscus flowers. The leaves died but the plants were not injured. In some localities oranges and grape fruit were frosted but the trees were not injured.

NORWICH TOWN

The meeting of New London County Home and Farm bureau, scheduled to be held Thursday, has been postponed to the following Thursday, January 19th. The hostess is to be Mrs. William H. Whitman, of West Town street. Mrs. Belle H. J. Robynson, of Gales Ferry, is to give the demonstration on that date on hooked-in rugs. All interested, whether members or not, are expected to come prepared with material to work on, hook, etc.

"A Sketch of Paul's Life," as depicted in The Book of Acts, beginning with the 13th chapter, formed the basis of Rev. Albert E. Whitten's sermon, at the First Methodist church, Sunday morning.

Theodore Sterry of Norwich Town was an honorary bearer at the funeral of a friend in New London Wednesday.

After spending some time on Scotland road, Mr. and Mrs. Willard P. Haugh are now occupying their newly built home on Canterbury turnpike.

Shailor-Bonney

Of local interest was a recent wedding in New Haven when under an arch of fir trees and poinsettias, Miss Eva Irene Bonney became the bride of William Albert Shailor, Friday evening, Dec. 30, 1927, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Eva H. Bonney, 1240 Whitney avenue, Whitneyville. Rev. P. E. Mathias, pastor of Whitneyville Congregational church performed the ceremony. Miss Gladys Bonney, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Herbert Andrews of Annapolis, cousin of the bridegroom, was best man. The bride wore pussywillow crepe trimmed with shadow lace and her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms. She carried roses. The maid of honor wore shell pink crepe romaine and carried pink roses. A reception followed, after which Mr. and Mrs. Shailor left for a wedding trip. Upon their return they will reside in Whitneyville.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR HANOVER CONGREGATIONALISTS

The annual meeting and roll-call of the Hanover Congregational church on Wednesday evening, opened with a supper served by the Ladies' guild at 6:30 o'clock in the parish house. The tables were very pretty with individual bouquets of red geraniums and maidenhair ferns. The social hour and the delicious supper always increase the spirit of fellowship, which is so desirable.

At 8 o'clock the company adjourned to the church where the roll-call of membership and the annual reports of all organizations connected with the church were given. Following the singing of a hymn the roll was called by the clerk and responses were given showing the faith of the members in the practical, friendly way of living, which was so attractive in the Christ.

The reports of all the organizations showed that 1927 had been a good year in the Hanover church. During the year the church building has been redecorated, the pulpit furniture recovered and a new steam heater installed at an expense of $1,500. In all of this extra expense the Ladies guild has shared liberally and to them the trustees give their hearty thanks. At the parish house the Men's club have provided for the care and use of the building and the Ladies' guild has supplied a complete set of new dishes for thirteen tables. The educational work of the church through the church school and the young people's organizations has aimed to keep a high and progressive standard. With open minds and loyal hearts they have endeavored to know more of the truth and to live in the light of its freedom as a community.

Through the church, the Woman's Missionary society, Christian Endeavor, Daughters of the Covenant, Story Hour and the church school have shared in the work of making better citizens all over the world. Through cooperation in handwork, gifts of money, study and prayer they have worked with the missionary agencies in churches, schools, hospitals and kindergartens to plant the seeds of friendship in this country, in this town and in places of need across the seas.

Following the report of the nominating committee and the election of officers the meeting closed with the hymn, "Blest Be the Tie" and benediction by the minister, Rev. Dwight C. Stone.

SCHOOL BOYS DELIVERED 368,400 TELEPHONE DIRECTORIES

Connecticut school boys have been found by the Southern New England Telephone company to be efficient and intelligent workers in the distribution of directories. This year, the time for the distribution of the Connecticut telephone books came within the Christmas vacation period of the schools of the state. Subscribers have been given the best obtainable service, and at the same time a considerable number of school boys have been enabled to earn eagerly welcomed spending money.

A total of 368,400 Connecticut telephone directories were delivered by school boys, under the supervision of men in the regular employ of the Southern New England Telephone Co., during the latter half of the Christmas vacation period. This year, 26,915 more directories were distributed in Connecticut than last year, an indication of the steadily increasing use of telephone service by Connecticut people.

To manufacture the telephone directories for use in the Connecticut winter issue of 1927-28, a mass of white paper weighing 180 tons was used. About 32,400 pounds of cover paper and 3,800 pounds of printers' ink were used in the making up of directories. In all the directories of Connecticut, a total of 1,066 pages were needed to contain the 216,942 listings entered. There are 9,851 more listings in Connecticut directories this year than last. Fifty-two more pages than were used in the winter issue last year were used in the winter issue this year.

CIVIL SERVICE WRECKING DRY ENFORCEMENT ARMY

Of 2,000 Men on the Government Payroll 1,500 "Flunked" in the Recent Examinations—75 Per Cent of the Federal Agents, Inspectors and Supervisors Failed to Qualify in the Written Tests—Commissioner Doran May Petition For a Re-Examination of All His Men Who Failed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The path cut in the ranks of prohibition agents by the civil service commission became more apparent today with the announcement that 1,500 of the 2,000 men on the government payroll had "flunked" in the recent examinations and were apt to lose their jobs.

More specific than in the past as to the extent the havoc wrought by civil service requirements, Prohibition Commissioner Doran disclosed that 75 per cent of the feleral agents, inspectors and supervisors had failed to qualify on the written tests. If something is not done to give the flunkers another chance, he said, the government's enforcement machine will be in a bad way.

Doran, who previously had revealed that many of his men, including some he regards most highly, had failed to come up to civil service requirements, reiterated that he was making every effort to give those who had failed another chance. He again sharply criticized the form of the examinations, declaring that he would have been unable to answer some of the questions himself.

Pending word from the civil service commission whether it would re-examine the flunkers Doran took steps to prevent their discharge from the service by telegraphing all prohibition administrators to make no permanent appointments for the present. He then went into conference with members of the civil service commission to appeal in person for a re-examination for all of his men who failed.

A clean sweep of the prohibition force in Carolina territory would result from the civil service commission examinations, Doran has explained, for of 30 agents now stationed there only one passed the examinations and he was not rated by his superiors as being a highly efficient officer.

In New York 50 per cent of agents in service failed. In Philadelphia where the same percentage of failurs obtained, Doran said that one of the unsuccessful government agents was a graduate of the University of Iowa and a former United States marshal.

In arguing with the civil service commission, the prohibition Commissioner Doran said he had pointed out that it would be literally impossible to replace so great a percentage of his force from among the aspirants to the service from the outside. Though about 4,000 such individuals seeking places have passed the examination, he asserted that their qualities, for the most part, did not appear to be very good.

In Detroit, Mr. Doran continued, an attempt to make temporary appointments from a group of 200 aspirants who passed the examination resulted in the selection of about four or five men as competent.

The prohibition commissioner declared that he intended to continue his contest in every way against the effect of the civil service program.

HOUSE PASSED $272,000,000 APPROPRIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Friday the 13th was no deterring influence on congress today, either in the way of getting things statred, or finishing them up.

The house ground out another appropriation bill—that of the interior department, calling for $272,000,000, most of which will go for pensions. The senate almost finished its talk on the tariff, which has been in progress for several days, and fixed Monday at 3 p. m. for a vote.

Coincident with this action, the tariff fight begun by Senator McMaster, of South Dakota, one of the western independent republicans, spread over to the house side, where Representative Dickinson, a republican, from Iowa, prepared to go after higher tariff rates on agricultural imports on behalf of the farmer.

Dickinson, incidentally, will have the support of Representative "Jack" Garner, the Texas democrat—up to a certain point. Garner wants to talk tariff, but he promised only to help in getting the subject before the house after which the democrats will make no guarantees.

While the house was going about in its machine-like way of passing the interior bill today, the senate droned along with the tariff.

JURY TAMPERING FIGURES IN HILL MURDER TRIAL

OTTAWA, Ill., Jan. 13—(AP)—Accusations of jury tampering and spectacular clashes between counsel lifted the Harry Hill murder trial from the realm of humdrum jury selection today.

At the opening of court Russell O. Hanson, state's attorney, electrified the court room by a demand that Judge Joe A. Davis discharge the eleven men remaining of the third special venire because one of them had remarked to others that money was in sight for satisfactory jury service.

The eleven finally were discharged, but not until Hanson, a flashing, blonde young man, had a series of wordy set-tos with Lee O'Neil Browne, grey haired veteran of the Illinois legislature.

The accused venireman was Carl Kratz of Peru, a salesman out of employment. Two veniremen told Hanson that Kratz had asserted the case was a good one "to be in on" that $1,000 or $2,000 might be forthcoming, and that he did not believe young Hill had killed his mother, the crime of which he is accused.

WORKING TO BROADCAST SIGHT AS WELL AS SOUND

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Jan. 13.—(AP)—The magic wand of science, passing over the factory of the General Electric company here today, disclosed to a small group of radio engineers, scientists and newspapermen a vision of the future of radio broadcasting—a future designed to bring to broadcast fans the sight as well as the sound of the radio performers.

Sitting in chairs in their Schenectady homes, miles from the company's broadcasting studio, the visitors were enable to both hear and see the studio, the visitors were enable to both hear and see the studio program. "Simple twists of the dials on the home television sets" brought to these men the minute reproduction of the characters who appeared before the microphone, even to the curl of cigarette smoke from their lips and the blinking of their eyes. The sound of their voices was heard in the usual way through a loud speaker supplementing the visual apparatus.

SALVAGE WORK ON SUB RETARDED BY WEATHER

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Divers today completed the work of drilling a hole into the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 preparatory to attaching an air line for forcing water out of the compartment.

Unfavorable weather interfered with the salvage work and it was not until afternoon that the divers were able to go down to the wreck. Six divers, working in three relays of two men each, carried on the work outside the the hull.

Besides drilling an inch hole in the torpedo compartment by means of a compressed air drill, the divers also took down underwater torches with which they burned away obstructions preparatory to burning a hole in the hull for an exhaust valve.

WILSON GRANTED TIME IN CONTEST AGAINST VARE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The senate elections committee today granted the request of William B. Wilson, defeated democratic candidate in the 1926 Pennsylvania senatorial election, that he be given until Monday to file a bill of particulars in his contest against William S. Vare, his republican opponent, who has been denied the oath of office at the senate because of expenditures in his primary campaign.

Vare was given until the following Saturday to file an answer. Until this procedure has been affected, the committee will hold any further action in abeyance, even including the counting of ballots in the contested districts.

Wilson appeared with counsel before the committee in executive session but Vare was not present, being represented by counsel.

Chairman Reed of the senate campaign funds investigating committee expects to call a meeting tomorrow to decide when the committee's report on the refusal of Senator-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois, to submit to the jurisdiction of the committee will be played before the senate.

The report has already been drafted and although not made public, it is understood that a decision on what further action is to be taken is left to the judgment of the senate as a whole.

SEARCHING FOR SLAYER OF DOROTHY SCHNEIDER

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 13.—(AP)—With the slayer of 5 year old Dorothy Schneider still at large, the search for her assailant tonight spread like a network over Michigan and border states. The unidentified man who kidnaped the child, drove her to a lonely spot, killed her and mutilated the body was sought by the entire law enforcement body of the state, assisted by citizens posses.

The reaction of citizens of Mount Morris, near here, scene of the crime, tonight was that of fear that the man still is in the neighborhood. Children were closely guarded on orders of Chief of Police Scavarda in charge of the investigation.

A number of suspects were taken into custody today but in most instances were released after questioning.

HOUSTON ELATED OVER DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 13—(AP)—With all Texas sharing Houston's elation in bringing the democratic national convention to the "lone star" state, political circles were actively set to buzzing today with pre-convention plans and actions.

Actual arrangements for facilitating the visiting delegates largely were held in abeyance pending the return from Washington of Jesse H. Jones, wealthy Houston publisher.

The idea seemed to prevail that the man who nonchalantly laid a certified check for $200,000 before the national committee yesterday for Houston's reception of the convention, ought to be consulted before any concrete plans are laid. Two democratic leaders suggested a movement to make him the party's vice presidential candidate.

MARINES CONCENTRATING TO CUT OFF SANDINO

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 13.—(AP)—While American marine planes have been steadily bombing the Sandino rebel forces near Quailali, marine infantry detachments are concentrating in the eastern part of the state of Neuva Segovia to cut off Sandino from the Coco river in case he should attempt to escape.

Colonel Mason Gulick, commanding the American forces in Nicaragua, said today that he would continue his policy of bombing the rebels with planes rather than have marine patrols run the chance of being ambushed.

KILLED WHEN DYNAMITE EXPLODED IN HIS HAND

ASHLAND, Ky., Jan. 13—(AP)—The Rev. A. P. Caudill of Westwood was instantly killed late today when a stick of dynamite exploded in his hand.

Neighbors said he had been using dynamite to remove stumps on property where he expected to build a house and set a charge of dynamite and went to luncheon. The charge failed to explode and when he returned he picked it up to see what was wrong.

Severe Electrical Storm in Winsted

WINSTED, Jan. 13—(AP)—Residents here were unpleasantly reminded of the fact that tonight was Friday, the 13th, by the sudden advent of an unseasonable electrical storm which ragged out of the northwest.

The storm was accompanied by heavy rain, vivid lightning, and sharp thunder. It swung into the eastward and headed toward Hartford. No damage was reported.

BETTY LANSIEDEL WAS STRANGLED TO DEATH

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Letters pieced together from torn bits recovered from a waste basket in her lavishly furnished apartment indicated, the police said tonight, that Betty Lansiedel, 25, contemplated killing herself, a task saved her by an unknown man who last night beat and choked her to death.

A coroner's jury today determined that the young woman was strangled, but did not determine whether she died from a strand of electric light wire bound tightly about her neck or from the many yards of adhesive tape bound around her head. Her mouth and nose were covered.

The coroner's inquest also disclosed that the girl possessed only five pennies in cash and a one dollar savings account, although she died amid luxury.

In the fashionable apartment hotel in which she lived, Miss Lansiedel was known as Mrs. Betty Chambers. She took the apartment Dec. 18 last, registering as Miss H. Chambers. A few days later she introduced a dapper young man as her husband, calling him Gordon Chambers.

SPELLACY ON DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE ON ARRANGEMENTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Recovering slowly from the surprise of the selection of Houston as the next convention city and the strain of the seven and a half hours' Jackson day dinner, democratic leaders moved today to carry out the mandate of the national committee.

A committee of 21 was named to arrange for the convention, among them four of the outstanding supporters of Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York; Hague, of New Jersey, Brennan, of Illinois, and Spellacy, of Connecticut.

This committee immediately named various sub-committees to look after the manifold details of a great national party gathering for the selection of a presidential nominee and the writing of a platform upon which he will go to the country and ask for election.

Another early move was the appointment of George F. Mara, of New York, as executive assistant to Chairman Shaver. He arranged for both the 1920 and 1924 conventions and will proceed immediately to Houston to survey the ground and begin the task of transforming the small city auditorium there into a political convention hall with its peculiar characteristics.

TO URGE ARBITRATION FOR STEEL INDUSTRY

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Charles M. Schwab, president of the American Iron and Steel institute, speaking before the Lawyers' club today, declared he would attempt to have the institute adopt a resolution embodying the principle of commercial arbitration throughout the steel industry.

He explained that by this plan disputes arising in the trade would be settled before an arbitration board instead of being carried to the court.

Mr. Schwab was guest of honor at luncheon tendered by U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tutle, under the auspices of the American Arbitration association.

Throughout his life, Mr. Schwab explained, he has gone on the theory that the customer is always right and that questions should be settled amicably rather than by taking them to the courts. He described how, among his workers, he had established a system to settle disputes and, when a matter is beyond settlement, to arbitrate.

Of 12,000 cases of disputes, he said, there has not even been a suggestion of arbitration because all of them have been settled in a spirit of harmony and friendship.

Physicians and employes worked three hours in a futile attempt to revive him. Birmingham leaves a widow and six children.

Hunger, Cold and Leaking Fuel Tanks

Troubles Chamberlin is Experiencing in Attempt at Endurance Flight.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 13—(AP)—Clarence Chamberlin trans-Atlantic flier, and Roger Q. Williams, late today were battling against hunger, cold, leaking fuel tanks, sickness and unfavorable weather in their determination to establish a new world's record for duration flying.

Their struggle to wrest the present record of 52 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds from Germany entailed remaining aloft until after 2.34 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. They left the ground here at 10.12 a. m. yesterday.

From the moment of their take-off, the luck that attended Chamberlain's flight to Germany, deserted them. Chamberlin revealed in a pencil-written "tale of woe" dropped from the plane today they discovered an oil leak shortly after commencing their grueling grind in the air above the Long Island flying fields.

During the night, a gasoline tank also sprung a leak and the poisonous ethyl-gasoline ruined most of their supply of food. The coffee in their Thermos bottles was so "terrible", that it made them sick.

Their cockpit windows and the fuselage of the plane was spattered with oil and the dials of their flying instruments were causing trouble, but, wrote Chamberlin, the fliers would see A. R. Martine, their backer, "in 30 or 35 hours, unless delayed by detours or we get too hungry."

This afternoon, the fliers, seeking diversion from their monotonous grind around the Long Island flying fields, took a turn over New York, Peterboro, N. J., and Bound Brook, N. J. On their return, Chamberlin dropped another note, describing the low visibility and describing Governor's Island in New York harbor as an ideal site for an airport.

CHAMBERLIN SIGNALS ALL'S WELL AT 37TH HOUR

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 13—(AP)—At 10.12 p. m. Clarence D. Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams had been in the air 36 hours and had completed more than three-fifths of their task of remaining aloft at least 53 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds to set a new endurance flight record.

Chamberlin signalled with his flashlight, "All's well. Fuel consumption under estimate" shortly before 10 o'clock. Earlier in the evening a flurry of rain over Long Island caused spectators some apprehension that the flyers might be forced down.

CHAMBERLIN STILL CIRCLING AT MIDNIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 13—(AP)—At midnight Clarence D. Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams were still circling the Long Island fields in their attempt to establish a new flight endurance record.

Shortly before that hour they signalled that "everything is going well."

Fair and slightly colder weather was in prospect for the fliers during the remaining hours of their attempt to stay aloft at least 53 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds.

SITUATION QUIET IN COLORADO COAL FIELDS

WALSENBURG, Colo., Jan. 13—(AP)—With state policemen armed with riot guns patrolling the city, the situation remained quiet here today following the clash between striking coal miners and state policemen yesterday resulting in the death of two strikers.

Members of the state industrial commission announced the strike committee had promised there would be no more parades or other demonstrations by the strikers while the commission is in session here conducting an inquiry into the causes of the mine walkout called last October by I. W. W.

The outbreak yesterday occurred when state policemen attempted to turn back a parade of 600 strikers and their sympathizers headed toward the building in which the industrial commission was meeting.

CASE AGAINST SINCLAIR AND BURNS RESUMED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The criminal contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates, halted since December 20, were resumed today amid a whirlwind of recrimination and a near physical clash between opposing counsel.

The absence of Sinclair, who had been excused from attendance, was the source of an almost bodily conflict between Martin W. Littleton, his counsel and O'Leary. The prosecutor called for Sinclair to stand up and Littleton charged he knew at the time the oil man had been excused. When the prosecutor said this was false, Littleton rushed up to him, and O'Leary removed his glasses, but the court ended the argument.

COOLIDGE EN ROUTE WITH MESSAGE OF FRIENDSHIP

Presidential Party is Traveling Southward Toward Key West, Bound For Pan-American Congress in Havana—The President Will Speak Monday Before the Pan-American Gathering—The President's Special Train is the Last Word in Safety and Comfort.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Carrying a message of friendly feeling to the nations of the western hemisphere, President Coolidge was traveling southward tonight toward Key West. There he will embark for Havana, Cuba, to speak Monday before the sixth annual Pan-American congress.

Mr. Coolidge is making not only his first trip into southern states since he became president but also his first to a foreign land, adding himself to the list of three predecessors who left the country while in the white house.

With the president and Mrs. Coolidge as they journeyed through Virginia into the Carolinas toward Georgia and Florida was a party of well known Americans, including Secretaries Kellogg and Wilbur and Charles Evans Hughes, all of them accompanied by their wives. Mr. Hughes heads the American delegation to the congress, several other members of which are traveling to Cuba with the president.

The long special train with 86 passengers aboard left Washington at 2 p. m. at Jacksonville, where an operating stop will be made tomorrow morning, Secretary Davis of the labor department, who has business in Florida, will leave the train. At Miami Mr. Coolidge will detrain for an hour's tour of the city late tomorrow.

The president's special was as usual the last word in safety and comfort. The last car—an observation coach—was for Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge. There were two dining cars necessary to accommodate the large party. Two motion picture machines were taken along to help while away the time by the showing of the latest features.

The schedule calls for the president's arrival in Key West tomorrow night. Here the special will be shunted to a quiet area and on Sunday morning after breakfast Mr. Coolidge and his party will board tenders to be taken out to the battleship Texas for the crossing of Havana. Inasmuch as the Texas cannot come into the harbor at Key West the plan is to take the party to Havana on the cruiser Memphis which can dock in case the ocean is too rough to permit an easy transfer to the Texas.

The arrival of the president in Havana Sunday afternoon will be the occasion for the Cuban government to extend all the honors to which the visiting head of a foreign country is entitled. He will be met at the dock by President Machado and taken immediately to the national palace which will be his home throughout his two day.

Monday morning before delegates from practically all of the nations of the new world President Coolidge will deliver the opening address of the Pan-American congress. His speech, together with that of President Machado will be broadcast.

Mr. Coolidge plans to leave Havana Tuesday morning returning to Key West on the Texas. He will be back in Washington next Thursday morning

LINDBERGH MEETS TWO FRENCH FLIERS

PANMA CITY, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Three flying stars of the air met here today before a crowd of 20,000, that cheered without restraint, as the fliers, Lindbergh, Costes and Lebrix shook hands on the balcony of the municipal building. The airmen waved and smiled to those below, and Lindbergh seemed more pleased than at any time since his arrival here.

It had been expected that this meeting would take place at Campo. Lindbergh on the arrival of the adventurous Frenchmen, who had flown from Guayaquil, Ecuador, nearly 300 miles, speeding their plane for the purpose of this very foregathering. They reached Campo Lindbergh in advance of the unofficial good will ambassador of the United States, and were on their way to Panama City when Colonel Lindbergh came soaring over the field from Colon.

It was almost impossible for the motors, containing Mrs. Margaret Gray and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Logan, mother, brother-in-law and sister of the dead man, to pass, so thick was the crowd.

At the Rosedale cemetery, where Gray was interred, another crowd had collected, but the rites, conducted under a canopy were private.

INTEREST HIGH IN WELLES CASE TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 13—Wide interest has been created in the Coventry town court trial Saturday afternoon of Thomas Welles, one of the prominent residents of South Coventry, charged with failure to have made his election expense return as a candidate for board of relief, following the town election of October 3rd last. On Mr. Welles' alleged failure to give account of his expenses for the election by filing with Town Clerk Louis W. Daniels before the expiration of the time limit which is set for 15 days after elections, a warrant was made out by Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke Thursday and given to Deputy Sheriff Albert E. Harmon to be served. Mr. Welles was taken before the town court and he asked for a continuance to allow him time to secure legal advise. Mr. Welles has stated that he did not receive his blank until January 4th. He filled it out last Wednesday night and had it certified by a notary public but did not forward it to the town clerk because of his arrest. Welles, a democrat, was defeated by his republican opponent, David S. Tillinghast, for board of relief in the last election He claims that he had no expenses and had not thought it necessary to file an account when there had been no expenditure.

Asserting that he does not intend to be annoyed by "people who happen to hold office in this town" Mr. Welles has retained a Hartford attorney and he blames his arrest to an insidious attempt on the part of political opponents to cause him annoyance as a show of resentment for his part in securing an audit of the town books several weeks ago. For the time being, at least, the town authorities seem to suffer a lapse of memory and efforts to learn the identity of the complainant in the case have been unsuccessful.

It was stated by other sources today that nearly all of the democratic candidates in the last town election had failed to file election expense returns within the required time. Two notices were sent out by the town clerk, the second enclosing a copy of the statute which compels the making of a return. After the second notice all but Mr. Welles filed the required return, it was said.

NOANK

GRAND-DADDY OF THE EELS CAUGHT BY GEORGE DEVOE

George Devoe was out on the flats eeling Thursday morning. Soon his spear struck something on the bottom and he thought it was a piece of rubber hose. Getting it into the boat he found the hose was a four-pound eel, the largest one brought into the village fish market this season. The eel was doing some shaking trying to get away. Young Devoe thought any minute that the spear would break. He had a good morning's catch in three hours' work, 31 pounds, which was sold at a market on the north dock.

A letter came to Eddie Ellis from Springfield, Ill., Thursday from his cousin, Douglas Gillis, who is hiking from Providence to Kansas City on a bet of $500 against a new Ford car. He is a former Noank boy. He tells about the hike, going along slowly and stopping for the night at the first town when darkness overtakes him. Getting to Chicago, he struck a snow-storm, about 6 inches deep, when it was 15 below zero. He stopped there for several days to get a good rest and starting off again made Springfield, Ill., where word was sent to his cousin. "Springfield is some town. I am on my fourth pair of shoes and have lost six pounds, but am still going strong," he writes. "I attended a dance and gave an exhibition of the black bottom and won a prize. Was called out several times by the 500 dance fans in the hall. Oh, Boy! What a big hand a stranger gets in this town! Now I will start again on my hike to Kansas City which is a long way off and hope my feet don't fail me. But how the cold wind blows out in this part of the country! My next letter to you, cousin, will be when I reach my goal, in a week or two. It won't be long now. Give my regards to the members of the Sardine club, also all my friends in the village."

Local duck hunters claim that it is the poorest duck season in many years. It is too mild weather—not enough ice and the streams not frozen over to drive the ducks down to the salt water. One hunter, Jerry Downs, went out at an early hour in the morning and sitting around for five hours did not see a duck fly by. He did not even fire the gun. It is the first time in thirty years of hunting he says, that this ever happened to him. "Others will go out," he says, "and bring back 10 or 12 ducks. Guess they have a rabbit foot in their pocket or know where the ducks go for the night!"

DANIELSON

KILLINGLY GIVEN SECOND PLACE IN COUNTY POPULATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 13—Population estimates for Windham county towns compiled by the state department of health as of July, 1928, are giving some of the towns hereabouts quite a kick, figuratively. Killingly probably feels very good over a rating that gives it the second largest population in the county, being a bit ahead of Putnam and Plainfield. The special interest in the estimate lies in the fact that they vary materially from the estimate of the state board of education in some instances, especially in the case of Putnam, where press comment has been made on the subject.

Whatever the exact population of Killingly may be, it gets the most liberal estimate from the state department of health. The 1920 census gave Killingly a population of 8,178. The state department of health estimates that figure will have been increased to 9,517 by July of this year. This indicates a population gain of 1,339 in the past eight years.

It is very probable that Killingly's population has increased considerably since 1920. There are various grounds for believing this to be a fact. There are those who question that the increase has been in excess of 1300 people, however pleasant it may be to contemplate that possibility, with all that it represents in earning capacity, business prospects and in many other ways. Two more years must elapse before the next national census is taken. Until then Killingly will be content to accept the estimates and wish that the 10,000 mark that it hopes to attain some day will have been reached by that time.

Location of the office of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. in Danielson forecasts more lively interest in the doings of this organization in this town and in other communities not distant from Danielson. The more enthusiastic impulse already is making itself felt in the Hi-Y and Tri-Y organizations, and will grow as the year speeds on.

It has been definitely established that no harm befell Phineas G. Aldrich, who disappeared into the woods on the foggy Saturday morning of two weeks ago. Mr. Aldrich has been in Providence this week and is his usual active self.

Of the many suggestions that have been made to relieve the danger of accidents at the cross-over of Broad and Reynolds streets a new one made to The Bulletin is that what is known as a Rotary system of regulating traffic be inaugurated there. This would involve making that part of Reynolds street between Main and Broad a one-way street and detouring traffic coming down Reynolds street northward into Broad and thence around the park into Main. The plan would help in a measure, but would not entirely protect the dangerous cross-over point, where there is heavy traffic.

Sportsmen who have been in the woods recently say that protected game birds appear to be thriving in this open winter. They are having little more difficulty than in the warm weather season in obtaining food, although the variety may not be as great.

At the home of her daughter in East Killingly last night the death of Mrs. Addie R. Collins, 73, widow of Hordton N. Collins, occurred. Mrs. Collins suffered a paralytic shock about three weeks ago. Resident in East Killingly for half a century, she was a native of Sherburne, N. Y., a daughter of Henry and Sarah Goodspeed Hill. Her husband's death preceded her by nine months to a day. Mrs. Collins leaves one daughter, Mrs. Salville Harrington, of East Killingly.

A. M. Thompson is the newly elected president of the Bohemian club. A. P. Woodward, who has filled the offices of secretary and treasurer for many years, has been re-elected. The board of directors is made up of Charles W. Hale and James H. Sayles, with George Quinn as collector.

State highway crews are working these winter days at various odd jobs requiring attention as well as doing routine work. Among other things they are cutting away brush and other growths along the borders of state highways, cleaning the material up and carrying it away, and the improvement accomplished where this work has been done is noteworthy.

As another kick at a silly old superstition, nothing of special moment happened in Danielson or vicinity on this Friday the 13th. It was much like any other day insofar as the usual run of things was concerned. It does seem to be a fact, it may be set down in passing, that not as many people believe it a fateful day as was the case a generation ago.

Many owners of motor cars are again becoming careless about their lighting equipment. Cars with only one headlight illuminated or with taillight dark are becoming numerous again. The campaign of a few weeks ago against such machines changed this for a time and only a few cars were to be seen without proper lights. It is a fact that but comparatively few drivers carry spare bulbs, which are insurance against the lighting difficulty.

As good a bit of news pertaining to improvements along trunk line highways in this section as has arisen in a considerable time is relative to plans of the state highway department to replace the narrow bridge at Central Village, on the Danielson-Norwich route with a new and wider structure. The present bridge is practically a one-way bridge, and a number of accidents have occurred there, some of them serious. Another similar bridge is at Almyville on the Moosup-Providence route and also is scheduled to go in the not distant future.

Speaking of the extraordinarily mild weather of the winter to date, one on whose head the snows of nearly three-quarters of a century have fallen, said today, that it is not well to feel any assurance that "winter will rot in the sky," this year. "I have known other winters like this and some of them rough and raw enough to make up for lost time when they got down to business in February and did not let up until toward the last of March. It might happen again this year."

Friday evening of next week a meeting of the Patriotic Building committee is to be held with Vine R. Franklin. The plan is to have all patriotic societies represented at this meeting.

A Danielson man who sought to buy some of the second preferred stock of the Connecticut Mills at the price quoted on in a circular sent here by a Boston brokerage concern has a reply in which the information is given that the firm has not to sell at that price, which is just about what stockholders here thought the answer would be. Again it looks like good judgment to hold the stock for the time being, in the opinion of competent judges here.

Misses Annie and Mabel Dyer of Brooklyn have gone to Florida for the remainder of the winter season.

Miss Marie Taylor is to have the members of the Queen Esther circle at her home for a meeting next Tuesday evening.

JEWETT CITY

ICE OF 1921 HARVEST IS STILL AVAILABLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 13—Local ice men are contemplating sending out a search warrant for—One lost winter. No recent record shows where Jan. 13th at noon the mercury stood at 56 degrees above, which was the mark showing on the glass here Friday, out of the reach of what little sun there was at that hour. For the third time this season hopes of a hurry-up ice harvest were melted. During the last cold snap, ice on the Dorrville fields, as reported by M. E. Shea, reached a good six inches. Once in early December it got up to four inches. This evening there were coves and a sheltered stretch to the north of the island where the badly honey-combed ice would bear up a man, but the main channels are cut through again. Shea Bros.' records show that during thier 25 years of ice experience there have been seven years when the houses have been filled after Jan. 15th. These dealers have in one of their big houses from 20 to 30 tons of 12-inch ice of the vintage of '21, which, it is a safe bet, is the extent of the harvested ice in New London county.

Already fancy ball finery is being offered in the local store, and the tailors are working overtime. The reason, good and sufficient, being that the time is in the near offing for the famous firemen's ball. Nobody misses it that can get there. This year it will be in Plainfield for the reason that, since the improvements and new seats at the Finn theatre, the main floor is no longer available for that most popular of local social events, the firemen's ball.

A talk Friday with one of the leading sportsmen, (as far as bird hunting goes) in this section gave the information by comparison, of some astonishing facts made known in the local woods today. Only one year in the last twenty have the Griswold woods and game covers shown the open appearance of today. Far removed from the usual snow and ice, the ground vegetation shows green, springs and brooks are open, and in one runway the hunter came upon four quail, sitting on an orchard wall, looking as fat and prosperous as in summer time.

At the close of the business meeting of Faith Chapter, O. E. S., the worthy matron, Mrs. Louise Holmes, was greatly surprised to be remembered with a birthday party. A door opened, and Miss Doris Myott and Mrs. Minnie Hiscox appeared carrying a beautiful decorated cake lighted with candles. Each cake-bearer spoke a little piece, as she offered the dainty to the astonished matron. The exact date of her birthday being unknown to the members, as she knew made the surprise genuine. A real party followed during which Scotch short bread, cake and coffee were served. A very entertaining program was opened with a piano solo by Mrs. Emma Gilbert. A ludicrous poem, "Our Beauty Shoppe," was read by Miss Sadie Thompson. Scotch stories were told by Mrs. Marie H. Ballou, who also gave a novelty cake recipe. Each one present found a pencil and paper and was expected to be able to concoct a toothsome cake. The cake was a novelty all right. The bobbed hair women and the long haired women were stationed on either side of the room and sang touching sonnets about their heads. During the program, Worthy Patron W. J. Robertson presented Mrs. Holmes a compact as a gift from the members. The committee who arranged the surprise included Miss Doris Myott, Mrs. Nelbert Myott, Mrs. Minnie Hiscox, Miss Sadie Thompson, and Mrs. Marie H. Ballou.

Benjamin Franklin returned to his home in Fiskdale Tuesday. His wife remains to care for Miss Nellie Franklin, who has been ill for five weeks. She is able to sit up for a few minutes at present.

In the annual report of the Town Nurse committee recently published, corrections should be made. The cash received from the Metropolitan Insurance Co. was $1225, and from the John Hancock Mutual Life, $157.75. In the printed report the latter company was omitted and their check credited to the Metropolitan Co.

There is a prevalence of mumps in town, probably over one hundred cases. The health officer said that parents should be more particular about keeping their children out of school the required length of time and has asked those in authority to see that this is done as far as teachers can do so. The laxity in this matter causes the epidemic and loss of school time to children who might possibly escape the disease. Older people are contracting the disease, also.

Sandwiches, pickles, fudge, cookies and lemonade were served.

Second-hand beauty

THE world is full of women who are beginning to lose the fresh bloom of health. Eagerly, hopefully, they haunt the beauty shops. Trying this. Trying that. Buying beauty by the hour. . . . At best what an empty achievement they attain! Second-hand beauty.

Life could tell a different story if more women knew the part constipation plays in wrecking youth and beauty. If more men but realized how this terrible scourge undermines strength and health. Constipation is at the bottom of many a trouble. The cause of literally dozens of diseases.

And more's the shame when it can be so easily and quickly relieved. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to bring prompt relief—lasting, safe prevention.

Why "all-bran" is so effective

It is "bulk" that combats constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is rich in bulk because it is 100% bran. It distributes moisture throughout the intestines—gently exercising them.

Sweeping out poisonous wastes. Part-bran products seldom contain sufficient bulk to do this effectively. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Because it is 100% bran.

Better than drugs

Unlike habit-forming pills and laxatives — the quantity of ALL-BRAN you require need never vary. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works as nature works—naturally. A pleasant, healthful cereal. Isn't that much better than pills or drugs?

Eat with milk or cream—or with fruits or honey added. Use it in cooking too. Sprinkle it into soups. Mix it with other cereals. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal.

Be sure, though, you get genuine Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Don't risk part-bran substitutes. ALL-BRAN is sold by grocers everywhere. Served at hotels and restaurants. On dining-cars. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Guaranteed! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is sold with this definite guarantee: Eat it according to directions. If it does not relieve constipation safely, we will refund the purchase price.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week Franklin Nichols was elected president of the Thames National bank and A. F. Smith was elected president of the old Second National bank. The Merchants National bank directors elected John Brewster as their president. The Thames Towboat Co., held its annual meeting the same week and elected John Mitchell as its president. The weather was extremely cold that week, the thermometer reading as low as 10 degrees below zero. Interesting extracts from the file of The Norwich Bulletin of January, 1878, are as follows:

Monday, Jan. 7, 1878—We are pleased to learn that Dr. W. C. Hussey has concluded to remain in Norwich. A loud call from New York city during the fall had almost induced him to remove thither; and his numerous friends and patrons here will be happy to know that the call is not to be entertained.

F. B. Adams of this city, better known as "Grizzly" is astonishing and delighting Hartford people with his wonderful expertness at finger billiard playing.

A few sleighs were out Saturday but the sleighing was poor. It would take but a very little more snow, however, to make it excellent.

Water street always presents a lively appearance Saturday evening.

The weather has been such as to prevent the digging of clams lately and none are to be found in the markets.

Tuesday, Jan. 8, 1878—The thermometer was reported at 8 or 10 degrees below zero at East Great Plain yesterday morning and the same or lower at Norwich Town. The lowest point touched by thermometers on Main street and at the police station was two degrees below. There was promise last night of its being still colder tomorrow.

Thomas Lord of New York city, the 80-year old bridegroom, whose marriage has created so much interest, is a native of this city, his father's name being Nathan Lord and his mother's maiden name, Mary Lathrop.

Some of the street lamps were barely burning, last evening, as the water which will collect in the pipes has been frozen so as to prevent the usual flow of gas.

The Delanoy engine boys are to give a masquerade ball Wednesday evening at Breed hall.

O. D. Ones on deck tonight. One blast upon the bugle horn should call a thousand men.

Wednesday, Jan. 9, 1878—Several of the banks held their election of officers yesterday morning. The following is a list of directors elected at the Thames National bank: F. Nichols, E. Learned, A. A. Young, J. L. Hubbard, L. F. S. Foster, J. Lloyd Greene, L. Blackstone, Wm. G. Johnson, H. H. Osgood, John Mitchell, Charles Bard, Thomas D. Sayles, E. N. Gibbs. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Franklin Nichols was elected president and Edward N. Gibbs cashier.

The Merchants National bank elected as follows: Directors, John Brewster, Henry B. Tracy, William C. Osgood, Enoch F. Chapman, William Fitch, Gardner Thurston, Lucius Brown, D. T. Ruby. President, John Brewster; cashier, James B. Meech; assistant cashier, Charles Webb.

The annual meeting of the Shetucket National bank resulted in the re-election of the old board of officers as well as president and cashier.

Thursday, Jan. 10, 1878—The civil authorities appointed at their recent meeting the following health committee: Patrick Cassidy, Lewis S. Paddock, Ralph H. Fillmore, Alvan T. Davis, F. A. Tillinghast.

The St. Mary's Total Abstinence and Benevolent society, at their semi-annual election, elected the following officers of the society: President, Patrick F. Murtagh; vice president, Patrick Sheridan; recording secretary, Michael McNamara; financial secretary, J. C. Byrnes; treasurer, P. S. O'Sullivan; librarian, James Lyons.

At the annual meeting of the Universalist church, held Monday evening, the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Charles H. Dillaby, N. S. Wentworth, Robert McWhirr, M. M. Whitemore, D. M. Dickinson, trustees; C. B. Woodworth, clerk; E. A. Tracy, treasurer.

The executive committee of the United Workers held their regular meeting Tuesday. A very interesting report was made by the house committee regarding the care of the "Home" and the patients received since its establishment.

The Delaney Steam Fire Engine company had a delightful time at their masquerade ball in Breed hall last evening. We believe this is the first of the kind by this company for five years, and proved a pleasant reminder of their successes of years ago.

Friday, Jan. 11, 1878—At a regular communication of St. James lodge, No. 23, F. and A. M., Past Master S. A. Gilbert installed the following officers for the ensuing year: George W. Miller, W. M.; Gilbert L. Hewitt, S. W.; A. Irving Royce, J. W.; A. J. Hammett, treasurer; David R. Jones, secretary; Albert S. Comstock, S. D.; Ashabel W. Fitch, J. D.; E. E. Joff, S. S.; Hugh King, J. S.; H. Clay Albro, tyler.

There is to be a meeting for revival services and prayer in Breed hall Sunday evening, closing in time for the services in the churches. The meeting will be led by the pastors of the city and all are invited. Those having "Gospel hymns" are desired to bring them.

All should visit Breed hall this evening to see Amy Stone as Marie in The Pearl of Savoy. She is supported by a first class company and a superb orchestra. Extra horse cars leave on both routes at the close of the entertainment.

It is currently reported that one of the Lincoln avenue farmers has kindly consented to loan the O. D. Ones the chromo presented to him in Chicago a few months since, which is to be placed on exhibition at the Charity Ball, the 18th inst.

Saturday, Jan. 12, 1878—The death of John Dunham, Esq., on Thursday evening removed a citizen who for half a century and more has been prominently associated with the business interests of Norwich and who has held numerous positions of honor and trust as the gift of his townsmen.

At a regular meeting of Palmyra Encampment, No. 3, Thursday evening the following officers were installed for the ensuing term by the district deputy grand master, Stephen D. Moore: Peter Murray, C. P.; C. W. Tubbs, H. P.; T. L. Albro, S. W.; A. L. Allen, scribe; William N. Andrew, assistant scribe; George Hall, treasurer; A. T. Boone, J. W.; J. W. Andrew, guide; J. McNickle, O. S.; F. W. NAVY BUILDING

Congress is being asked at this session to give consideration to the needs of the navy department if this country is to have a first class navy. Look at it as the outcome of the failure of the recent Geneva conference, or just as a necessary step in giving proper protection to the country, it deals with a matter of great national importance.

It is evident that had the Geneva conference agreed to the limitation of auxiliary warships the naval building programme would have taken a different form. As it is we must be governed by the conditions we face. However much we might have liked limitation we must fully understand that it doesn't prevail, and while we have gone to great lengths in the scrapping of warships and failed to keep up to the building activities of other countries we cannot afford to do so forever. Apparently our sacrifices have not accomplished what was expected of them. If other nations are not willing to follow our lead, but insist upon big navies there's no alternative for this country but to keep up with the procession to the extent of looking carefully to our own welfare and protection.

Secretary Wilbur of the navy department is asking for $726,000,000 for a building programme that will extend over a period of five years and be about a quarter of the total requirements for new ships and replacements that will cover a 20 year period. Attention is directed to the fact that it isn't a paper navy that is wanted. It is being sought in the expectation that the plan will be endorsed, the money appropriated and the work carried out.

The aim is not to start competitive building, not to build up to our allowance just because such a point has been fixed, but to provide a navy that will be adequate four our defensive requirements under all circumstances. This is in some contrast to the expenditures which have been made in recent years, but while there is plenty of ways for the use of government money it cannot fail to be appreciated that we cannot continue to neglect our important first line of defense indefinitely unless there is something in the way of an international agreement for limitation of armament that will take its place.

AIDING FIRE PREVENTION

Much valuable fire prevention can be accomplished through the elimination of the recognized fire hazard. Just as long as they are tolerated and just as long as they stand ready like so many kindlings to burst into flame when the torch is applied it can be expected that there will be a continuance of the needless fires. It is quite important that there should be no heedless throwing about of matches and similar carelessness with firebrands, but there is the additional need of disposing of the rubbish piles, of clearing out cellars filled with inflammable material and of separating storerooms from the waste which has been put there because it was the easiest thing to do.

There are many localities in which this condition comes in for regular inspection. As the result there is no doubt that there is a considerable reduction in the number of fires. It is fire prevention work which has real merit.

In the state of Massachusetts no such plan has been followed because the authority to conduct such inspections has not been possessed by other than the state fire marshal. At the session of the legislature in that state a bill has been introduced that will permit periodical inspections by some designated authority within the city or town who can put an end to unsafe practices through necessary restrictions. Such a duty would naturally fall upon the chief of a fire department where such an official exists, and it is in communities large enough to maintain such where some of the worst hazards prevail.

The object of such legislation is such as to arouse the interest and support of the entire state. Fire prevention has an appeal which should concern everyone. It ought to many times when it doesn't and it is because of this laxness on the part of so many that the best of reasons exist for locating dangerous conditions and having them eliminated before something serious results. The benefit of such a law is so obvious that there should be no question about its adoption.

THE HORNSBY DEAL

There are many possibilities in the game of baseball. It doesn't always result in accordance with desires or expectations. And what is true of the game is likewise true of the makeup of the various teams. There are reasons to believe that the owners and managers are desirous of getting and keeping the best possible players, but when there is a shakeup which seems to go contrary thereto it arouses much speculation. There is a desire to know the reason for it.

That is why there is so much doubt manifested over the explanation given for the trading of Rogers Hornsby to Boston for two players. It is said to have been done for the best interests of the Giants but the reluctance of fandom to accept that explanation is due to the fact that here has been no evidence of friction created by Hornsby and it is perfectly evident that the playing ability of Hornsby has not been equaled by the two players taken in the trade. This gives the impression that there is an inside to the matter which has not been told, that there is an underlying reason for the sacrificing of the services of such an acknowledged star.

In view of the fact that efforts had been made to trade Hornsby with several of the clubs, it is apparent that the president of the Giants had made up his mind to part with the services of a player. There's no doubting his right to do what he has done but it is hard for baseball enthusiasts to justify the wisdom of such a move from the outside, not knowing apparently the real cause for the action. It is a surprise to them to be told that such a change would help the New York team.

The trade is one which ought to be of decided benefit to Boston. The presence of Hornsby with the Braves should do much to strengthen one of the weaker teams, and in time the real inside of the deal will probably be brought to light. Until it is told it will furnish food for winter gossip and whet the interest in the training season which is not so far away.

HOUSTON WINS

To not a few the selection of Kansas City as the place for holding the national republican convention came as a surprise, but probably the number was not as large as those surprised at the outcome of the action of the democratic national committee in selecting Houston, Tex., for their convention.

It was a case where Houston "dared to hope", sent a lot of boosters to Washington and brought enough influence to bear by their offerings and pleas to get the decision over San Francisco. The Pacific coast city which entertained the convention previous to the memorable one in New York relied upon money to turn the trick. But for the matter of distance it would probably have won. Houston is more central and it bid higher than other center of the country cities.

By going to that city the democratic delegates will be taken into the democratic section of the country, where it might be thought more of the conventions would be held but where none has gone for many years. Houston is not as well equipped to handle such a convention as other cities which put in their bids and it will probably find that the easiest part of the whole thing was in making the bid and getting an acceptance of it.

What, if any, effect the choice of Houston will have upon the selection of a party candidate remains to be seen. The indications are however that it was chosen without regard to candidate and the success of the Texas city will doubtless arouse the envy of many another southern city which did not enter the contest because it was believed the holding of the convention in the south was out of the question. Houston dared to try hard enough to win.

SAVING HUMAN LIFE

Following an execution for murder, especially if the case has been brought into much prominence, we hear the statement about it being a terrible thing. There's no doubt about it, it is a terrible thing, but even more so was the murder. It was entirely within the control of those executed to have prevented it. The responsibility for their end rests upon their own shoulders.

But while so much attention is being focused upon such ends, and so many are talking about putting an end to capital punishment, isn't it about time that greater attention was directed to the heavy loss of human life that is being experienced every day in our highways?

Think of 24,000 persons having been killed in traffic accidents last year! It was not the result of malice aforethought but in a great many of those instances prevention was easily possible. Probably in only a small proportion of the cases was there a penalization of anyone.

We are inclined to raise our hands in horror at certain conditions which prevail, and do so in full justification, but there are too many instances where we seem to accept the preventable in a matter of fact sort of a manner even though the opportunity for saving human life is much greater. There is no similarity between the execution and the traffic accident in most instances, but human life is at stake in both and the urge for taking more and better steps for saving it is much greater in the latter than in the former. Yet the efforts at reduction result only in a larger number of deaths each year.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Did we hear someone giving encouragement to January to keep it up?

From various directions there comes evidence that the supply of discarded resolutions is rapidly increasing.

That Massachusetts hit-and-run driver who was sentenced to two and a half years will have a chance to repent in leisure.

The trouble over the governor of Oklahoma has quieted down like the subsidence of a young tornado which wrecked nothing.

They are beginning to tell in various towns how many have not paid their personal tax. There are always those who help history to repeat.

Massachusetts is talking about a gas tax once more, but if it amounts to no more than it has in the past it will be only a waste of time and breath.

Boston is happy over the coming of Hornsby and well it may be. Hornsby is a conspicuous baseball player and New York's loss is a positive Boston gain.

Will the fact that Bobby Jones has been elected to and accepted a place on the board of directors of an Atlanta bank affect his amateur standing as a golfer.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The question of "rejuvenation" is by no means a modern one. It has been in existence ever since man fell into the unfortunate and foolish habit of growing old. Just why he allows this pernicious habit to continue has never been satisfactorily explained. About once in every five years on the average some superman with great enthusiasm discovers a remedy for the unfortunates who stand trembling on the brink of the allotted three-score years and ten. The remedy suggested also applies to those who are older still being somewhat under forty. Some of the oldest people in the world belong to the latter class. Of course this applies to people who live in the "far east." The son of a turnip-raiser, who was soon to take up his father's business, discovered after long and learned research that the extract of turnips taken in moderation would keep the human heart thumping for a century. Everything from pills to pilgrimages to sacred shrines are recommended as an antidote for old age.

The rank and file of people, however, do not advance any theory that is workable in warding off the "dread destroyer." Nothing in all this wide world is more apparent than the utter failure of all these superficial attempts to keep up the appearance of youth. To put it with the utmost mildness, they are not an unqualified success. Nothing in this wide world is harder than to persuade the general public that a made-up old dame of ninety is only nineteen! To look young you must reverse the process! You must begin on the inside and work out! You cannot slather on paint and putty and make it create a young heart! Get new thoughts that are worth while into your head! Burn up all the old trash in your hearts! Read new books that are worth while! Do some new act of kindness every day! A young spirit will never have a very old face!

It doesn't look now, does it, fair reader, that we are in for a very heavy January thaw? When the writer was a child up in the bleak hills of Massachusetts, snow usually began to fall about Thanksgiving time, and at the New Year, there was invariably a large quantity. Then we always expected the annual thaw so that enough water might be given to supply our wants during the remainder of the frozen season. The main reason this year why we do not expect a thaw is because there is nothing to thaw—except possibly our frozen natures. Is it not within the range of possibility that some benefit may be derived from an "open winter?" To say the least it is going to save many weak backs from lumbago, and if you have had any intimate connection with real orthodox lumbago you will realize that it is some saving. It was formerly believed that snow had fertilizing value but that has been fully given up. It does however protect the earth from the severity of the frost.

One day the writer saw a squirrel biting away at a dilapidate pear. At length he came to the seeds which he ate with apparent relish, but that part of the fruit which we relish he did not seem to have any use for. Who told the little animal what was inside the pear? Probably he had never read any treatise of fruits and flowers. Was it intelligence or instinct that told him? Near a traveled pathway in one of our eastern states was a stone of no unusual appearance which people passed by without giving it more than a passing glance. One day a man gave it a glance and passed on. Then he suddenly stopped, looked back at the stone and exclaimed: "Ho! ho! what have we here?" He broke the stone open and found the finest ruby that the soil of Massachusetts had ever yielded. Was it intelligence that told the man, and only instinct the squirrel.

What a glorious season this is for work. I am not speaking from the standpoint of the farmer or the road-builder, but for all those whose work is more largely mental than manual. The best intellectual work is not done in the extremes of temperature. Thus far this season in this latitude, we have had only mild suggestions of zero. Not only the weather but other conditions have been favorable for the exercise of gray matter. The strain that naturally attends the Christmas season is now gone, and we have again reached the normal. There are few outside attractions just now. Of course our landscape views are beautiful on clear days. But clear days in the month of January are apt to be so cold that hiking is at a low ebb. If you venture on a long walk after a few mild days you will not have time to look at fine landscapes, you must be looking for lost rubbers, if you go far from a state highway. But get out somewhere every day if the slush is knee deep!

The reason why the winter seems so short after the holidays is that we think so little about it. It is the season for extra activities. Our minds are taken up by doing a great many useful things—at least we think they are useful. The time never passes so rapidly as when we forget all about it. If we want to find out how long a single day is, do nothing but watch the clock, and it will give us some faint idea of what eternity is. If we are immersed in a congenial occupation it will relieve time of all tediousness. What an opportunity this for reading some of those good books you received at Christmas! Don't forget to thank that dear old great-grandmother who in the kindness of her heart sent you something that you have no use for. Work hard for hot weather cometh.

To the energetic readers (if there are any such) let me make the following suggestion. I do this because it is perfectly safe. To be sure men and women are hung for certain crimes, but up to the present, making suggestions has not been regarded as a capital offense. Here is the suggestion: Spend a part of these long evenings, when you get a little tired of playing bridge, in mapping out your garden, for the garden season is not a thousand miles away. Consult all the members of your family as to their likes and dislikes. Don't plant the whole garden to cabbage because you are stuck on it. Perhaps your wife, who has been to college, would prefer cauliflower. Let the boys and girls have a say in the matter because they have a craving for something besides ice cream and lolypops. It is amazing what a variety a small plot will produce with careful planning.

Isn't it a pleasant thought that Old Sol, who but recently stepped into the presence of Capricorn, respectfully took off his cap, shook him by the hand, and then turned again in a northerly direction? His stop in Capricorn's palace was shorter than Lindbergh in Honduras (he stayed there only long enough to try to pronounce Tegucigalpa). Capricorn did not regard it as an affront when Old Sol immediately started in his old stage coach toward the equator. We are glad to see his face looking toward the north pole, for before we hardly realize it his old chariot will be driven across the equator and we shall have a clearer vision of his smiling face. In time he will pay his brief respects to Cancer and without delay will go back again. He does not need to study maps and charts as Lindbergh does, for we know not how many times he has made the journey. But more people turn out every morning to greet him than Lindbergh ever saw in his whole life.

FIVE CAPITALS WHICH LINDBERGH HAS VISITED

Proud citizens of five capitals of five Central American republics, Guatemala City, San Salvador, Tegucigalpa, Managua, San Jose and Panama City, have eagerly shown Lindbergh their cities.

Guatemala City, 650 miles southeast of Mexico City, can easily establish its claim as the largest city in Central America, equal in population to Reading, Penn.

"Guatemala City is not of the New world," says a communication to the National Geographic society describing the first of the capitals which Lindbergh visited on his good will tour through Central America.

"Guatemala City belongs to Old Spain," continues the communication. "It is a city suggestive of the Moors, with narrow streets, varicolored houses, deep-set, barred windows, bright patios, porticoes and colonnades.

"Guatemala's capital has always been Vulcan's plaything. He has shaken it down, even destroyed it, and has seen it rise again on three different sites and under as many names.

Lake Engulfs Old City.

"In 1527 Pedro de Alvarado began the first city on the lower slopes of Agua. In 1541 came a night of torrential rain, lightning, thunder, and earth rumblings, then a terrifying shudder. The crater of Agua was torn apart and the lake which filled it rushed down to overwhelm the city.

"A new capital, built a few miles to the northeast, in time became one of the most imposing cities of the New world, with splendid palaces and more than 60 impressive church buildings. The old city was but a memory, earthquakes were forgotten, and all seemed well as the new capital grew richer and more powerful.

"In 1717, with an eruption of Fuego, came an earthquake that leveled the city. Again it was built and again shaken down in 1773, the year of the Boston Tea Party.

Rebuilt Since 1917

"The capital was again transferred, this time 30 miles away to the site of the present city, and the life of the people moved on until 1917 came a series of tremblings that first cracked the thick adobe walls and then caused them to crumble. Since 1917 the capital city has again been practically rebuilt, thus illustrating the tenacity with which people cling to homes that have been erected where the shadow of some volcano falls.

"The population of the present capital is more than 100,000. The city, set in the midst of the Valley of the Rio de las Vacas (Cow river), is hemmed in by low mountain ridges and a group of imposing volcanoes.

"At one time the church and the clergy dominated the capital city and the monastic orders built many really magnificent structures. The orders were banished, however, and the post-office and custom house now occupy the Monastery of San Francisco; the National Institute is in the Jesuit college; a liquor dispensary occupies the famous Monastery of Santo Domingo, and a cheap theatre is in another dignified religious edifice.

"The central plaza is not beautiful now. The earthquake partly ruined the imposing cathedral to the east; the Chinese, as a memorial, have built a number of pagoda-like buildings to the north; the dignified Centennial building occupies another site; and the Portales, with little one-and-two-story shops, complete the quadrangle. It is a curious picture of ruin, dignity, tawdriness and pagodas.

"More interesting than the hodgepodge plaza is the old fruit woman who sits under a canopy on the corner of the square, with heaps of oranges, mangoes, aguacates (avocados), papayas and melons piled about her, hobnobbing with all who pass, the people who for years have been her customers and friends.

City Has Many Autos

"The street paving is beyond mention. The best is like our old cobbled variety and the worst stops just short of the impassable. The four-wheel coach, drawn by two dejected steeds, is still the usual mode of convevance, although the city is full of private motor cars.

"Guatemala City needs paving, waterworks and sewers, but so would any town that had passed through the ordeal that came to this capital in 1917 and steps are being taken now to remedy these conditions. The city has many fine shops, comfortable clubs, at least two good hotels, the inevitable motion picture theatres, where damaged American films are shown, and—marimba bands.

"The marimba, that queer African instrument which Guatemala made its own, has deep, rich tones, and produces profoundly stirring music. When one stands close by, the sound comes soft and mellow, but not lacking in volume, and when one hears it from afar there is the same surging, swelling volume of harmony, often wildly barbaric, but always denoting some deep, half-dreamed primitive emotion.

"I do not believe that any other national instrument so completely expresses the soul of the people who make it and play it as does the marimba. In it the Indian of Guatemala finds the musical expression of his race.

"But Guatemala City is to me not a place of churches, plazas, buildings and pavement. Its overtones are produced by a little group of whites and mestizos (half-breeds), but its dominant note comes from the Indian masses.

"The streets of the city throng with steady processions of Indian carriers, oxcarts, mule trains. The Indian is the burden-carrier, the ox-driver, the muleteer, the servant. Ten miles away, in the village of Mixco, live the Indians who each day carry to the capital the foodstuffs which its people buy."

San Salvador

"San Salvador, capital of the state of that name, was a 179-mile hop from Guatemala City. From the air Lindbergh could not help seeing what Salvadoreans cannot resist showing him—beautiful Lake Ilopango. Hotels and resorts border this blue pool which reflects mountains and smoking volcanoes. From the waters the flyer's menu may be filled out with fresh water shrimps as large as lobsters, a special delicacy enjoyed by residents of the capital. Other specialties are tortoise eggs and snails.

"The Spirit of St. Louis, flying into the rising sun for 140 miles, reached Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras. An airplane is a splendid vehicle to travel in to Tegucigalpa because no railroad runs there. The automobile highways have brought on the region the name of 'the land of broken springs.' Tegucigalpa, having about the population of Stamford, Conn., was the capital of the short-lived United States of Central America.

"Managua, war-torn capital of Nicaragua, was another jump of 175 miles southeast. It is beautifully situated on Lake Managua and numbers about as many citizens as Bloomington, Ill.

"Two hundred and forty miles farther in a southeasterly direction lies San Jose, capital of Costa Rica. The first capital was at Cartago, which severely jolted by earthquakes, still holds architectural treasures of the Spanish era. Costa Rica's War of Independence in 1821 resulted in San Jose's being made the capital. It is a city the size of Decatur, Ill. It lacks the neighboring lakes of its sister capitals, but has an opera house one of the finest in the world.

Panama City

"Five hundred miles due east again and Lindbergh dropped down on Panama City, famous for pirates, for a flat arch of the ruined church of Santo Domingo and for American sanitation. We thought of Lindbergh as flying south through Central America. He was flying east also. Mexico City, his point of departure, is in the same longitude as Oklahoma City, while Panama City lies on the longitude of Charleston, S. C., or Pittsburgh, Penn.

"Panama perpetrates a geographic joke on those who visit it. From the sea wall promenade one can see the sun rise majestically from the broad blue bosom of the Pacific, which to most Americans is the proper place for the setting sun. And when one sails from Panama City to Colon, the Atlantic terminal of the canal, the direction is from southeast to northwest, instead of from west to east. As one writer phrases it, 'there is something crooked about this.' And so there is, but the crookedness is to be found in the geography of the isthmus, which makes a broad 'S' curve, like an expansion band in a pipe-line, before it finally links the two continents.

"Although the present city of Panama dates from the 17th century, it is considered historically the new city, to distinguish it from Old Panama, now in ruins, a few miles east. Old Panama was entirely destroyed by piratical Henry Morgan, later Sir Henry, in 1671, and the new city was built shortly afterward on a high rocky spit of land running out into a wide blue bay of the Pacific. Although Panama City is not actually in the Canal Zone, nor is it on the Canal, complete jurisdiction has been granted the United States over all matters relating to sanitation and quarantine."

Sunday Morning Talk

TRUST HIS PROMISES.

God has promised wisdom to those who ask in faith. He has promised guidance to those who trust in Him; but if we desire God's wisdom and His guidance we must be willing to receive it in any way He sees fit to give it.

Through His spirit He makes them see and know what he would have them do. He closes one avenue and opens another, and in doing so points to the way he would have us go. Or He causes something to happen which comes to the waiting heart or obedient spirit as a direct voice from God and makes the way seem clear.

The only essential thing is to keep near to God in heart and life, to keep our minds open to receive His guidance however it may come. "I will guide thee with mine eye." He says, if we want to receive His guidance we must keep our eyes fixed on Him.

Even when our work ends, or appears to end in complete failure, that is not in itself a proof that we have not been guided by God in that work.

When St. Paul was stoned at Lystra and had to flee for his life, he did not say to himself that if God had been guiding him he would not have got into that trouble. And when Paul's Master found Himself without food for forty days and generously tempted of the devil He did not say to Himself that it could not have been the Spirit of God who led Him up into the wilderness to face these afflictions. That thought may have come into His mind; for it is just that line with the temptations which are recorded; but if it did come into His mind He repeated it: seeing that it was hard on a fallacious idea. It is through disappointment and defeat that God leads His servants to their greatest victory; if we will only stand fast, put our whole trust in Him who never fails. It may seem dark, but if we at all times and in all places trust in Him, we shall come out more than conquerors.

YOUR HEALTH

BABY HAS A COLD

by WARD E. COLLINS, M. D., Kalamazoo, Mich., Member Gorgas Memorial.

(The following is one of a series of articles prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial as part of its Better Health and Longer Life program. President Coolidge is the honorary president of the Memorial, which has been organized and endowed by prominent doctors and laymen throughout the country to perpetuate the work of the late Major General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Gorgas Memorial are at 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago.)

There is no denying that most colds can be prevented. Babies are especially susceptible to infection by organisms causing colds. They get them very easily and very frequently. If there was some way to prevent this, there would result a greater freedom from distress and disease and a saving of many lives. Common diseases—tonsilitis, ear disease, pneumonia, and their severe complications, such as mastoid infection—would indeed be rare. To emphasize the seriousness of such diseases, records show that more than half the deaths of babies and young children have their beginning in a common cold infection.

In order to prevent the spread of such respiratory infection, it has been suggested that children be kept separated, but how can this be done? We don't know. However, with babies it is different. They can be kept apart and children to a great extent can be kept away from them, and adults who come in contact with babies can refrain from hugging, kissing and fondling them. Every adult, healthy or otherwise, probably harbors germs in his nose and throat which, if placed in an infant's nose, would cause disease of greater or less severity; and if he has a cold in the head, a mild case of la grippe, sore throat, or cough, he is almost sure to infect any child with whom he comes in close contact. Every member of the family and every well-meaning but insufficiently informed grandmother and neighbor should know this.

Members of the medical profession are trying to prevent disease and are seeking the co-operation of the public to lessen human suffering. The control of scarlet fever, diphtheria, small pox and typhoid fever is a result of this endeavor. There is, as yet, no sure procedure known, except isolation, which will prevent the common cold. The doctors know a great deal about how to take care of these conditions when they arise, but they tell us, and we know, that it would be far better if we could prevent their occurrence.

Every individual who is associated in any way with babies and small children should recognize this fact and should consider it a duty to aid in the accomplishment of this object. Neighbors and their children should keep away from the new baby next door. They should not hold him unless so requested, much less kiss him. Grandparents could render infancy a wonderful service if they could refrain from hugging, fondling and kissing the little pets. The mother and nurse who have direct care of the baby should do all in their power to prevent the heaping on of this sort of affection—which so often becomes infection.

These matters may appear trivial to some and to others cold-blooded, but there's no doubt that the formation of such habits would go a long way toward lowering the present infant morbidity.

Former Norwich Leaders

George W. Fuller.

From Norwich Bulletin, May 13, 1891.

The death of George W. Fuller at Beechwood, Mass., Tuesday was telegraphed to this city last night. He was a well known diver and engineer and for many years lived in Norwich. He was a very successful marine diver and performed feats of engineering in different parts of New England and Canada which were to his mechanical skill and ingenuity.

He laid the water mains to the lakes at Toronto about ten years ago. He formed a company and fitted out the submarine diving expedition to Venezuelan waters to search for the Spanish galleon Don Alcantara which was supposed to have on board a large amount of specie. The brig Alice Gray, on which he made the voyage, did not bring back barrels of money, but the divers did find sample coins which on their return were exhibited in this city. He could tell thrilling adventures which grew out of his experiences as a deep-water diver.

He was interested in electric inventions and worked for several years in this city to perfect an electric light for New York parties.

He was a member of Norwich lodge, No. 12, A. O. U. W., of this place, and was insured for $2,000 in the order. He was also a Mason of high degree, having attained the 32d degree in Connecticut Sovereign Consistory. He was a member of Palestine commandery, K. T., of New London, and belonged to the other Masonic bodies in this city.

Mr. Fuller had been in poor health for a number of years. Some time ago, to obtain relief from the higher elevation and rarified air, he went to Colorado, but was unable to remain there, and returned east. About two years ago he went to Somerville, Mass., for treatment, and had been gradually failing up to the present time.

He will be buried at Beachwood, Mass., on Thursday. His wife, several daughters and a son survive him.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

William C. Adamson, who has resigned from the United States customs court, has been a member of that body for more than a decade. His greatest public service, however, was rendered during twenty years that he represented one of the Georgia districts in the national house of representatives. His name is inseparably associated with some of the most important legislation during the period between 1897 and 1917, due in part to his position as chairman of the interstate commerce committee. He is credited with having drafted the Panama Canal bill, the railroad physical valuation bill, the interstate commerce commission act, and the eight-hour day for federal employes. Georgia is Mr. Adamson's birthplace and he has reflected credit on the state. In religious affairs he has been prominent among South Methodist laymen.

This student had a date for a picture show. The next day her friends asked her how she liked the new date.

"Thumbs down. He's dumb. He didn't even hold my hand during the whole picture," was the disgusted girl's reply.

Where laws limiting the hours of child labor have been made, they are often evaded by work in another factory. OBITUARY.

Miss Elizabeth Webb

Miss Elizabeth Webb, pensioned school teacher of the local public schools, was found dead at her home, No. 229 West Main street about 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Her death was pronounced due to heart trouble by Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve.

Miss Webb, who was about 80 years of age, was found seated in a chair at her home by Mrs. Fred Freeman who called there on a visit. Mrs. Freeman had been in the habit of calling at Miss Webb's home every Thursday. She went there Thursday afternoon and after ringing the front doorbell for some time, went to a side door of the house, in which there are three tenements, and was let in by one of the tenants. She went up to Miss Webb's room and after rapping on the door, entered the room, which had a very strong odor of gas. She found Miss Webb with a book in her hand seated in a chair, apparently unconscious. Dr. Harry F. Higgins was summoned, and he in turn called in the medical examiner. After a thorough examination, it was decided that death was due to heart disease. Miss Webb had placed a kettle on a gas plate in her home and turned on the gas. Whether she failed to light the gas or whether the flame was extinguished in some manner is a question.

She appeared to be in good health and when seen last at 9 o'clock Thursday, seemed to be well.

Miss Webb, for a number of years, taught school at Mt. Pleasant street. She is the last of her immediate family.

Mr. and Mrs. Hull came to Norwich in 1893 and since then she has been a devoted member of the Central Baptist church and an active member of the Progressive Missionary society. She leaves three children, Charles of Detroit Mich., Mrs. Mary Ellis of Meriden, Robert E. Hull of this city; six grand children, Harold, Robert and Chas. Ellis of Meriden, Mrs Stanley Smith of Meriden, Mrs. Frank Mann of New Haven and Miss Mary Louise Hull of Norwich. Another grandchild, Marjorie Clark Hull, died fourteen years ago. There are also five great grand children.

GIVEN SENTENCE OF SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

John Filburn, 24, of this city, pleaded guilty to charges of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor on Dec. 10, and of being a second offender, in criminal superior court here Friday morning, and Judge Christopher L. Avery of Groton meted out the minimum penalty of six months in jail, upon recommendation of State Attorney Arthur M. Brown. Another charge of reckless driving was not pressed against Filburn.

According to State Attorney Brown, Filburn has a good record with his employers, the Norwich gas and electric department, and is highly thought of.

AUTOMOBILE DRIVER ACQUITTED ON STATUTORY MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

In the criminal superior court here Friday afternoon Judge Christopher L. Avery found Jerome Gareaux of 265 Ohio avenue, Providence, R. I., not guilty of the charge of statutory manslaughter and also not guilty on the charge of evading responsibility after an automobile accident.

Gareaux was placed on trial on the manslaughter charge because of the death of Fred S. Campbell, 72, of Bayonne, N. J., after he was struck by an automobile in Jewett City on the night of Sept. 4 while he was on his way home from attending church service and was about to cross North Main street at the corner of Lenox street with his brother, Emery F. Campbell, a resident of Jewett City, whom he was visiting. The charge of evading responsibility was added against Gareaux by State Attorney Arthur M. Brown after he had heard the evidence presented at the trial Friday.

After the state's evidence was all in, Attorney Thomas M. Shields, counsel for Mr. Gareaux, moved for dismissal of the charge against his client but Judge Avery overruled the motion and Attorney Shields then proceeded to put on evidence for the defense, which consisted only of the testimony of Mr. Gareaux and his wife, Florence, who was riding with him.

Gareaux said he was driving with the lights on his machine dimmed because of passing other cars, that he did not see any one in the road, did not know he had hit anybody, but thought his machine dropped into a pothole in the street, and when he stopped at a gasoline station about a mile north of Jewett City it was because he needed to get gas. He said he then discovered that his left headlight was broken and said that all the mudguards on his machine had been bent at one time or another. He denied that he shifted gears at the time he thought he hit the pothole in the street.

Mrs. Gareaux corroborated the testimony of her husband as to not knowing that the machine had hit anybody in Jewett City.

Testifying for the state, Emery F Campbell, who was hit by the machine at the same time as his brother was, said that they waited at the corner for several south-bound automobiles to pass and then stepped onto the edge of the macadam highway, when he saw a north-bound machine coming. This car swerved onto the left side of the road towards them and struck them before they could get out of the way. Mr. Campbell said he was knocked unconscious and was taken to the Backus hospital where he was a patient for 10 weeks lacking one day.

Frederick Campbell died the same night he was hit by the automobile.

Besides Civil Engineer George E. Pitcher, who explained a plan of the street location, and Dr. C. C. Gildersleeve, who described the injuries to Mr. Campbell, other witnesses to testify included several persons living in the immediate vicinity who came from their homes when they heard the crash.

These included Jeremiah Sullivan, Henry H. Ballou and Dona Ballou, the last named being the first there. He said that he heard the gears of the car shift from second into high as it drove away. Joseph Gauthier testified that he helped pick Emery Campbell up out of the gutter and Emery Campbell exclaimed several times: "I got my brother killed by my own fault. I grabbed him and pulled him back."

Constable Alfred Bacon of North Main street, living in the house, owned by Gauthier, testified he was sitting on his porch when he heard glass breaking and knew there was an accident. He ran out, tried unsuccessfully to stop a car that was going north, with the idea of chasing the Gareaux machine. The witness said he then stopped Charles Barber's car which turned around and went after the Gareaux car which they overtook about a mile away when they found it at a filling station getting gasoline. The left headlight was broken.

Mr. Bacon testified he asked Gareaux whether he had hit anything in Jewett City. Gareaux replied that he thought he had run into a hole. Bacon replied: "I guess you did. There are two men lying in the street." The witness said they then went back to where the accident happened and he saw that the left mudguard of the Gapeaux machine was bent. There was also gray hair on the Gareaux machine.

Officer Henry R. Veglard also told of the broken headlight and the bent fender on the Gareaux machine and said the gray hair was in the groove between the pan and the mudguard.

Joseph A. Viens testified he saw two cars going by, one north and one south. They had hardly passed each other five feet when he heard the crash of glass. On the car going north the witness said he saw the rear stop light appear for a moment, as if the car slowed up, but the light then went out and the car kept going.

Deputy Sheriff John T. Dolan of Jewett City testified to observing the broken headlight, bent fender and strands of gray hair in a crack in the fender.

Charles H. Barber told the court of the way his machine was stopped by Officer Bacon and turning around to follow after the Gareaux machine which they found at the filling station. Barber was driving back towards Jewett City on the Plainfield road, he said and had met a machine with one headlight.

At this point Attorney Shields made his motion to dismiss the case which was denied by Judge Avery after it had been argued by Attorney Shields and State Attorney Brown.

After a short recess, the defense side of the case was taken up.

TEACHERS' ANNUITY FUND HAS INCREASED $757,000

An increase of $757,000 in the total balance of the annuity and pension funds for 1927 was reported Thursday in a statement submitted at a meeting of the state teachers' retirement board in the state capitol at Hartford. The balance as of Dec. 31, 1927, totals $4,520,592, as compared with $3,763,001 in 1926. The annuity fund balance last year amounted to $3,549,337 as compared with $3,003,728 in 1926, and the pension fund totalled $971,254 as compared with $759,273 the previous year.

There are now 3,714 teachers retired in the state, and of this number 1,165 applied for eligibility to the retirement fund in 1927, 755 of them being Hartford teachers. During the year $23,630 was transferred from the annuity to the annuity reserve fund for 33 teachers who retired in 1927. For the same group the state set aside $174,661 for annual payments to them of $20,040.

The total receipts for 1927 gained by $234,833 over 1926 with $1,055,695 reported for 1927 as compared with $820,863 in 1926. The total payments also increased with a gain of $28,548. The payments in 1927 were $298,105 and in 1926 were $269,557. The total receipts last year, in fact, exceeded those of the whole period from Sept. 1, 1917, to Sept. 1, 1920, by $211,000. Members' assessment to the annuity fund forwarded by towns was nearly $600,000 in 1927, while annuities paid were over $7,000. The total retirement allowances paid last year was $100,000 with 239 teachers drawing payments. A pension fund of over $2,400 was also paid.

HOUSE AND CHURCH ON FIRE IN BOZRAH

The Bozrah Congregational church and the residence of Mrs. Charles Avery, of Bozrah street, Bozrah, were slightly damaged by separate fires a half hour apart early Friday evening. Both fires are said to have been caused by defective wiring in the power lines where the lines entered the buildings. The flames were extinguished by the Yantic fire department.

At 7:25 o'clock Friday evening the Yantic department went out on a telephone call for help in extinguishing the fire at the Avery residence. The fire was just starting to gain headway when the firemen arrived and the flames were quickly squelched with the aid of a few gallons of chemical. The resulting damage was small.

The department had hardly arrived back at the Yantic engine house when there was a second telephone call for help at Bozrah. The second call was for a fire which had broken out in the Bozrah church. The firemen made a fast run and used 50 gallons of chemical on the church blaze. It was necessary to rip off a section of the exterior of the building and pull down some of the plastering in order to get at the seat of the fire which was working its way up through the partition to the roof. It did not reach the roof, however, as the efficient work of the firemen kept the flames confined to one corner of the building. The damage is said to be about $200. One of the Yantic firemen was partially overcome by the dense smoke in one of the church rooms but was quickly revived when removed from the building.

(Special to The Bulletin)

Kurman, 38, employed as a manager, of 155 Audubon avenue, New York. Their marriage will take place January 15, in the Park Royal hotel here.

Miss King who is the daughter of Isidor M and Tillie Young King, was born in Norwich. Mr. Kurman born in London, is the son of Israel and Emilie Kurman.

ANGELOPOULOS GETS DIVORCE AND CUSTODY OF CHILDREN

In a decision handed down Friday, Judge Arthur F. Ells of the superior court grants divorce to Constantine Angelopoulos of this city from Athena Christos Angelopoulos and also gives the father the custody of their two children, but does not close the door against the mother obtaining a change in this order of custody at some future time.

The couple was married May 16, 1920 in this city and the divorce petition was brought on the ground of the conviction of the wife last week inthe criminal superior court on the charge of unfaithfulness.

In his memorandum of decision, Judge Ells says

The defendant pleaded guilty to adultery. She concedes that her husband is entitled to a decree of divorce, but asks the court to award her the sole custody of the children.

The fact of adultery, bad as it is, does not necessarily mean that she cannot have the children. Their welfare is the paramount consideration. If she had the ability and the disposition to give them proper care, and the husband was not in a position to do so, she should have them in spite of her crime. Mother love is a vital consideration. We therefore examine the evidence and determine what will be best for the children.

They are being well cared for now. The aunt in whose charge they are is a good woman, loves the children and gives them excellent care. Her husband has their welfare at heart. The husband and father is a proper person to have their custody. He loves them as a father should and seems determined that they shall be well brought up.

On the other hand, the evidence is overwhelming that while the defendant was committing the crime of adultery against her husband, she was committing the sin of indifference, carelessness and neglect towards her children. She has now moved to New York and proposes to take the children there.

With the father they are assured of good care, a father's love, with the constant attention of a kindly, well qualified woman.

If they are awarded to the mother she will take them to New York city. She will doubtless work during the day and they will be left in the care of persons this court has never seen, and concerning whom it knows nothing. She found it easy to neglect them in the past. She must prove that she is not likely to do so again.

I cannot gamble with the welfare of these children. I cannot substitute doubt and danger for certainty.

The custody is therefore awarded to the father. The mother should understand that this order of custody can be changed at any time upon proof that the welfare of the children warrants it. If she can prove at any time that she is better qualified and better able to care for the children than the father is, she is entitled to come into this court and ask for a modification of this decree.

SIX BUSES BURNED IN NEW LONDON FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 14—Every piece of the city's fire fighting apparatus was called out at 12:10 o'clock this morning for one of the worst fires that the department has combatted in a long time, when flames were discovered in the three story brick building on Water street owned by the Connecticut Power company and which houses the service station of the power company, the New London coach line, operating buses between New London and the submarine base, New London and Norwich and the suburban districts, together with the New London parking station.

The firemen fought the fire from Potter and Water streets, using 15 lines of hose, furnished by four pumpers to fight the flames. After fighting the blaze for an hour and a half it was under control. The principal damage is to the New London coach lines, for six of their eight buses were housed in this structure and where the fire originated and they are practically a total loss.

The loss may approximate from $75,000 to $100,000. How the fire originated is not known. During the fiercest of the fire 20 automobiles used by the service department of the Connecticut Power company were taken from the building by employes of the company. The fire was discovered by the watchman of the power company, who detected the odor of smoke. Investigating he discovered smoke making its way through the boiler room and going to Water street found flames in the coach line storage place and an alarm was rung in from Box 23, corner of State and North Bank streets. Five apparatus and Deputy Chief Calvin Edmunds responded. By that time the interior of that section occupied by the bus line was a roaring furnace. A second alarm for more help was sent in and with the arrival of Chief Thomas Shipman on the scene the third alarm was sent in, bringing the entire fighting force of the city to battle the flames. Pumpers were stationed on Water and State streets and the aerial ladder from Water street carried the 15 lines of hose to the burning building. The fire attracted thousands to the scene and the police were compelled to establish safety lines.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 13.—(AP)—Arthur V. Davis, president of the Aluminum Company of America testified today in the $45,000,000 damage suit brought by George D. Haskell of Springfield, Mass., against the estate of James B. Duke, late tobacco magnate.

Davis said his company, which the plaintiff claimed had a monopoly on the aluminum business in 1923, 1924, and 1925 produced 500,000,000 pounds of virgin aluminum and in 1925 the capital stock of the company was $20,000,000.

The suit is the outgrowth of an alleged reputation of a contract to mine and manufacture aluminum which Haskell claimed was entered into by himself and Duke. The case is being tried in federal court.

BIG HOUSE SEES POLINSKY KAYO BOOTS LARRY AT PASTIME AMATEURS

Between the anticipated presence of Ruby Goldstein and the bout between Boots Larry, erstwhile pride of Norwich, and Young Polinski fo Colchester, the Pastime A. C. packed them in at their show at Olympic hall last night.

Ruby came, got a big hand and gave the ladies and gentlemen present, a glimpse of his good looking self and his ability to referee the two last bouts. The socalled feature bout was rather a disappointment. Polinski stepped back from several wild swings of Boot's and let drive with a hard right that floored Larry for a six count in the first. After bounding to his feet apparently unhurt, the Colchester boy ripped home another right and Boots went down and out.

The card started off with the bout between Young Phillips of Westerly 153 pounds and Young Tony of Moosup 150 pounds. Phillips went down for an eight count in the second but managed to last out the fight to lose the decision.

The second bout brought together Young Hudson and the popular Mush Moriarity, two local lads. It was a slashing affair with Hudson unable to stand up under Mush's hard rights, and the towel was tossed in, thus giving Moriarty a technical K. O. in the last round, which boosted his fighting stock. Both boys weighed 144 pounds.

Young Wallace, the hard hitting bantam from Colchester was given a draw with Paul Bernier of Willimantic, but did not get up for the extra round, and no decision was awarded in the third fight.

Young Tough of New London outslugged Bobby Burns of Westerly and knocked him down for a short count in the second, and won the judge's decision in the fourth bout of the evening. Tough is a fast man and it is hoped that he will show his wares again. Burns put up an excellent fight, but the New London boy knew too much for him. This go was one of the best of the evening. Both weighed 120.

The fifth go was one of those fights where both men win and lose. Kid Dunn of Willimantic punched himself onto the floor several times trying to K. O. Young Mathews of Norwich. He hammered Mathews with every thing he had and took two falls in the second from light lefts from the Norwich boy. He did practically all the hitting but after being floored the crowd couldn't see why he should get the judges decision and received much booing. Both boys were mighty glad to hear the final bell. They both weighed 142 pounds.

Vic Darr of Norwich and Harry Hooper came together in the sixth, and as usual when Vic is in the ring, gave the fans plenty of action. The judges called it a draw but Harry wouldn't come out for the extra round. Each had weighed 135.

For the minute and a half that it lasted the next bout was a whirlwind affair. Stuffy Jackson of Norwich swarmed all ver Young Gravelin of Moosup, and before the Moosup boy could get started, he found himself in a dazed condition on the floor from a terrific right to the jaw. He took a nine count, got up and went out after the local colored boy. He struck a hard left to his midsection and crossed two rights to the Norwich boy's jaw which took all the fight out of him, and dropped him to the floor for a K. O. Gravelin is a popular performer as was evidenced by the hand that he received. Both boys weighed 158 pounds.

In the eighth bout Young Shankles of Norwich took it easy and had things about his own way against Young Fedus of Colchester. The farmer boy, however, was by no means disgraced as he put up an excellent fight against a man that knew too much for him, but the referee called a halt in the third and awarded the bout to the Norwich boy. They are heavyweights.

For real action between two good boys, the next bout was the feature of the card. Two clever, hard hitting lightweights in Young Metcalf of Westerly and Baby Jannis of Norwich stood practically toe to toe and fought every minute of the fight. With about a minute to go in the second half Metcalf fought Jannis to the ropes and crossed several rights and lefts to Jannis's head and body, and Jannis went down and was counted out. A return match between this pair would be welcome.

The tenth bout was between Boots Larry and Young Polinsky. An added bout gave the fans plenty of action between two local little fellows, Johnny Doss and Young Connell at 110 pounds. Johnny drew first blood, but that didn't deter Connell from wading right in and battering Doss around until the towel came sailing in to give Connell a win by a technical K. O.

All in all it was a very good card, and aside from the decision in the Mathews-Dunn encounter the big crowd of fans were well pleased.

Joe Connelly and Jackie Ross alternated in the refereeing with the exception of the last two bouts. Harold Plimpton kept time, and for deversity, the honors of being judges went to Alex Pasnik and Lawrence "Chick" Stanley, two well known men and great fight followers. John Callahan did the announcing.

N. Y. COMMISSION APPROVES TENDLER-HUDKINS MATCH

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—The welterweight match next Friday night at Madison Square Garden between Lew Tendler, of Philadelphia and Ace Hudkins, of Omaha, was approved today by the state athletic commission after an investigation into managerial connections of the fighters.

Bill Duffy, New York representative of Hudkins, was called before the ring solons as a result of reports that he also had an interest in Benny Bass, featherweight and stable-mate of Tendler's. Both Duffy and Phil Glassman, manager of Bass and Tendler, denied that Duffy had any connection with Glassman's stable.

KILLINGLY TAKES GAME FROM ROCKVILLE BY FORFEIT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 13.—With Killingly leading, 11 to 9, and four minutes left to play in the last quarter, Coach Chatterton, of Rockville High, called his team off the floor here tonight when Referee Paul Bitgood, of Connecticut Agricultural college, called a foul on Beebe for tripping. After allowing Rockville three minutes to return to the court, Referee Bitgood forfeited the contest to Killingly by a score of 2 to 0. Principal E. R. Warren, of Killingly, immediately announced severance of athletic relations between Rockville and Killingly until the authorities of Rockville apologize.

The game was featured by the defensive play of both teams which resulted in very little scbring. Although fast, the contest was clean, seven fouls being called on Rockville and six on Killingly. The summary:

AGGIES OPEN BASKETBALL SEASON THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 13.—The Connecticut Aggies' varsity basketball five, 1928 model, will be on display for the first time tomorrow night when the Tufts' college quintet from Medford, Mass. will be played here in the opening game of the season. The varsity contest will probably get under way about eight o'clock, directly following the preliminary game between the freshman fives of Tufts and Connecticut. The latter game is schedule to begin at seven o'clock.

On the eve of the season's first game, and one that promises a stiff test for the State college boys, Coach Louis Alexander has announced several radical shifts in his lineup. Captain Arthur V. Williams of Danielson has been moved from center to guard, and Lux Ellovich of Hartford has been promoted from the second team to the position vacated by Williams. Another promotion sees Harold Watson of Hartford moving up from the second five to team up with Ray Ryan of New Haven at forward. Henry Schildgren of Naugatuck, a veteran, still retains his guard berth.

The Duce II Wins Hearst Trophy.

MADISON, Wis., Jan. 3.—(AP)—rhe Duce II, won the first of the Hearst trophy ice boat races here today by gliding over the twenty mile lap windward and return course on Lake Mendota in 52 minutes. It is owned by Joe Lodge, Detroit. Miss America, local craft, finished second in 54:30, The Hylo, owned and sailed by J. C. Ball, of Kalamazoo, Mich., was third in 54:35, and the Princess II, a Madison boat, was fourth and last in 55:26.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

For the first time in many weeks eastern Connecticut's three semi-pro representatives, that is the home club won during the past week. Taftville beat Danielson at Parish hall, Plainfield beat the Fittons and Danielson beat the Hartford Guards.

The Y Seniors are meeting a team of which little is known in the U. S. S. Camden tonight. The locals are not as strong as last year's city champs but still they seem to have enough men left to get by with. Brown, Harris, Barber, Pineault and Grebe present a rugged lineup.

Gallagher of the Hartford Guards, of whom much was expected in the game against the Danielson Towners Thursday did little damage. He was reported as an All-State forward a few seasons back.

Ruby Goldstein, the well-known New York boxer who is at the Schiller camp in Lebanon for a week or so is reported to be some basketball player. He plays with teams about the metropolis, using it to get into shape for his bouts.

All the teams in the State league are now bolstering for the second-half race which starts next week. The New Haven Atlas had such a runaway this first half that the other managers are waisting little effort in guarding against such an occurence a second time.

The youthful St. Michael's team in New Haven sprung a big surprise the other night by beating Springfield Y. M. H. A.

The Plainfield Pros have a colorful club coming next Wednesday in Jim Thorpe's boys, the World's Famous Indians. It is an attraction that ought to jam the Community House. The great Indian all-round athlete coaches the team.

The C. F. C. are expected to start playing regular weekly games at the Y soon and the first one they bring ought to be the Hartford Central Baptist who holds a decision over the locals.

Once again it can be scribbled that nothing is heard of a City league for Norwich.

CHAPMAN TECH PROVES BETTER THAN ACADEMY

Chapman Tech played smarter basketball and won 24 to 17 over a plodding, erratic Academy team Friday night at the Y gym. The locals showed to poor advantage, making many mistakes, one big one being inability to convert fouls.

With the exception of Les Pingree and possibly Red Fagan, the Red and Whitesters did much that they shouldn't have and as a result the New London team held the upper hand for about three quarters of the way and towards the end of the game had things all to themselves.

Save for one brief spurt in the second quarter the local schoolboys were not the team that they can be. After being badly outscored (but not so seriously outplayed for 5 of Tech's points were on fouls) in the first quarter, which ended 9 to 2, the Academy came back with a fierce attack that carried them one point past the invaders at 12 to 11 about mid-way through the period. For the next few minutes the teams slashed up and down the floor until Tech knotted things up at the half with a foul shot.

Tech got the lead soon after the second half opened but lost it once before stepping away to a third point lead with the third period well underway The Academy narrowed this down to 18-17 at the end of the quarter. This third period was about the hardest fought of the game with both teams bruising about considerably.

Tech made the last quarter all her own and with slightly more than half the session to go assured victory with some neat baskets.

One reason for the defeat lies in the inability to convert fouls. Out of the thirteen tries the locals could make but one while in 11 chances the Whalers threw in six points. No doubt, much of this is due to Tech's big advantage in experience, this being her eighth game while the Academy was playing only its second. Tech's squad has been out since mid-November while the Academy heard the first call less than a month ago.

For Tech Bill Nield again could not be stopped with any degree of consistency and he scored eight points this time. McKelvie and Quinn were also good while for the Academy Les Pingree, with 13 points not only led the scorers but played a nice game.

C. F. C. Wins

In the preliminary the C. F. C. stepped into another victory in trimming the Westerly Collegians 39 to 23. The locals had little real trouble with their opponents and for most of the game they looked good. Zeke Leffingwell played a nice game as did Neil and Brown while Seville and Dabrowski were good for the visitors.

In other games the Gamma club beat the Norwich Town Congregational church teams 27 to 16 in a Senior Church league game and the Pioneers beat the Rovers.

Tourtellotte Here Tonight

Tonight the Academy meets Tourtellotte high of North Grosvenordale at the Y gym. Little is known of the visitors but the locals are expected to go better against them than they did against Tech last night. In the preliminary the Y Seniors open their season in meeting the U. S. S. Camden.

LANDIS HAS NOTHING TO SAY ABOUT HORNSBY

Chicago, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, is no longer among the missing, but his official opinion, if any, on the celebrated case of Rogers Hornsby, still is.

The commissioner appeared at his office today and was immediately surrounded by reporters inquiring in regard to his plan for sudden invasions of New York, St. Louis, Boston and other centers of activity in the Hornsby case.

"Now, about this Hornsby affair," began the asembled scribes, after the commissioner reported that he had been in Indiana, not New York, for the last couple of days.

"Now, gentlemen," began Landis, "You are all my friends. The experts of the entire big league circuits are all my friends. Since I have returned to my office I have read with a great deal of interest your explanations of the Hornsby case.

"It would be cruel of me to attempt to add anything to all these explanations. That would be poor return for our friendship, now wouldn't it."

NOVELTY RACE PLAN AT MILLROSE CARNIVAL

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP)—A novelty for New York track and field fans, a two-mile "miss and out" race, will be among the features of the Millrose indoor carnival at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 2. It will stimulate competition from start to finish, for the last two men will be dropped at the end of the third lap and one each on succeeding laps until the expected field of 22 starters is reduced to four finalists for the last three laps of the 22-lap grind.

A good field has been gathered for the event, including Verne Booth of the Millrose A. A., former Johns Hopkins star; Johnny Romig, Penn State and Olympic veteran, now representing the Meadowbrook club of Philadelphia; Leo Lermond and Julius Gilbert of the Boston A. A.; Jimmy Loucks, formerly of Syracuse, Ed Kirby, ex-Cornell runner and now wearing the Newark A. HEENEY AND SHARKEY FIGHT TWELVE HARD ROUNDS TO UNPOPULAR DRAW

By Alan J. Gould
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Apparently believing that Heeney's bull dog aggressiveness had given him the edge, the crowd of 17,000 onlookers set up a chorus of boos and jeers after the decision but the critics' gallery at the ring side gave a majority opinion in favor of the Boston Sailor.

It was a close fight from start to finish but a shock to the critics who had installed Sharkey a heavy favorite as well as a disappointment to those expecting the bout to develop an outstanding contender for Gene Tunney's crown.

Sharkey gained the draw by a fighting comeback in the last few rounds, after Heeney had piled up a substantial early margin on points, but the now "Silent Sailor" was far from the cool, confident and ruthlessly efficient fighting machine of a year ago.

Heeney, battling with bull dog grit and ferocity, forced the going from start to finish, working inside Sharkey's defense to punish the sailor about the mid-area that withstood such a pummeling from Dempsey last July. Short-arm left hooks and right uppercuts were the best weapons of the chunky New Zealander as he tore in with a two-fisted attack.

From the third through the seventh round, Heeney kept plugging away with telling effect. He cuffed, wrestled and harried his taller, slightly heavier and more experienced opponent. In close, Heeney was at his best while on the occasion, in the fifth round he landed a vicious right hander that sent Sharkey flying back to the ropes. This was one of the sharpest blows of the fight and the only one that came close to accounting for a knockdown. Sharkey went to his knees in the tenth round but it was from the force of a partly missed right hander to Heeney's head.

Heeney, unable to keep up his gruelling pace, was forced back and made a target for sharp right crosses and stiff lefts to the body in the closing five rounds. Sharkey still found difficulty locating his mark at times and he was slow afoot, but he outboxed the Anzac and landed the sharper blows.

Heeney, always willing to mix and seeking close quarters constantly, found Sharkey's chin more difficult to reach as the fight wore on.

Likewise he was more often tied up in a few bow knots by the Sailor as they clinched, but few times was either boxer able to sustain much of an advantage. It was nip and tuck in most of the rounds.

The official vote of the two judges and referee, Jack Denning, will not be disclosed until tomorrow but expert opinion was at wide variance tonight. Most of the critics appeared to give Sharkey a slight edge, but few registered more than seven rounds in his favor, while others scored an edge for Heeney.

If anything it was a moral victory for the New Zealander, who from a crude and little known fighter a year ago has developed into one of the most formidable heavyweights on the list. Heeney, too, was on the short end of the betting which was reported at the ringside to be 2 to 1, in Sharkey's favor before the bout.

Sharkey, in his comeback, regained little if any of the prestige he lost when knocked out by Dempsey last year.

In the face of so indecisive and unsatisfactory a bout between two of the top-ranking contenders, it appears probable that considerably more eliminating will be in order before another opponent is selected for Tunney.

The crowd fell somewhat below expectations, numbering 16,948 paid admissions, while the "gate" of $161,031 was more than $20,000 under the Garden and indoor record.

The Preliminaries

Lou Bogash, veteran light heavyweight from Bridgeport, Conn., fought to a draw with "Sunny Jim" Williams, California Negro, in a 10-round preliminary. Both weighed 170.

The ten round semi-final resulted in a victory for Joe Selyra, young Dayton, Ohio, light heavyweight over Yale Okun, of New York. Sekyra, the aggressor all the way had trouble penetrating Okun's defense at first but battered and cut the New Yorker in the last few rounds with a slashing attack. Okun tired and was on the verge of a knockout in the tenth round. Both weighed 173 1-2.

In a four round preliminary, Larry Creighton, 184, of Danbury, Conn., won the decision from Mike Sankovitz, 189 1-2 of Patterson, N. J.

FUCHS SAYS LANDIS WILL NOT INVESTIGATE DEAL

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—President Emil E. Fuchs, of the Boston Braves, tonight broke a three-day silence on the Rogers Hornsby trade from New York to Boston with a 1,500 word statement in which he spiked rumors of an investigation of the deal by Kenesaw Mountain Landis by revealing that organized baseball's high commissioner knew all about it before it was carried out.

At the same time the Braves' chief executive spiritedly defended Hornsby from "a campaign of reflection and villification" which has followed "the conjectures, surmises and guesses as to why the transfer was made" and took occasion to reiterate that the deal was the result of a fixed Braves policy never to "dispose of a player of ability for money consideration."

HORNSBY DID NOT "WELSH" ON GAMBLING DEBTS

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, baseball star, and his attorney, William F. Fahey, today issued a statement denying that Hornsby had "welshed" on his gambling losses, mentioned in dispatches as a possible reason for trading for the player from the New York Giants to the Boston Braves.

Fahey, who prepared the statement, declared he and not Hornsby was responsible for the technical set up in Hornsby's behalf in the recent suit of Frank L. Moore, Kentucky betting commission, to collect $92,000 from Hornsby.

The defense was that the transactions were in the nature of gambling and therefore inadmissable at law, the jury found against Moore.

The attorney said his investigation convinced him Hornsby not only did not owe Moore anything, but that Moore owed him $9,700. Hornsby, he said, had declared he would "pay a gambling debt as quickly as any other."

ROBERTI GETS TECHNICAL K. O. OVER MUNN

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—(AP)—Roberti Roberti, heavyweight champion of Italy, scored a technical knockout over Monte Munn of Nebraska here tonight when he knocked Munn out of the ring with a series of left hooks to the head.

The knockout came at the end of the sixth round of their scheduled ten rounder. Munn had just climbed back through the ropes as the bell for the seventh round sounded when Munn's manager announced he would be unable to continue.

In the semi-final, Al Friedman of Boston won the verdict over Eddie Callahan of Nashua, N. H. in ten hard fought rounds.

HUTCHINSON LEADS FIELD WITH 67 AT LONG BEACH

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 13.—(AP)—A sensational 67, four under par, placed Willard Hutchinson, Pasadena golfer, at the forefront of the field today in the 18-hole opening round of the $2500 Long Beach Open Golf tournament.

They were Bill Mehlhorn, John Black of Oakland, Calif., Leonard Schmutte of Lima, Ohio, Ernest Martin of Los Angeles, and Alex Wilmont, unattached.

Several nationally famous golfers were nosed out of par figures by six golfers who turned in the 71 score. The latter were Wick Linares of Long Beach, Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, Tony Manero of New York city, Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., Victor Owens of Palos Verdes, Calif., and Hutt Martin, of Reno, Nev.

GORMAN WINS ON POINTS FROM GERMAN

POETRY

Prisum Mobile

What mean the waters—their stubborn flow?
The fleeing clouds forever fleeting?
The run of years? Eternal So,
Slow down, slow down!

What mean the footfalls on the street—
Passion's wars—men striving, wanting?
My friends! A word! With feverish feet,
They keep on—going.

What meaning in a race grown old,
The tramp of nations—Passing, dying?
Are we to Mechanic Nature sold?
No one does hear.

Time, stop! Our dreams and all that is dear—
Senseless time!—our lives, our loves are fleeting!
And then I heard a voice, quite near,
As if all living things were speaking:
"I am the Space-Time of each year and sun,
Abiding in the passing. With Me, and now,
Move thou. My steps will moor thee to right meanings,
Beheld them written on my brow—
They make us one."
—Robert M. Wernaer.

Picture

Woods and corn fields, a little brown—
The picture must not be overbright,
Yet all in the golden and gracious light
Of a cloud, when the summer sun is down.
Alway and alway, night and morn,
Woods upon woods, with fields of corn
Lying between them, not quite sere,
And not in the full thick leafy bloom
When the wind can hardly find breathing room
Under their tassels.—Cattle near,
Biting shorter the short green grass,
And a hedge of sumach and sassafras,
With bluebirds twittering all around—
(Ah, good painter, on can't paint sound!)
These and the house where I was born,
Low and little and black and old
With children, many as it can hold,
Heads and shoulders clear outside,
And fair young faces all ablush:
Perhaps you may have seen, some day
Roses crowding the self-same way,
Out of a wilding wayside bush.
—Alice Cary, in "An Order for a Picture."

WESTERLY

MANAGER FINLEY'S CASE CONTINUED FOR ONE WEEK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 13—It was 6:45 this afternoon, when Judge Oliver H. Williams adjourned the session of the Third District court, whose rooms had been crowded, both morning and afternoon. The interest came in automobile law violations charged against Eugene Picard of White Rock, operator of an automobile near Westerly Pumping station Monday evening, when three men were seriously injured.

Just previous to the closing of the day's session the case came up of State, Thomas E. Brown, chief of police of Westerly vs. John B. Finlay, manager of the United Theatre, presented on a complaint that on Sunday morning, January 1, 1928, he did publicly for hire and advantage to himself promote a show and vaudeville performance on the first day of the week, against the status of the state." Manager Findlay pleaded not guilty when represented by Attorney John J. Dunn, who asked for a week's continuance. Judge Williams continued the case one week and held the defendant in $500 bail for which Crist Ferraro became surety.

In the case of the Granite Street Garage vs. Joseph Lupinazzo, an action to collect a bill for automobile repairs and supplies. Judge Williams gave judgment for the plaintiff to recover $104.51 and costs.

New writs entered were Merchants' Box company vs. James H. Blackler. Continued two weeks. Citrus Product company vs. James T. Blackler. Continued two weeks. International Cork company vs. James H. Blackler. Continued two weeks. Jury trial was claimed in the above cases.

State, Thomas E. Brown vs. Roserio Tasca. The defendant was charged January 11th with obstructing Police Officer Frank E. Knight, who was engaged in making a search for liquor on the premises of Pasquale Salimano. Tasca pleaded not guilty. The case was continued one week, with bonds of $2,000 furnished by Pasquale Salimano.

State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. Louis Salimano. Salimano was charged with obstructing an officer. He entered into recognizance in the sum of $2,000 for his appearance next Friday, with Pasquale Salimano bondsman.

State, Thomas E. Brown, vs. Antonio Magneto, of Providence. The defendant pleaded guilty to a violation of a Westerly town ordinance, when on December 30th, he operated his auto at the junction of Oak and High streets and passed to the left of a traffic beacon. Judge Williams fined him $2 and costs.

State, William L. Kay, deputy chief of police of Hopkinton, vs. William Laing, 26, of Providence. The accused was charged with driving a seven ton truck at a rate of speed greater than reasonable January 6th down the steep hill into Hope Valley about 4 p. m., when school children were passing. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and costs.

There were two complaints against Eugene Picard of White Rock, preferred by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown as a result of an automobile accident January 9th. The defendant was driving a Studebaker sedan from the Lorraine Manufacturing plant in Pawcatuck, where he was employed to his home in White Rock. With him were Jesse Barber, Mrs. Jessie Tucker, Miss Julia Sullivan and Miss Lucy Staplin, all of White Rock, who were returning to their homes. When the defendant's car skidded, they were struck with the right side of the auto John Radigan, 77 Main street, White Rock; George Greenman, 16 Main street, White Rock; and John Cornell of the North Stonington road, injuring all seriously. The first complaint charged the reckless operation of his automobile and the second, that he operated an automobile for conveyance of passengers for hire, against the town ordinance. Pleas of not guilty were entered by the defendant. Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, who attended John Radigan, Dr. Michael H. Scanlon who attended John Cornell and Lieut. Geo. H. Chaplin testified. The defendant, Picard, testified that he had proceeded through Liberty street and Stillman avenue over the bridge and up Canal street and saw the men side by side about five or six feet ahead of him, when he applied brakes and the car skidded, knocking the men into the gutter. After the arguments Judge Williams found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $100 and costs.

On the charge of the operation of an automobile as a conveyance, the occupants were witnesses, who testified that Picard had made no charge but they had paid him $1 a week for the accommodation of being taken from White Rock to Pawcatuck and return. Attorney Dunn in his argument warned the judge and public at large to beware of paying him for gasoline if he should take them to Providence, saying that he would have them at their peril. Judge Williams found it was transportation for fire within the town of Westerly, and imposed a fine of $2 and costs. Appeal was taken and surety of $1,000 was furnished on each case, with Michael McCarthy bondsman.

The following transfer has been recorded in the town clerk's office: Jan. 12. Thomas Fisher to Floyd A. Kinney and wife, Etta A. Kinney, land with improvements on the south side of the Boston Post road and lying along the westerly boundary wall of the Welch and Coy farm property.

The Girls' Friendly society of Christ Episcopal church held its annual meeting Thursday evening at the Tea Room, after a chicken pie supper. Reports given by the officers and department heads showed a most successful year. The officers elected are: President, Miss Edith Ellis; members' chairman, Miss Dorothy Krebs; vice members' chairman, Miss Louise Carr; secretary, Miss Doris Hartridge; treasurer, Miss Marian Schwenk; department heads, Missions, Miss Louise Rose; social service, Miss Ethel McKenzie; literary, Miss Lillian Thorp; Holiday House, Miss Mildred McKenzie; decorative art, Miss Jennie Thorp; publicity, Miss Lillian Russell. An expression of appreciation was given the retiring president, Mrs. Herbert Cooke, and greeting to the new president, Miss Ellis.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 13.—Robinson Hindle, of 11 Tower street, suffered injuries to his back Friday morning on the Westerly-Bradford road, his Dodge sedan being run into by an Eastern Dairy truck of Tait Bros. Hindle had just come from a house on the left side of the highway about a mile from Bradford to his auto parked off the metal surface of the road on the left side, and entering his car drove across the roadway to the right side where but his two left wheels remained on the hard surface. As brakes were applied on the heavy truck to slow down, the rear end skidded and swung, hitting the Dodge so that the rear end was cut down and two panels demolished. Officer Michael H. Curtin was notified and Officer Leroy H. Norman went to investigate. Both men were taken to the Westerly police station and then were accompanied by Officer Norman to the office of Dr. J. Gordon Anderson, where Hindle was given medical attention. No summons was issued.

Mrs. Elizabeth Troland spent the week-end with her aunt in Meriden.

Mrs. Walter Hayes, of Canaan, is visiting for a few days with Mrs. Clinton Goodwin.

Gov. Jonathan Trumbull Chapter, D. A. R., held its January meeting in the parlors of the Congregational church.

Wednesday there was a meeting of the Farm Bureau at the home of Mrs. A. C. Hogle. Mrs. Robynson, the leader, showed the members how to make chicken croquettes, Parkerhouse rolls, cinnamon buns and quick breads. Dinner was served at noon. Twenty nine were present.

Joseph Aspinall, who has been in Hartford for some time, spent the week-end at his home here.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

JUNIOR AMERICAN MECHANICS

Buckingham council, No. 14, met on Wednesday evening in the hall at the Eagles home, with Councilor Sidney Vars presiding. During the evening the officers for the coming term were installed. The officers are as follows: Junior past council, S. Vars; councilor, H. Bradford; vice councilor, F. Wilson; recording secretary, R. W. Chapman; F. Pierce, conductor, G. Gates; warden, F. Handy; inside sentinel, A. Vars; outside sentinel, Wm. Shapple; chaplain, Wm. Stapleton. Also new men were assigned for the committees as follows: E. Lesseman, chairman of social committee; F. Pierce, captain of the degree team; F. Handy, chairman of press committee. After the new officials were installed it was voted that an open meeting be held Wednesday the 18th, but later on in the evening it was decided to postpone the open meeting until a later date. During the next six months the degree team will have plenty of work to do as the council is putting on a drive for new members. Several applications have been placed in the recording secretary's hands already. The next meeting will be held Wednesday the 18th.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

At a meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 63, held at their rooms on Shetucket street, Tuesday evening, Deputy Grand Chief Ranger James H. Casey with the aid of Worthy Herald Joseph Portelance installed the following officers of the court for the ensuing year:

Chief ranger, Joseph Callahan; sub chief ranger, Albert Thorp; senior woodward, Joseph Riley; junior woodward, Henry Carbery; senior beadle, James Carey; junior beadle, Frank McCone; lecturer, John Atterbury; recording secretary, Henry Clement; financial secretary, William Ryan; trustee, James H. Casey; treasurer, William H. Callahan.

An interesting incident is the fact that this is the 37th year that Brother William H. Callahan has been treasurer of the local Court of Foresters, which is a mighty fine record.

Following the installations there were remarks by Deputy Chief Ranger James H. Casey, and the regular business was transacted.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

The well attended meeting of Norwich grange, No. 172, on Wednesday evening in Steiner hall was presided over by Past Master Arthur W. Avery in the absence of Worthy Master Ralph Marsh who was attending the state grange session in Hartford. Reports were rendered by the treasurer, and the chairmen of the finance, crockery and silver committees; also by Worthy Lecturer Althea Brown to whom a rising vote of thanks was passed for her fine work in the past two years, Norwich grange having been awarded the state prize for two successive years by State Lecturer Lenny Whitham. This gives Norwich a high rating and makes it one of the best in the state. At the state grange meeting in Hartford Wednesday a beautiful string of pearls was presented to Mrs. Brown as her prize.

In the business part of the grange meeting one candidate was obligated in the first and second degrees and two in the third and fourth degrees by Past Master Avery.

Albert Birdsey was in charge of the lecturer's part of the programme, conducting a social along poverty lines and Mary Peckham was given the prize for the best costume of that character. There were recitations by Frank T. Maples and Irving Bushnell, a reading by Mrs. Maurice, and a number of group songs which caused much merriment. The closing song was an amusing parody on Till We Meet Again. There was an attendance of about 70 at the meeting.

At the state grange meeting in Hartford State Lecturer Mrs. Lenny B. Whitham of Groton presented a report of her work in 1927. The year was one of great advance in grange work in this state, she said. A record of the extensive community work by granges in all parts of the state was an interesting part of the address. Nearly $2,500 was expended in community work by the granges.

"There was a growth and interest in nearly every grange in the state," said the lecturer. "Much progress was made in three lines: Increased community work, increase in average grange attendance, reports by grange lecturers to the state lecturer."

Mrs. Whitham included a list of prizes awarded to several granges. She made forty visits to granges and traveled, by request, 4,252 miles.

State Secretary Welton reported the present membership is 18,059, which Mr. Welton said was the largest he had ever known and was a record. Included in this number are 1,648 new members in 1927 and to which number a slight addition would be made from grange reports not yet in hand. The Pomona membership as of January 1, 1928, is 5,717. Four new juvenile granges were organized. The secretary received from sales of supplies on which no profit is made, $314.90 and from degree fees for the subordinate, Pomona and sixth degree, $1,889 and from dues, $7,797.18.

Treasurer St. John reported the balance on hand January 1, 1927, $4,162.62, and receipts during the year as follows: Notes, $125; interest, $236.36; secretary, $10,511.94; sale of liberty bonds, $2,000; total $12,035.92. The expenditures during the year included the purchase of ten shares of the capital stock of the National Grange Mutual Liability company for $1,003.84 and other sums for the expenses of the 1927 annual session of the state grange and other routine expenses. The balance on hand January 1, 1928, was $3,920.64.

The Man Who's Square.

There is something in the twinkle
Of an honest fellow's eye
That can never be mistaken
And can never be passed by!
So his station high or lowly,
There's that dauntless, upright air,
That convinces all beholders
That the man they see is
"Square."

Heaven gives such men influence
Over those they daily meet;
If they see a fallen Brother
They will help him on his feet.
Make the "Sneaks" a bit uneasy,
Make the "False" act kind of fair,
For the greatest rogue on record
Will respect the man who's

LIFE AS IT IS TODAY

Dear Social Corner Editor and Members: Greetings to all! If I am not too late. Trust every one had a most perfect time over the holidays. I, for one, was happily remembered. These holidays are perfectly grand but like everything else, there is a reaction, and today, it must have come to me. I sit here thinking that we live energetic lives! We have a sense of humor, all of us. Life is a strange mixture of war, love, toil, hate, rest, triumph, defeat, jealousy, rage and murder, all are about us. Read our daily newspapers. In some sections wars are raging, cold blooded murders are being committed elsewhere. The fires of life are continuous. It is hard to realize all that is going on about us. The passing of time brings changes and decay to everything in the universe.

They tell me where the sun sets on the Pacific coast, the after theatre crowds are dining in New York. Chinamen are toiling at mid-day, Serbians are watching the sun rise, while London is asleep. And what about us? Many of us are trying to keep up with the times, turning night into day also, or two thirds of it. The people of today are trying to seek all there is in life, love, adventure and success, for life to us all is short, at the longest. Little do we realize while we are asleep the chemical qualities of the air are at work changing the very timbers of the houses in which we live. Millions of tiny insects are eating away the strength of man's creations. Even rust is corroding the ironwork of our great buildings and our bridges. Let us all bring an intimate view of life to ourselves. Sunday mornings, at the Backus hospital, one of our interested readers and writers in our Social Corner passed on to her reward. After suffering for several years She was a widow of the '61 war, a member of the Rebekahs of Providence. So little do we realize who must answer the roll call and cross the bar. By the way, I want to sincerely thank the one who so kindly mailed me from Norwich The Novelty Potted Plant Calendar. If that member had made his or her self known, I would gladly return the favor. Will say it is most highly appreciated. Only regret I cannot repay the compliment. Little do some realize how much a little token like that is appreciated.

Nonsopretty: I did not even think to hang up my stocking for my time was too occupied, helping our community tree off. It was a wonderful success. Little can you realize what that tree meant to those kiddies. It was well worth every minute of time and labor that was put into it.

Joan: I see you are among us, as I read your letter only a few days ago. Trust you are as happy as a lark.

Peggy Alder: Where are you! Surely, the snow has not drifted you in. Somewhere near you is a district school. Years ago it was called Checkerberry or Wintergreen district. I have a very dear friend who used to teach there, and she also while there formed a singing bee or social club which met weekly and became very popular. Perhaps you might write an interesting letter about that district. Will ring off wishing all readers a most wonderful and prosperous year.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Dear Social Corner Sisters: How are you all these fine days? First we are all frozen up and then we are thawing out. Suppose most of you have plenty of mud. We have some up our way. We have not much use for sleds and sleighs this winter. I guess the snow man must have been on a vacation. We all spent Christmas with dad this year. A pretty lonesome Christmas without the mother who always made everything so pleasant for us. But we must all bear our own sorrows. We hope to spend many more years with dad, and we want to make his home our meeting place whenever we can. There is no place like home.

Have not been able to get to any Social Corner picnic yet but hope to in the spring.

I see we have quite a few new members, and hope to meet them all some day. Have another good recipe for cake and perhaps some of the sisters would like it.

Minute Cake: One cup sugar, 1 1-2 cups flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder. Beat one egg in cup and fill up with milk, and beat all together; add one spoon melted butter and flavoring. Bake in quick oven in loaf or layers.

Hope some will try this recipe, as we like it very much.

Ann Tenna: Your advice entitled Let's Travel Slower is great. Hope a good many will heed it, as time goes fast enough at the best.

Best wishes and good luck to all Corner members.

USING PILLOW SHAMS

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Large pillow shams seem to be the thing of the past. As I had some and I didn't want to throw them away I thought they could be of some more good service yet. I had three pairs. From one pair I cut out a Gertrude slip for a little girl of two years, the front piece out of one sham and the back out of the other. This pair was of good linen. The hemstitched end I ripped open and rolled it up for mending or for cuts.

The other two pair were made different, with tucks and ruffles on the edge so couldn't use so good in cutting a slip so took the middle of them which were 18 inches square and cut out handkerchiefs, and made a narrow hem just right for boy's size. They are real good for dress up handkerchiefs. The ruffles are cut off and rolled up for future use.

Here is my way of making graham pudding which more people ought to use this time of the year.

Graham Pudding: 1-3 cup molasses, 1 cup milk, 1-4 cup butter, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 2 cups Graham flour, 1 cup raisins stoned and cut in pieces. To the butter and the milk, molasses and the egg; then flour, baking powder and salt, sifted together thoroughly and the raisins. Turn into a buttered mould and steam two and one-half hours. Serve with orange sauce made of 3 egg whites, 1 cup powdered sugar, 2 oranges, juice and rind. Beat the whites of the eggs until stiff, add the suger and beat, then add the orange rind and fruit juice.

What nice weather we are having right along. Best of wishes for our editor and all the Social Corner members.

January 17—Club No. 6 meets in Mechanics hall, Westerly.

READY FOR CLUB NO. 6'S MEETING

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The January meeting of Club 6 will be held in Mechanic's hall, over the Mohican store, on Broad street, Westerly, on Tuesday, Jan. 17. Lady Lou is to be the hostess so come all who can and have a good time together. Every one must bring dishes and something to eat, visitors as well as members.

Commuter: Have just heard of your trouble. Frances L. and myself have been spending today with O. D. and Beth C., and they had a letter from New Rochelle telling about it. Funny to get the news from there, wasn't it? You must have had an awful mess. I am still unsettled.

Rose Lee: Wish you could have been with us today.

Egiantine: Was glad to see your letter in The Corner, as I was thinking of you the other day. I came across the picture of your grandmother's house the other day. If you ever meet me anywhere and recognize me, do speak as I doubt if I would know you, having seen you only once.

I want to thank a Social Corner Member for the pretty calendar I again received this year. I do wish you would make yourself known.

Guess I better be more careful in signing my letter this time, as last time it read E. L. H. Here's hoping to see a crowd on the 17th.

KANSAS CAKE

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: My very best wishes I'm sending and my heartiest greetings too. May the New Year prove the happiest and the best you ever knew.

Kansas Cake: One cup of shortening, three eggs, three cups of pastry flour, three teaspoons of baking powder, one-half pound of shredded citron, one and one-quarter cups of sugar, one cup of milk, one quarter teaspoon of salt, one half teaspoon of grated nutmeg, two cups of seeded raisins, one quarter cup of shelled walnuts, chopped. Work the shortening and the sugar together until thoroughly blended. Add the eggs and beat until very light and creamy. Then add the milk. Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt, and then mix with the raisins, shredded citron and the nuts. Stir this into the liquid mixture and mix thoroughly. Pour into a well greased and floured bread pan, and bake in a moderate oven for 50 minutes.

Turn upside down to cool. Remove from pan and cover with a creamy white icing. Decorate with candied cherries and leaves cut from green citron peel.

Creamy Icing: Beat one egg white very slightly and add two tablespoons of evaporated milk and one teaspoon of melted butter. Gradually beat in one cup of sifted confectioners sugar. Beat the mixture for two or three minutes. Add one teaspoon of cold water and then beat in about another cupful of sugar or enough to make a thick creamy icing. Flavor as desired.

Nonsopretty: You see I have made a good start for the New Year. Hope you are warm and cozy. I was reading in the paper, that it was colder in the south than in the New England states. I am glad I stayed here.

RECALLED OLD STORIES.

Dear Social Corner, Editor and Members: Happy New Year to all. I suppose there are many who have made resolutions for the new year, which will be broken before the year is up.

As it's been a rainy, lonesome day, I sat down and glanced my Bulletin and Cooley's Weekly over. Saw some items in them which were very interesting to me about the Watkins Murder which occurred about March 22, 1829—Oliver Watkins and his wife, Roxanna (Adams) Watkins.

A few years ago while working in North Sterling, I had the chance to visit at the house, also going down to where the mill used to stand. And how many times have I heard my grandfather tell how, when 12 years old, he walked way from Foster, R. I., over to Brooklyn, to the hanging and back again and in the future married one of his daughters for his first wife; my mother was at the bed side of the youngest daughter when she died. She was over 80. Mr. Watkins has a grandson who is living today.

Daisy Dean: I thank you. Will try to be at the club meeting, if I know soon enough before hand.

Best wishes to all.

ARTIFICIAL FLOWERS.

NEW YEAR GREETINGS.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: I cannot let the new year go by without wishing you all a happy New Year. I have been sending greetings and receiving many packages, etc., for which I am thankful.

I am staying with a woman, and am thankful I can get to meeting, though I have to walk a mile. I am thankful for all the blessings the Lord gives me.

May it be a happy New Year for all of you all the way through.

CALISTA.

WORKING UP A QUARTER OF BEEF.

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Happy New Year everybody. Many thanks to the sister that sent me such a very pretty calendar. It was nice of her who ever she may be.

I am going to tell you of a piece of work I have just finished. We had a quarter of beef to take care of and as it was a good big one I had quite some job. I had help getting it out up, of course, but that was some tussle, then I corned about 40 pounds with no bone or fat on it. I canned ten cans of plain meat, six of pressed beef, six of steaks, three of meat loaf, two of suet, two of tallow; made mince meat and canned 6 cans, and various kinds of soups and canned 20 of them, hat fat enough for plenty of soap, gave the bones to the dog and chickens and had such a little bit that I couldn't use that I weighed it and found it a bit under two pounds. Had two minor cuts and one glass jar broken. As I used a pressure cooker I saved some time, but can't say how many hours it took me. As Pypetheump had a lot more meat I'll take care of when I do. I hope she will tell us her experience.

Nicia: My company had to stay a day longer on account of the storm that time. I think she was up to her old place prospecting that day. Thanks to the many that so kindly remembered me with Christmas cards. You too, Whirlwind.

MILKY WAY.

GIRL SCOUT WORK

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: When my beautiful "potted plant calendar" arrived last week I wanted to say "thank you" right away. Was reminded of a classmate of mine in Hartford, who said when she was a little girl and her mother came to punish her for not doing what she had been told to do, she always said: "I was just going to." So I was just going to write when this special prompting came to me. Each year the calendar seems more lovely and full of kindliness. It does give us the feeling of having a wealth of friendship to belong to this wonderful circle.

I want to welcome the new members to Club 6. I wonder if Pine Cone has any connection with the Girl Scout troop with that name in this vicinity. Mountain Laurel is our troop here. Miss Standen has been a great help in our work since her arrival last September. Not only her ability to carry on the club work but her personality is an inspiration to our girls. One who has not done that sort of work cannot realize the amount of energy and perseverance it takes to be a good leader. The specialists from Storrs whom she brings with her are also very fine. Miss MacDonald was thrilling in her health demonstrations and we have more than one aspiring to be a nurse now. Our troop expects soon to establish its third patrol, and one member who has gone to a distant city is arranging to start a patrol among her friends.

One of the things about Scouting that I like is the inclusiveness to all girls, according to their willingness and ability to work. It appeals tremendously to the girls, and to their best qualities, to develop them. With best New Year wishes,

THIRTY-TWO.

GREETINGS FROM ANN TENNA.

Dear Editor and Everybody: Alone with my thoughts—Yesterday I received by mail a lovely plant calendar, so to thank the one who was so kind and thoughtful, I must write a few words of appreciation to let them know I am very pleased with it.

Nonesopretty: No, I haven't heard a peep from the felines so far this winter. I hardly think there are many in this vicinity. I only know of one his name is "Buddie B," a very intelligent and well behaved cat, and knows enough to mind his own affairs, which is far better than some folks do.

A Sunday school teacher asked the one interested child in the class this question. "What is life?" "I don't know what it is," replied Sam, "but when you haven't got any more of it—you're dead."

A HOROSCOPE

Dear Social Corner: The tenth of January was H. T.'s birthday so I am sending your horoscope. You possess a keen mind and it is true that when you are in your happiest mood you are quite original. You want to keep your mind occupied as otherwise you will get blue and discouraged. You are one that can shoulder responsibilities and the more you assume these it will bring to you the bright side of life, also that it will bring the best out that is in you. You must encourage friendship, remembering that it is one of God's best gifts. There is one thing, you have a tendency to make light of your friends when all is going well with you. Try and use them as well as you do your home folks, then you will be on the victory side.

HOROSCOPE

AS YOU THINK, YOU ARE

Dear Social Corner Editor, Sisters and Readers: Did you ever stop to think that self freedom is the essence of human happiness. If you lack self-control it is because you lack self freedom. You are holding onto something, or insisting that something is holding you, keeping you from reality. Freedom is a motive of thought, action, will. Bondage is saying you can't change conditions. You are bound when you limit your energies. I know whereof I speak. Self control is not self repression, self freedom is not listless inactivity, self freedom is mastery. To be free to grow, develop, unfold. Fish in subterranean rivers have eyes but see not, long living in darkness has taken away their faculty to see. But owls and bats see clearly in the night. If the earth had only the moon for light, we should develop our seeing faculty until we could see as well as we do now by sunlight. We would energize our optic nerve. Our generation is spectacled because of too much light. Too much glare is blinding people. The Indians never wear glasses. Luxury and lassitude destroy self-freedom. We seek ease, instead of strength. Life, happiness, wisdom, wealth are measured by a degree of self freedom, by the degree of energy we control we have bliss or bane peace or poverty, hope or embarrassment, joy or jaundice.

Mental self freedom builds the brain. There is nothing you think but may sometime be. You think out a design and it becomes a reality. How are you thinking? You feel uneasy, unhappy, wretched over your life position, but think you can't extricate yourself. You have not thought energy enough to make a plan that will change your life. You think you are weak physically, unable to endure, but not strength for interesting work, not able to enjoy life by being busily useful. Your thought energies are bound to that sort of thinking. You are a thought captive, enslaved, your self freedom lost. Why not arouse your mental energies and be clothed in your right mind? The captain of a trade ship was supposed to be dying of ulcerated scurvy through lack of proper food. The first mate told the captain the crew had mutinied. At once a more intense light than the raging fever burned in his eyes. He [illegible] from his bunk, went to the deck, bound the leaders in chains, sent the rest cowering to their quarters [illegible] the fever left him and his disease began to heal rapidly.

A man with two cases who was crippled with rheumatism was out in the fields when sudden he heard a roar. Looking back he saw a bull with head lowered rushing towards him. He dropped his canes rushed for the fence and leaped over it like a boy. The bull renewed the spirit of his mind.

A mill worker long ill from the "white plague" faint from a hemorrhage started for his home. On the way he witnessed a dog fight, in which a big tom-cat came to the rescue of the smaller dog and jumping upon the back of the big dog clawed him into frenzy of fear and sent him yelping down the street. The man laughed heartily, forgetting his own weakness. He noticed after his laugh he felt much better. He went home laughing, kept it up, laughing daily, and became well. As you think you are. There is no power that can withhold you from the destiny of your self determination.

A FINE CHRISTMAS VISIT

Dear Social Corner Sisters: The letters are better and better every week. I want to thank the sister who recommended Mrs. Taft's book, Recollections of Full Years. I enjoyed it very much. I also enjoy Sundae's letters. She, too, is a lover of flowers and birds.

E. L. M.: I hope you are nicely settled by this time and enjoying your new home.

We had a lovely trip to spend Christmas with our oldest son and family in Ballardvale, Mass., leaving home at 6.45 Saturday morning for Boston, where they met us with the car. The ride out was lovely. That night we took the kiddies to the church for their tree. Next morning we had our tree, and it was such a pleasure to watch the children get so excited over their toys. That evening we attended the Christmas exercises at the church, which were the finest I have ever seen. Next evening we attended a family tree at our daughter-in-law's home, where everyone was bountifully remembered. Next day, Tuesday, we had a long, lovely ride through Lawrence, Salem and New Hampshire, and saw the fine Searles castle at Canobin lake, then on to Derry, N. H., to view the White mountains in the distance, then back to Haverhill, a lovely city, where we stopped for lunch. Wednesday we drove back to Boston by way of Reading, Stoneham, Winchester, Cambridge, coming in on Commonwealth avenue, past the Harvard university buildings. At Woburn we saw many large greenhouses filled with lettuce. In the territory around Woburn acres of asparagus and other vegetables are grown. Stayed that night with another son in Boston. Next day he took us out to dinner at a new restaurant just opened, the most attractive place in which I ever dined, the interior being the style of old French peasant architecture. The walls of the main dining room represent the exterior of the peasant homes, with sloping roofs, and the light shining through the little windows. One side represents the exterior of the barn, with ladder leading up to the hayloft, which seemed to be filled with real hay. There were many quaint old lanterns hanging from great beams in the ceiling, with the floor of flagstone, with masonry of brick, and wood tile. All the tables and chairs were imitation of French furniture, and on each table was a lovely old wrought iron candlestick, also sugar bowl and salt and pepper shakers of pewter. All the lanterns and candles were lighted. The waiters were all dressed like the peasant girls, white waist with full sleeves, little tight-fitted bodice of dark blue, laced up in front, with red band around the top, green skirt made very full, with five bands of red above the hem, white stockings, black slippers, and the cutest little caps on their heads. One of them went from table to table filling glasses from the dearest old copper water jug. It all made a most delightful picture, one I shall not soon forget. From there we went to the Museum of Fine Arts, where we spent an hour and a half. I cannot describe those wonderful muriel decorations by Sargent, America's wonderful painter, who died this last year. Think of being able to give to the world so much of wondrous beauty as this great man has done! Then we went into another room among portraits by Sargent, Henri, Geo. Bellows, who has just died, and saw the paintings of the late Claude Monet, who was of the Impressionistic school. The Chinese gardens were also enjoyed. But trains wait for none, so we reluctantly turned our faces towards the station—and home. Was sorry I could not stay over a few days to hear my son play in Jordan hall—I heard him there a year ago.

Best wishes to the editor and all the sisters.

KNITTING A RUG.

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: A few days ago I received a very pretty calendar from a Social Corner sister. As there was no name I take this way to say "Thank you." It is lovely and gives me the assurance I am not forgotten. We are having long evenings now and I wonder how the sisters are spending them. My dishes and milk bottles are usually washed and dried by 7 o'clock and as I cannot use my eyes to read I have been knitting a rug which does not require much eyesight. I bought a ball of twine, cast on 11 or 13 stitches, cut some cloth in narrow strips about one-half inch wide and three inches long. As I knit, I laid in a strip, knit a stitch, then pull the end through and knit another stitch, repeat this to the end of the needle. Knit back plain then begin and do the same till the piece is the desired length of the rug. Knit as many strips as you wish and sew together. This can be made of various colors for the center and a border of plain color makes it very pretty. They wear well too, and are not awfully hard to clean. I have one which has been in use for years and is not worn out yet.

The almanac says the days are growing longer and I am glad for I love the light. I hope you all have enjoyed the beautiful moonlight the past week as much as I have. Surely "the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth His handiwork." I wonder if we take time to think of these blessings which are so common.

With best wishes for all

SISTER BARBARA.

RABBIT SAUTE

Dear Editor and Social Corner: I have been to The Corner several times. I would like to become a member. I will send a recipe of rabbit saute which is very nice.

Rabbit Saute: Have a rabbit cut in pieces, put meat and a few onions in a sauce pan with a little hot butter and lard. Have ready a large glass full of white wine which has been put in a separate sauce pan, allow to simmer for two or three minutes. Pour wine over the rabbit, add a bouquet of parsley, thyme and bay leaf; add water if necessary. Cook slowly over a low flame for one hour.

I will take for my pen name

WHAT YOUNG PEOPLE ARE DOING.

Dear Editor and Social Corner: Greetings and best wishes to all for a prosperous New Year. Thanks for all cards and especially for my pretty flower calendar from a Social Corner Member.

The world is growing better despite some recent unusual events. I trust many of you had the pleasure of listening in over the radio to the Atwater-Kent singing contest which was participated in by five young women and five young men all under the age of 25 years. Aside from the prizes in cash and an opportunity for one further pursuit of music was the chance to show their ability as amateurs.

These young people represent the finest and highest types of young womanhood and young manhood and never before has such a contest been possible. May success attend their every effort.

Our interpid young aviator, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, has proved himself to be the most courageous and skilled man of the age and I never fail to read every account of his wonderful achievements. Surely these young people are making the world better.

HOPE COBWEB.

A DUTY TO THE CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Sisters: I wish you all the happiest New Year you ever had.

I wish to thank the Social Corner Member for the lovely calendar I received. The potted plant is very pretty, a plant for every month. I also wish to thank sisters of No. 2 and No. 6 for their kind remembrance of me at Christmas. So nice to have so many lovely friends. What a pleasant time we had at our last meeting. The only thing out of order was that we did not have Calla Lily with us.

Cady: You were good to look at. When we see our old members who have not met with us for some time, it rather cheers us to see them again. Hope you can be with us at the next meeting. I hope all sisters of No. 2 will make an effort to be there, as we are to have a "surprise box," a surprise for every one, and as many of the other Cornerites who care to come. Mayfayre, Black Eyed Susie and many others were on the list of 'he missing. Joan as usual did her share toward the entertainment.

Scottie: Hope you felt none the worse when you reached home.

What has become of so many of our old writers?

Chocolate: Brace up and let's hear from you. I think spending Christmas with you has made me feel so much better. The Corner page seems to grow more empty all the time. I do not think we are doing our duty either to the Corner or our good editor. I do not think we would like to lose our page entirely, but it looks that way unless more of us start in pretty soon. I once heard a sister say the reason she never wrote was there was so much criticism. Why care? If we do something we are criticized, and if we do nothing it is the same thing. I guess not many of us get left out. Do the best and give the best is all we can do. No one can see themselves as others see them.

I saw an item in the paper which pleased me the other day.

An Irishman was walking through an old cemetery and was reading the epitaphs on the stones. He came to one which said:

As I am now, you soon will be;
Prepare for death and follow me.

Pat considered a few moments, then took a piece of chalk and wrote underneath:

Where you are now, I wish you well
If up in Heaven or down in H—l;
But follow ye I'll not consint
Unless I know which way ye wint.

I think we all can consider a little. Come to the meetings, help entertain, and try to make somebody happy then we will be happy ourselves.

Dear Social Corner Friends: While glancing carelessly at the obituary notices in The Bulletin recently my attention was arrested by a familiar name—one that I had not heard for a long time. As I read on I felt sure that the man referred to was a teacher of mine in my childhood days. Instinctively I went to a trunk and taking out a box containing photograpns and other reminders of days that are gone I soon found an old school picture with this teacher in our midst. There were 20 pupils in the group. I was among the younger ones and about 11 or 12 years old at the time.

Some of the girls were almost "grown up" and I think I learned almost as much from listening to their recitations as from my own lessons. How the sight of this faded picture with this teacher in the center brought back the past. He had recently graduated from college and was an excellent teacher. I remember one thing especially and that is that not a single problem in the "big arithmetic" was too much for him. There were a few very difficult problems that had been "skipped" as gracefully as possible during the incumbency of some other teachers but there was no skipping during the reign of this college man. I am sure this fact added much to our respect for him. I have lost track of several of these schoolmates much to my regret. Some of them went to high school and a few to college. One is now a teacher of art. One of the girls married at 14. I remember thinking that very romantic. My ideas on so early a marriage have undergone as great a change as has taken place in dress.

At my right in the group is Joseph B., the minister's oldest boy. Poor Joe! He went down to defeat one recitation and composition afternoon. His declamation was a portion of Mark Anthony's famous address at Caesar's funeral, beginning "If you have tears prepare to shed them now." He was well coached by the teacher but somehow he could not remember the accent the word "fell" in the line ending "great Caesar fell!" In spite of the teacher's repeated admonitions and a real desire on his own part to excel when he reached that line Caesar got the accent. Joe was deeply chagrined and I remember feeling sorry for him. A little further along the line is another boy named Joseph with a very freckled face but keen looking. His pockets were usually full of watches which he would take apart and put together again rapidly and do it correctly, too. He was among the first to ride one of those tall bicycles in our village and if he is living now no doubt he is a close second to Lindbergh in flying.

As I look intently at the picture I can but notice how neatly we are dressed. Unfortunately, however, Nellie M. at the teacher's right hand has been a little negligent on this particular day. Of course she had no idea that our picture was to be taken. She is wearing a waist with a double row of buttons down the front. The waist is dark in color while the buttons are pearl, very light, and of very large size. One of these "cart wheels," and a center one at that, is missing and the big, vacant button hole seems to be calling, "But ton, button, who has the button."

I have "boiled down" my personal effects many a time when space was limited but this picture I have kept and plan to keep to the end. The teacher at the time I knew him was thriftily saving his money that he might study for the medical profession. No doubt it was often irksome to him to teach us grammar grade pupils but he did his duty by us faithfully.

I fancy that many a member of our Corner has some similarly treasured school picture the sight of which recalls the joys and griefs of school days and brings to mind the lines: "Backward, turn backward, O Time, in thy flight, make me a child again just for tonight."

I enjoyed reading the fine account of Fort Ned so kindly sent in by Mr. Peck as a letter to the editor. The man in my household appreciated it, too, as he is very well acquainted with that neighborhood. I think such historical sketches are very interesting as well as instructive and I hope we may have many such this year.

A Social Corner Member: Many thanks for the unique calendar. It has the place of honor on my desk.

With friendly greeting to you all.

EVELINE BURR.

A CALL FOR MANY MEMBERS.

Dear Editor and Members: I wanted to thank a Social Corner Member for beautiful calendar. I think it's the daintiest one I have seen this year.

Grace wants to know where all the fun lovers are. I'll tell the world, we are all here, "present early," as our grandmothers used to say at school. Now let's see who'll be the first to crack a joke.

Sister Ready seems to have all the action—comedy of errors, or what not, at her house. Do tell some more.

Glad that Sweet-brier told us about those rosy posy bouquets for our gown. Let's all try to make some.

Black Eyed Susie: Hope your mailman keeps the straight and narow after this. It's disappointing to have letters delayed.

Ann Tenna: So you want to go slower, do you?? Well, I'm going to send in a poem that will advise you to "step on the gas."

Where, oh where is Crimson Rambler, and Windham Blue Bell, Student, Whirlwind, Anna Z, and hundreds of others?

You have all heard of different sorts of hearts, from those in a pack of playing cards, to the one that was faint and missed winning the fair lady. The other day I read about "A Conqueror of Hearts," by David S Lawlor, as follows:

I am Courtesy.
I am known by many as Politeness;
I have friends who call me Kindness.
Children love me and delight to meet and have me with them.
Women are won by me; even more than are won by valor.
Men in their hearts have the greatest respect for me.
The world salutes me for it knows what I have achieved.
I have conquered more than the sword.
I have helped more than Money has helped.
I have brought peace into the home, the office and the workshop.
I have reconciled lovers, neighbors and friends.
I have kept nations from war, bloodshed and famine.
I am a representative of the Prince of Peace, and I dwell with my brother, Good-Will, and my sweet sister, Charity, in a home where all is love and peace.

ARIES.

THE HAMPTON PIN FACTORY.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Thank you who have wished me a "Happy New Year." Do not feel any one would wish me an unhappy year. Easy to say the former, but it means so much to each individual.

I have a card before me reading thus: "Elastic Pins for shawls, diapers, blankets, etc., secured by letter. Patented in the United States of America, dated January 21, 1847. All infringements will be prosecuted by the patenter to the extent of the law." Manufactured by E. S. Moseley, Hampton, Conn., for Storrs Brothers, 121 Chambers street, N. Y., Agts. Never saw the card but once before in my aunt's house. Then there was one of the pins on the card which she kept on the "What Not" in the corner of her parlor. The pin was two or three inches long, round, size or an ordinary lead pencil with a cap at each end, fastened to both a round piece of elastic checked then a substantial straight pin fastened to one end inside the cap with point of pin inside other cap and when desiring to use the pin just pulled elastic and release it, then when put through the cloth, the point of pin was replaced in cap.

The building where these were made stood in what is called "Hemlock Glen," now about two miles north of Hampton Hill. Was in the building a few times but not when pins were being made. It used to be called "Old Pin Shop," but is all gone now.

A Social Corner Member: Thank you for the peculiar calendar. Fine that some people have superior power of invention. Verse is fine. May I have health for with good health comes the rest.

Last summer to my pleasure saw Gardners lake and Devils hop yard—a queer place but which needs a wider and better road to be enjoyed. We have much to see of interest in Connecticut.

RECIPES BY HILLSIDE

Dear Sisters: These recipes are good any time and I hope some of you will try them.

Turkey Hash: Chop meat very fine; put about 1-2 pint of gravy with it into a stew pan with a little piece of butter rolled in flour, one teaspoon of catsup, pepper and salt to taste, and the peel of 1-2 a lemon shredded very fine. Put in the chicken or turkey and shake over a fire until very hot. The above proportion is for left over meat from one turkey.

Prune Kernel Nut Pudding: 2 cups chopped prune kernels, 1-2 cup maple sugar, 2-3 cup butter, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Cream butter, add sugar gradually, then the yolks of the eggs, add the vanilla. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff, combine the ingredients adding the whites last. Bake 30 minutes in a very moderate oven. Serve with whipped cream. This can be made with peach kernels or pumpkin nuts.

Here is a delicious sandwich filing. 1-2 cup each of chopped figs and pumpkin nuts, moisten with lemon juice and add a little sugar if desired.

Rhode Island Johnny Cake: 2 cups corn meal, 1 cup boiling water, 1 1-4 cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons, 3-4 cup flour sifted with 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 beaten egg. Fry on a hot griddle.

HILLSIDE.

KIND WORDS HELP.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I send many thanks for the nicest calendar ever to a Social Corner Member. May the new year bring you health which should make one happy.

Kind words make us happy as well as others. Again thanks and best wishes to my sisters and friends.

ROXANNA WINCE

GREETINGS AND THANKS FROM DIANA

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: A happy New Year to every brother and sisters of the Corner circle. I wish to thank every one who sent me cards, letters, gift or a Christmas greeting in any way.

As both myself and sister were sick we did not greatly enjoy the day. Still the greetings, gifts, etc., made a rift of sunshine in the midst of the dark clouds. We are both better but coughs hang on, and are not very strong. My sister after being shut in for four weeks is now going out again.

I thank Aunt Mehitabel, Theoda Huldy, Delight, Bachelor Maid, Olga, Aunty 1, White Clover, Whirlwind and Balsam Fir, also I thank A Corner Member for potted plant calendar. It hangs over my couch and looks very cheery. If I have omitted any I did not mean to and thank each and everyone who thought of me in any way. I enjoy your letters and reports of meetings. Am, of course, interested in all but club No. 1 appeals to me the most, then No. 5, because Sister Etta Barber tried so hard to form one so am more glad than I can say that the seed sown after a while matured and you have such a nice active club; also No. 6.

I am glad with you all and sympathize with all who meet sorrow and trouble. Am sorry for the sick and hope for their improvement.

I suppose many of us even now have broken our New Year resolutions, let not that discourage us. Just think each day the slate is clean and we begin anew. We have only to live one day at a time. Live today and even if it is only smiles or a kind word let us spread them abroad and maybe help some one.

Shall answer letters very soon now and I shall be glad to hear from any sister at any time. Best wishes.

DIANA.

THE SAILOR'S REPORT

To the Editor and Social Corner Sisters: I thank Social Corner Member for the very pretty calendar.

This has been a sad Christmas for those who lost relatives on the submarine S-4. Forty more names are added to the list of hero-martyrs.

Several years ago a U. S. cruiser was proudly cutting the waves in foreign waters. It was near midnight and the darkness was so intense it was appressive. Not a star twinkled in the sky. Below decks all was quiet, most of the sailors were sleeping "rocked in the cradle of the deep."

A few officers and sailors were on duty. One of Uncle Sam's apprentice boys, Sailor Lew, stood on the bridge of the ship on watch, ready to report anything he might see or hear.

He was thinking of the great responsibility placed on him guarding so many lives and this ship with its costly supplies until he became nervous.

Suddenly, to his horror, right ahead of the ship a tiny light appeared. Surely the ship was too close to avoid a collision. How had he missed seeing it sooner? Visions of ship wreck and bugging the bottom of the ocean rushed through his mind and he screamed to the officer below deck:

"Light ahead, sir!"

The officers and sailors on duty rushed up on deck, each one affected by the evident fright of the sailor on watch.

"Where's the light," they said.

"Right there, sir, I reported it the instant I saw it, sir."

All gazed in the direction he pointed and stood in breathless silence. As they looked the tiny light was seen to enlarge, the dark clouds parted and the full moon shone out full and clear where Sailor Lew thought he had discovered the danger signal. All breathed a sigh of relief at their escape from shipwreck and then the shouts of laughter came fast.

"Pretty well done, lad."

"Faithful watch! Even the moon cannot escape this lad," said one officer. "We'll have you promoted," said another. Then they went below deck leaving Sailor Lew on the bridge. Imagine the teasing when the "moon-report" was known in the morning. When the sailors turned in at night each one had something to say. "Good night, faithful watch."

"Don't forget to call us, Lew, when the moon is full."

They enjoyed it, and Lew knew he had done his duty faithfully. In a short time he was promoted to a higher grade where he was not expected to watch.

This same ship was at target practice with the fleet. Each ship is eager to make the most shots and this has some times caused accidents. Sailor Lew was one of the boys carrying ammunition from the powder room to the guns. With a large shell on his shoulder he came to a gun that had just been fired. Each gun must be swabbed out and cooled before another shell is inserted. Sailor Lew stood by the gun waiting for this work to be done. An impatient officer stood there too, angry at Lew for waiting. "Why don't you put in that shell?" "Yes, sir, I will sir, when the gun is properly cooled, sir." Sailor Lew waited until the gun was ready, then inserted the shell and it was sent to the target without accident. After target practice was over and ships returned to anchor this officer apologized to Lew, saying his coolness had prevented an accident.

We hope some way will be invented to prevent all accidents in future.

A very interesting letter about Fort Ned by E. C. Peck was printed in The Bulletin Jan. 5. I wish all a year of health and prosperity.

GREETINGS FROM L. T. H.

Kind Editor and Social Corner Members: I wish to thank a Social Corner member for the pretty calendar with all its bright cheery months of flowers, bringing happiness and cheer to a shut in. It was so kind of you to think of me. I hope when the real flowers are in bloom, I can return the favor to you. I do love flowers of all kinds cultivated or wild.

Fidelity: Your poem was fine. I cut it out and pasted it in my book of choice poems. I hope you write often to the corner page.

Joan: Was so glad to hear from you and that your plants are doing well. The little ivy you gave me is in bloom.

Kitty Lou: Your letter was so interesting, I would enjoy hearing the piano. I often think of the happy hours spent with you and Ethelyn, and the lady living in the same house you do. What a lot of sad changes since then, not only in my own home, but the three homes near you. How I would enjoy seeing you and those that are left where I worked then, but being all alone on the farm it is hard getting away for calls.

Nonesopretty: I sent you a Christmas card and it was returned to me. Moved? I do enjoy your nice letters in corner page.

Violet: Glad the boy is better and eye all right. Sorry there is more sickness in your home. Such sudden changes in weather are bad for colds and sick ones. Write when you can get time.

Best wishes to all the sick and shut ins of the corner.

NO WINTER IN MAINE.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Howdy everybody! I must thank you for your many cards and letters.

I have been quite busy, not with work by any means, but so far our winter has been grand and glorious.

During December we had a foot of snow but January has out done everything in the name of winter.

We have had wonderful skating,

but today (Sunday) the lake is covered with water, great puddles of water, and every where there are running brooks from melting snow. Yesterday, the 7th, the thermometer stood at 50 above, while doors and suit is they are not only getting rid beautiful air in every room.

No birds to be seen and I will tell you why. You see a gang of men from Augusta worked for days cutting worm nests from the trees and using creosote on the eggs. The windows were open to allow the of that pest, but our birds also.

A man in this village set out corn soaked in copperas water last spring to kill crows so as to prevent them from eating and pulling up his corn. Result is he not only killed crows but blue jays were seen lying dead nearby.

Only two jays have come so far for corn. The snow birds are never seen now as they used to come when there was no snow to be fed. It is 45 above today and looks like rain. No sledding and unless it snows inside of 24 hours the saw mill will have to stop running. For the past week the teams have had to make roads in the fields.

Autos are numerous and out of town cars are going past every day. Last Friday 24 huskies from Poland Springs were fastened to a light truck and went by out for exercise. Mrs. Rioker has a team of her own—seven dogs—and when the ground was covered with snow she went past quite often.

On day, three dog teams went by as far as Dry Mills store, then turn to right and go down the Raymond road and out through Sugkerville, Margonville, Egypt, Raymond Village and back to Poland Springs. They are not racing, but trying them—getting them in trim for racing later on.

The dogs are not full blooded dogs—wolf and dogs combined. They look like a collie dog and are very intelligent. An Alaskan went by one day and he had two teams, seven in one, and nine in the other, but there was one dog loose. He stood at the side of road as though watching them go by. At a word from the driver he dashed ahead to lead the rest. Does not seem as though the winter was going so fast for so far we haven't had any.

I was sorry to learn so many of the sisters had passed on.

I am having the time of my life this good weather as I tell my folks going while going is good.

I wish some one would send in the words to the Drunkard's Child. I would thank you for same.

Wish to thank Social Corner member for my lovely calendar. I think of you all, if I do not write. Our club is doing fine as I am on the relief committee I am kept busy visiting the sick.

Have two people in this place who are quite ill.

I wish you all a happy New Year. Kind regards to all the sisters and brothers.

BALSAM FIR, (Jan. 22.).

SUGGESTIONS.

Dear Social Corner Friends: Many thanks to A Social Corner Member for another beautiful calendar with the wish for happiness, health, and cheer.

"January's the month to start aright, So the rest of the year may be happy and bright."

We have already had in the Corner leters many good reminders and suggestions for the New Year. Such as our slogan: "Better Results." "Keep careful accounts." Live and let live." "That this year may be the biggest year of service to humanity that the world has ever known and that the Corner may contribute its share of uplift." "Be ambitious in the right direction." "Carry the practice of the Golden Rule in our daily life." "Good suggestion for saving and using newspaper clippings," and many other equally good helps.

Now just a quotation from a recent magazine:

"A person is prepared to leave school only when he is prepared to take his place as a happy and effective member of the community."

"To educate is to guide growth."

"Parents, teachers and the community should continue to guide the growth of young people until they are able to guide their own development."

"How long this guidance should continue depends on the complexity of civilization and the capacity of the pupil to learn."

"In the primitive stages of society children needed little formal schooling."

"They learned by watching their parents and neighbors. In a complex and rapidly changing civilization they need much schooling."

"The child who is bright and strong should be able to make his adjustment more quickly than a child who is weak and stupid. The dull child therefore needs school more than his gifted brothers and sisters."

"Schools exist to fit young people into life and when they turn youth out before it is ready for life, they are merely passing on burdens of ignorance inefficiency, or criminality which all of us must eventually bear."

"It is idle to debate who is responsible for crime. Crime exists and the prevention and correction of crime are educational problems."

"Every person should learn to be a responsible citizen and know how to use his leisure time in ways that build up, enrich and beautify his own life and the lives of others."

"School life should grow out of home life, it should take up and continue the activities with which the child is familiar in the home. So the home life and influence must first be made right."

"The home is the form of society life in which the child has been nurtured and in connection with which he has his moral training. So the moral training and influence of the home must be made right."

JEREMY.

GREETINGS FROM ECLIPSE.

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I wish you all a happy and prosperous New Year and many of them.

It is some time since I have written for the Corner, but I must write to thank the Social Corner sister who sent me the pretty flower calendar, and say to her how very much I appreciated being remembered so kindly. Every flower is a pretty reminder of the seasons as we go along.

I know every one enjoys this remarkable open winter, even if the snow storms are pending. The season is far advanced and only a few more weeks of winter are left. How nice to see that there are new members joining the Corner all the time.

Greetings to all new members and old ones, too. Deepest sympathy for all in trouble.

ECLIPSE.

JOINS THE CORNER

Dear Social Corner Editor: I wish to become a member of the Social Corner and Club No. 6. I am sending three possible pennames and hope one of them will be available.

CERES.

INDUSTRIALS AND RAILS WERE THE FEATURES OF SPECULATIVE MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—(AP) — The stock market resumed its march to higher ground today with speculative interest shifting from the industrials to the rails and back to the industrials again. Friday, the 13th, kept many superstitious traders out of the market, the day's sales running around 2,150,000 shares, but it had no jinx for at least a dozen pools, which marked up their favorites 2 to 9 points. Week end profit taking accounted for most of the soft spots, but few losses exceeding 2 points.

Credit conditions were again unchanged. Banks called a few million in loans, but call money was in plentiful supply all day at the renewal figure of 4 per cent. The increase of $9,500,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans to a new high record, apparently had little market influence, although it brought forth a repetition of cautionary advices from some of the conservative commission houses.

There was practically nothing in the day's news to influence the price movement. The weekly mercantile reviews characterized business as fair, and found cause for encouragement in the improvement being shown in some of the country's leading industrials, particularly steel and automobile.

Rails assumed the leadership of the market in the early afternoon, but the buying flurry in several of the high grade issues failed to follow through. "Nickel Plate" jumped 5 1-2 points and lost 1, and New York Central, Chesapeake & Ohio, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, and a few others advanced 2 points or more. Buying of the Wabash issues was stimulated by a favorable federal court decision in a suit brought to compel payment of preferential dividends on the A stock.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors each closed fractionally higher after a day of backing and filling. Packard moved up 1 1-2 points, but the other motors moved within narrow limits. Collins & Aikman, manufacturers of automobile upholstery, was run up more than 5 points to 109 7-8, closing near the top.

Radio corporation, after fluctuating rather erratically around par during most of the session, turned sharply upward in the last hour, touching 104 1-2 and then backing up to 102 3-4, up 3 1-4 net. International Nickel touched another new peak at 95 3-8 and Greene Cananea Copper ran up 4 points but lost half the gain.

The day's maximum net advances were registered by Adams Express and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe, each up 9 points. Sharp gains also were recorded by Midland Steed Products preferred, American International corporation, Electric Auto Lite, National Surety, and Purity Baking B, all of which advanced 4 points or more.

Commodity markets were again mixed. Grain futures advanced fractionally, rumors of large Argentine wheat offerings being offset by the better demand for the American product. Cotton sold off $1 or more a bale on publication of the government consumption report showing 32,000 less bales consumed in December than November and 40,000 less than December, 1926.

Except for a drop of about 7 points in Spanish pesetas to around 17.03 cents, the leading foreign exchanges displayed a firm undertone. Sterling cables were quoted around $4.87 15-16.

IN the perfected Whippet you will find all those features pioneered in the Whippet and now being adopted by other light car manufacturers—amazing economy, high speed and pick-up, big four-wheel brakes, increased roominess, low center of gravity and more attractive lines.

In the Whippet, too, will be found improvements lacking in some or all other light cars—gasoline tank in the rear, force-feed lubrication, silent timing chain, adjustable steering wheel, dry plate clutch, longer springbase and numerous mechanical refinements that mean longer, more satisfactory service.

This finer Whippet, selling at so much lower a price, reveals new attractiveness in color and body treatment, and provides added features of equipment.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Trial Begins.

You'll find that it is always well
The truth and nothing else to tell.
—Old Mother Nature.

It was a great event over in the Old Orchard. It was the most exciting event there for a long, long time. Speckles the Starling had been brought to trial. He was being tried by his feathered neighbors of the Old Orchard. He was charged with being a nuisance and altogether bad, and could you have seen the feathered folk gathered there I'm afraid you would have thought he hadn't a friend among them all. Not one single, solitary friend unless it were Bully the English Sparrow. Bully was standing by him, not because they were particular friends, but because they were both regarded as being out of place in the Old Orchard. They were not Americans.

Sammy Jay was the first one to speak. He declared that Speckles the Starling had no business in the Old Orchard, that he had no business in the Green Forest, that he had no business on the Green Meadows. In short, that he had no business to be in the country. "There is only room for us who belong here," declared Sammy. "This fellow simply comes here and eats the food that belongs to us. He does no good. He is a quarrelsome fellow. He not only takes the food, but he also steals the homes of those who rightfully belong here in the Old Orchard. He is a robber. He is always trying to make trouble for other people."

"Can you prove that he steals the homes of other people?" inquired Tommy Tit the Chickadee.

"If Sammy can't, I can," spoke up Drummer the Woodpecker. "He drove me out of my home, so that I had to go over to the Green Forest to live."

"He stole the home of Winsome Bluebird," declared Yank Yank the Nuthatch. "Everybody knows that. Everybody knows that last spring when Winsome returned from the Sunny South he found Speckles and Mrs. Speckles already established in his old home. And Speckles refused to move out. That was why Winsome Bluebird had to move up to Farmer Brown's dooryard. Everybody knows that."

"Caw! Caw!" said Blacky the Crow. "Has any one else anything to say on this subject?"

"He even had the nerve to poke his head into my home and declare that

"Caw! Caw!" said Blacky the Crow.

I had no business there," spoke up Chatterer the Red Squirrel, who wouldn't have missed this trial for the world.

"He wasn't far wrong," snapped Sammy Jay, who is forever picking a quarrel with Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Has any one else anything against Speckles?" demanded Blacky the Crow.

"I have," said Slaty the Junco. "Time after time when I have started to get a meal Speckles has driven me away. Being more than twice my size, he can do it."

"That's because he's such a pig," declared Sammy Jay.

"He is noisy, terribly noisy," declared Drummer the Woodpecker, "and he always acts as if he thought he owned the Old Orchard. Personally, I think he's a public nuisance."

"Hear! hear!" chirped Sammy Jay approvingly.

Tommy Tit's bright little eyes were twinkling. "Judge Crow," said he, "may I ask the prisoner a few questions?"

Blacky the Crow looked very dignified as he nodded his head. "Ask him all the questions you please, Tommy Tit," said he.

Tommy's eyes twinkled more than ever. "I've got to think of some first," said he. And that made everybody laugh.

NEW LONDON, Jan. 13.—George Smith Palmer, of Pequot avenue, for 58 years connected officially with Palmer Bros., quilt manufacturers, of Montville, New London and Fitchville, and for many years president of the company, will retire from active business life next week, it became known today. It was announced at the offices of the company that Mr. Palmer has tendered his resignation. This will be announced at the annual meeting of the company to be held next Monday and at which time, it is believed, his successor will be appointed. Mr. Palmer intends to lead a life of rest and quietude the remainder of his life, casting aside all business responsibilities. Mr. Palmer was born in Montville, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Palmer. He is a graduate from Norwich Free Academy, 1874, and of Yale, 1878. Mr. Palmer resided in Norwich about 24 years, from 1880 until 1904. During the latter year Mr. Palmer moved to New London. Mr. Palmer has twice been married. His first wife was Ida Amelia Cook, a classmate at Norwich Free Academy, daughter of the late Dwight and Abbie Avery Cook, Broad street, of Norwich. Mrs. Palmer died June 10, 1896, two years after her removal to New London. Mr. Palmer's second wife was Miss Neva L. Fenne, of Geneseo, N. Y., whom he married Sept. 17, 1901. Mr. Palmer is a director of the Thames National bank and Uncas National bank, Norwich. He is a member of the board of trustees of the Otis Library, Norwich, one of the corporators of the William W. Backus hospital, Norwich, and one of the organizers and directors of the Broadway theatre, Norwich. He is a trustee of Norwich Free Academy and a member of Park Congregational church, Norwich.

Two children were born of Mr. Palmer's first marriage, Arthur Cook Palmer, who died in infancy, and Howard Palmer, who is a graduate of Yale. By his second marriage he has three daughters, Mrs. J. Reid Johnson, of Glenwod avenue and Misses Priscilla and Georgianna Palmer.

Mr. Palmer is a republican but has never sought office. While at Yale he became a member of D. K. E. and Phi Beta Kappa fraternities.

Three more continued cases of violation of the liquor law were given a hearing in the police court today, but in only one instance was a disposal made. Additional continuances were requested and granted in the other two cases. Arthur Messer, 21 Summer street, pleaded guilty on two counts, actual sale and keeping with intent to sell and was fined $200 and costs on each count. In the case of Nora McClue, 113 Howard street, a continuance was granted until tomorrow and a further continuance, this time until next Monday, was granted Nick Stamiton, proprietor of a pool room at 324 Bank street. It is understood that both Mrs. Clue and Stamiton will plead guilty when their cases come up for final disposition and that the continuances have been granted that the accused can obtain $450, which will be the amount they will have to pay if the same disposition is made in their cases as in the cases already disposed of. Today Messer pleaded guilty for he was aware that the coast guard stool pigeons, Frank Wicks and Morris Utash, purchased liquor of him and that the evidence was in the hands of the prosecutor.

Wicks will be transferred from the local section base tomorrow, but Utash, who is married, will remain here indefinitely.

When the case of Mrs. McClue is called Monday, that will undoubtedly mark the final case to be disposed of, although there is still another case to be handled, that of the Railroad club, Railroad avenue. When the police went to the club room a week ago, the employe who sold liquor to the stool pigeons was not there and he has not been in the city since, for he left a few hours before the raids were made. He is a resident of New London and will probably return here tonight. If he does, he will be in court Saturday and if he doesn't return until Sunday, he will be presented in court Monday.

The only other case in court was that of William W. Whitcomb, charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in driving an automobile without having a license. He was ordered into court the 11th inst., by Sergeant Samuel Hick, but he failed to appear, so today, when his case was called, Whitcomb was fined $10 and costs.

He was retired as a police officer about seven years ago and since that time Mr. Wilbur had not been in any active employment.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Advice to shy, shrinking violets in large quantities on the subject of how to be popular is offered in Colleen Moore's new starring comedy-drama, "Naughty But Nice," which will open for three days at the Breed theatre, tomorrow night.

This picture depicts the tale of a freckled, bespectacled, long-haired, awkward girl from Texas, who enters a smart finishing school on the outskirts of Washington, D. C. From being the school's prize unnoticed dumbbell, Colleen suddenly and mysteriously becomes the most stunning girl in the place with all the most desirable town sheiks at her feet.

Donald Reed, handsome new leading man, is the chief—and also likeable—sheik in "Naughty But Nice." Other members of the supporting cast include Claude Gillingwater, Hallam Cooley, Kathryn McGuire, Edythe Chapman and Clarissa Selwynne.

Strand Theatre

The world's most electrifying plot of excitement now masterfully transferred to the screen is the stage play "The Bat" by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood. It is a fascinating detective story, with rapid fire action from start to finish, and the identity of "The Bat" who commits three murders, robs banks and terrorizes an entire community is the outstanding problem in this unique mystery thriller. Jack Pickford, Louise Fazenda, Lee Shumway, Elmy Fitzroy and Jewel Carmen are numbered in the cast. This picture is lavishly filmed, alive and dynamic and crammed with laughs, shudders and amazement.

"The Coast Patrol" is a story as strong and gigantic as the sea itself. The plot concerns a group of rum-smugglers and their ultimate capture by Kenneth McDonald, wh oplays the part of a young Federal agent. Two of the big scenes in the pictures are the burning of an entire village and the destruction of a rum-running boat on the rocks in a storm.

Broadway Theatre

After playing to capacity audiences both on Thursday and Friday, Roses Royal Midgets close their three days engagement at the Broadway theatre, today, with continuous performances starting at 1.30 p. m. The attraction has again proved itself the outstanding vaudeville feature on the stage by breaking all attendance records during the first two days of its showing, here.

For Sunday evening, the feature photoplay is "Back to Liberty," a crook story, starring George Walsh. Unlike so many underworld pictures, there is nothing of a sordid or gruesome nature, for the crooks that appear in the picture are of the gentlemen type, that hire "rough-necks" to do their dirty work. Mr. Walsh gives a remarkable portrayal of the young ne'er-do-well, who wants to go straight but finds temptation too great. In addition to the feature a short comedy feature and the Paramount news reel will round out the program. A special reduction for Sundays has been effected, making it possible for everyone to see the excellent features brought to the Broadway screen on Sunday evenings.

"Quality Street," with Marion Davies and Conrad Nagle is the feature screen attraction selected for showing on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. It is based on Sir James Barrie's latest stage success and tells the story of the events happening in a quaint little English town, during the Napoleanic wars. An excellent vaudeville program of five high-class acts will be shown in conjunction with "Quality Street."

Palace Theatre

In any line of commercial endeavor there is one individual or one company who by the excellence of its product establishes a standard for comparison.

Which is simply by way of saying that the author-producer combination of Zane Grey and Paramount is the standard by which Western screen entertainment is measured.

"Open Range," which opened yesterday at the Palace theatre is the latest production to prove the supremacy of the Zane Grey stories as scenario material. As adapted by John Stone and J. Walter Ruben, this new picture of romance and adventure in the menacing dangers of the old west "Open Range" is a worthy successor to the long series which includes "Wanderer of the Wasteland," "The Vanishing American," "Forlorn River," "Drums of the Desert" and many others. Clifford Smith has directed in a vigorous style in keeping with the virility of the story.

Briefly, it recounts the adventure in love of one Tex Smith, a cowboy who was good and knew it. He sees a picture of Lucy Blake, falls in love with the subject and determines to win her as his wife. But it proves a harder task than he imagines, for it leads him into intrigue, danger and disgrace. With an almost overwhelming accusation of cattle-rustling lodged against him, he is able to square himself only by saving the girls village from an Indian attack by stampeding a cattle herd into it.

Palace Theatre

ROUND-FOUR—Clara Bow far in the lead.

The little red-haired screen flapper who won the championship in public popularity in "Mantrap" and "Kid Boots" proves her right to the title in her latest picture "Get Your Man" which will begin a three day engagement at the Palace theatre tomorrow.

It will be remembered that in Round One entitled "IT" the fiery madcap star took a decisive lead. She strengthened her grip on the title in "Rough House Rosie" and in the third session —"Hula" scored a decisive knock-out.

In her fourth vehicle for Paramount, Miss Bow is a sure winner. It looks as though the "IT" girl is good to sail through as many rounds as she cares to go without being counted out of the limelight.

"Get Your Man" was built for Clara Bow. It shows her as a care-free American miss who starts out to see Parisian life alone and winds up by falling in love with a youth of that country —Charles Rogers.

But the big item in the story concerns a bethrothal in which Rogers figures. The French boy has been engaged to a French girl, Josephine Dunn, since he was five years old. Although it is a loveless match for both Rogers and Miss Dunn, they do not care to incur the wrath of their fathers by breaking the bethrothal and it is up to the American girl to do the work. And how she does it!

The picture abounds in humor. Miss Bow furnishes the majority of this but she has able assistance from Harvey Clarke, who appears as the Marquis. Rogers make a distinctive hit as the leading man and Josef Swickard, as Roger's father, is the same strong character actor that he has been in the past.

Next Week at United Con. Church.

The Charitable Circle of King's Daughters will meet in the junior department rooms of the church school on Monday evening.

The executive committee of the missions department of the Woman's Guild will meet in Miss Pullen's study at 3 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

Stoz, of Hartford seminary, will lead a class on The Prophets, Miss Welker, of the Hartford seminary faculty, will teach junior methods and Rev. STOMACH UPSET

Get at the real cause. That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. Know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain. All Druggists.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c, 30c, 60c.

GEO. H. BRADFORD GUARDIAN FOR KENNETH LA FLAMME

At a hearing before Judge of Probate Dan D. Home of Montville, at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon, former Senator George H. Bradford of that town was appointed guardian for Kenneth LaFlamme, 14-year-old Montville boy blinded in the motor vehicle crash on Mohegan hill on the night of Dec. 10. Former Senator Bradford qualified by furnishing the necessary bond and henceforth will look after the interests of the boy.

Kenneth LaFlamme has been removed from the Backus hospital to his home in Montville and is now in the care of members of his family. For some time it had been hoped to save a portion of his vision, but after a cataract that had formed on the remaining eye had been cleared away, the attending surgeons experienced disappointment in a hopeless case. The lad is now totally blind and friends and sympathizers are reconciled to the fact that he will have to face the future in darkness.

Pending accumulation of funds through the movement in the boy's behalf, former Senator Bradford is considering plans for education of the boy at a school for the blind.

The fund was increased by contributions of $27 received Friday increasing the grand total to $2,175.90.

SUPPLEMENTAL JUDGMENTS IN MORTGAGES AGAINST SWEENEY

Supplemental judgment in two cases in which sale of property belonging to the estate of the late James Sweeney of New London, located at Harrison's Landing, was concerned, was granted by Judge Christopher L. Avery at the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday.

The first case, that of the Savings Bank of New London against Edward M. Sweeney, administrator of the estate of the late James Sweeney; the National Bank of Commerce and W. Don Lundy, of Washington, as executors of the estate of the late United States Senator Frank B. Brandegee, showed that the bank received a judgment for $3,829.32; that the property was appraised at $3,500; and that the bank, to protect its rights purchased the property at auction for $3,000. The Brandegee estate held a mortgage for $2,750 which was wiped out. Attorney Alfred Coit represented the Savings bank, while Attorney Frank L. McGuire represented the executors of the Brandegee estate.

In the second case, that of the Savings Bank of New London against Edward M. Sweeney, administrator of the estate of James Sweeney; James R. May, executor of the estate of the late J. A. Dolan and Alexander Pionetti, of New York, formerly of New London, it was shown that the bank obtained a judgment on a series of notes and foreclosures for $12,318.90; that the property was appraised at $20,000; and that it was sold for $10,000 when the Savings bank bought it at public auction to save its interest.

Thomas S. McGuire, who was the committee of sale was given, as compensation, $200, while Daniel Buckley and Attorney Frank S. Shea were given $52.50 each as appraisers. The Dolan estate had a $3,000 mortgage on the land, while Pionetti had a lien for $750, both of which were wiped out. Attorney Arthur T. Keefe represented James R. May.

DENIES APPLICATION FOR PAYING PREFERRED CLAIM

Judge Christopher L. Avery at the short calendar session of the superior court here Friday denied application of the Humphrey-Cornell Co., of New London for an order for preferred payment of a claim for $110.23 against the receivership of the P. Schwartz Co., of New London.

According to allegations brought out by Attorney Arthur T. Keefe, counsel for the Humphrey-Cornell Co., the latter concern bought some property in Brewer street from the P. Schwartz Co., in 1925 and recently the tax collector of New London presented the company a bill for taxes amounting to $110.23, a 1925 tax lien. This, the Humphrey-Cornell Co., paid and now seeks reimbursement.

An extension of time for presentation of a claim asked for by Attorney Philip Z. Hankey, was granted when counsel for the P. Schwartz Co., Attorney Morris Lubchansky, made no objection.

Attorney Hankey said that he was looking through his files recently and came across a bill for services rendered the company. The time for presenting claims having expired last fall, he asked for extension.

26,611 MOTOR ACCIDENTS CAUSE BIG ECONOMIC LOSS

An economic loss of more than $6,190,000 was incurred in Connecticut during 1927 because of the 26,611 motor vehicle accidents, according to minimum estimates of the value of life and property destroyed in these collisions. Property damage amounted to $2,750,000, an increase over the previous year of about $300,000, records of the state motor vehicle department reveal. The loss because of deaths is estimated at $3,440,000.

Connecticut statutes fix $10,000 as the maximum amount which may be recovered by the heirs through court action for the loss of a life. On this basis the economic loss to the state because of the 344 deaths during the past calendar year may be estimated as $3,440,000.

This amount is in addition to the cost of medical and hospital treatment for the 11,560 persons injured in motor vehicle accidents in 1927, a tremendous sum which it is considered might well be included in the minimum loss because of accidents. Another item of loss that remains unestimated is the amount lost to employers and employees because of the stoppage or decrease in the productivity and earning power of the injured.

Study of the accident results shows that, contrary to a widespread opinion, the owners or drivers of cars at fault in most of the collisions suffered about as much as the innocent parties involved. Insofar as the responsibility for the accidents can be determined it has been ascertained by the motor vehicle department that the property damage burden was divided fairly evenly between those at fault and the involuntary participants. The damage to cars operated by the drivers held to be responsible for the accidents was approximately $1,300,000 and to other vehicles and objects about $1,400,000.

Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the 344 accidental deaths shows that in 135 cases car operators were directly responsible. However, in 129 cases some agent other than the car operator was held to be at fault, particularly pedestrians, trolleys or other types of vehicles or objects. Forty-two cases have not yet been analyzed and in six there was insufficient information available to determine responsibility.

Coroners' findings have been used, largely, by the department, in the attempts to fix responsibility for the deaths. While in a large number of accidents in which motor vehicles were involved the operator or operators have been absolved from responsibility it is apparent that when the case involves the death of a pedestrian, often only one side of the story is available for record, especially when there are no non-participating witnesses.

A series of accidents during recent months in which 7,594 cars were involved has been made the object of a special study by the department. Review of these cases shows that 5,951 of the cars were covered by personal and property liability insurance. The owners of the other 2,443 cars carried no automobile insurance whatever. The percentage of insured cars in this particular group is considered high as conservative estimates place the number of insured vehicles as not more than 60 per cent of those in use upon the highways., while about 67 per cent of those represented in the study were insured.

Among the 3,679 cars whose drivers were considered responsible for the group of accidents, 2,497 or 67 per cent were covered by insurance. This is the same percentage as the total of insured cars in the whole group.

While the property damage total for 1927 is approximately $300,000 above that of 1926, the increase is $100,000 more than the increase rate for the preceeding three years, which was about $200,000 a year. The totals for the past four years are as follows: 1927, $2,750,000; 1926, $2,391,346; 1925, $2,130,877; 1924, $1,878,000.

At What Age Does Dandruff Start?

Dandruff, authorities say, rarely starts before fourteen years of age. At that time the hair, like the rest of the body, is taking a sudden spurt and demands extra nourishment. Dandruff germs easily gain a hold in a neglected scalp. Antiseptic tar soap banishes germs, tones, stimulates. Makes hair and scalp healthy. Packer's, the standard brand of tar soap for 55 years, is recommended by specialists. At all drug and department stores.

INTEREST IN EUROPE OVER PAN-AMERICAN CONGRESS

L. of N. Officials Are Hopeful of Obtaining Expressions of Sentiment That Will Serve the League in Handling International Matters—Probable Results Are Advanced by the Newspapers of Paris—U. S. Government is Confident That Constructive Results Will Accrue From the Conference.

GENEVA, Jan. 15.—The Pan-American conference which opens at Havana tomorrow, will be watched by officials of the league of nations with a view of obtaining expressions of sentiment that will serve the league in handling international matters.

League officials give three reasons why they hope the conference will be a success. The first is that the Pan-American union is pursuing the same general objectives of peace and international co-operation as the league of nations. The second is that many members of the league and three members of its council are represented in the Pan-American conference. The last is that the conference is attempting to do on a regional basis what the league is trying to do on a world-wide basis, such, as for instance, the codification of international law.

It is predicted in league circles that Latin-American members will be in position to suggest useful steps for the co-operation of the Pan-American union and league, at the next session of theassembly.

BUSY WEEK AHEAD FOR BOTH HOUSES OF CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—A legislative pressure generated by its half hundred committees during six weeks of industry will register this week with noticeable force in both houses of congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The sinking of the 6,000-ton steamship Manari with 25-pound air bombs intended for use against ground troops has been reported to the war department from Panama.

The obsolete ship was towed to sea by a mine planter and planes of the 24th Pursuit squadron of the air corps rained small bombs on her on the theory that she was a warship and that the mission of the planes was to drive the crews away from her anti-aircraft guns and open the road for the bombers which were bringing up 100 pound projectiles to sink the ship.

The pursuit planes had not completed dropping fragmentation bombs, however, before the Manari rolled over and went down to the complete disappointment of the bombers who never got a chance at her.

Smith College Girl Missing Since Friday

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. [illegible] (AP)—Several hundred police [illegible] Scouts started a search to[illegible] Miss Frances St. John Smith[illegible] Smith college freshman, a[illegible]gr of a wealthy New Yor[illegible], who has been missing s[illegible]ay morning.

Her father [illegible]n Smith, of 129 East 70th [illegible] New York, has offered a $1,[illegible] reward for information which would result in finding the girl.

While the posses of police and Boy scouts searched the vicinity, college authorities started draining Paradise pond on the Smith College campus.

The girl's disappearance is similar to that of Alice Corbett, 19-year-old Utica, N. Y., girl, who was never seen again after she vanished from Smith college on November 13, 1925. College officials were impressed by the coincidence that both students disappeared on Friday, the 13th.

Miss Smith was last seen at breakfast on Friday. She was not missed, however, until yesterday afternoon when one of her classmates called at her room in Dewey hall and found a note, which she had left for the girl the day before, unopened.

College officials thought that the girl might have gone to Amherst, where her parents have a summer home.

They notified the caretaker there and he searched every part of the buildings and grounds without finding any trace of her.

When her absence was discovered, the college authorities communicated with President William Allen Neilson, who wsa out of the city. He returned immediately and notified State Detective Joseph Daly, who conducted the search for Miss Corbett, and the police.

She has light brown hair and bluish grey eyes. Her fingers are exceptionally long and on the fourth right hand finger she wore a small gold ring with a black enamel vine.

Her father fears that the girl met with an accident while walking in the woods near the college. He said that she suffered from an injured knee which often became disjolnted and prevented her from walking. A fall, he said, would render her helpless.

College officials believe that the girl was dspondent because she was below in studies. She had been on the registrar's list, which contains the names of students of low scholastic standing, for two months, but her marks were said to have improved since she returned to college after the Christmas vacation.

The girl had neither extra clothing nor money when she disappeared. All of her possessions, including a pocketbook containing $7, her checkbook and jewelry, were found in her room. The checkbook showed that she had not withdrawn any money from her account recently.

Detective Daly, unable to advance a theory for the girl's disappearance, canvassed the Northampton drug stores and learned that no poison had been sold to a girl of Miss Smith's age for many weeks. He discarded a theory that she might have begged a ride from a passing motorist because she was of an extremellyshy retiring disposition.

The girl was an ardent cyclist but her bicycle was found in the cellar of her dormitory and a checkup showed that none of the other students' wheels was missing.

LECTURED ON LINDBERGH'S CAREER AND ACHIEVEMENTS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Charles A. Before an audience including representatives of the government, army, and social elite of the Rumanian capital, Popovici closed the lecture with the words, "the nation which can produce such a man and such achievements has nothing to fear for its future. Luncheon of Woman's Nat'l Republican Club

More Than 2,000 Women at Brilliant Affair at the Waldorf in New York Saturday.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—The annual luncheon of the Woman's National Republican club held at the Waldorf in New York yesterday was one of the most successful and brilliant political gatherings ever known in republican circles. More than 2,000 prominent women, and a generous sprinkling of men, as special guests, attended the luncheon, and at its close listened to some of the most eloquent and telling speeches ever heard at a similar gathering.

Delegates and guests from every state in the country went to make up that great republican demonstration of party loyalty and confidence in the success of the 1928 campaign. Not a discordant note was heard, the speech of Hon. William M. Butler of Massachusetts, chairman of the national committee being especially happy and forceful. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, was the special guest of honor. Other speakers were Mrs. Julius Kann, member of congress from California, and Julian Mason, editor of the New York Evening Post.

The New England delegations, representing each of the six states, had large round tables reserved for them, all being located at points of vantage, and making a splendid showing for that section of the country.

The great ball room of the Waldorf was beautifully decorated and music furnished by a great band and orchestra, during the luncheon. The scene was extremely brilliant, and the enthusiasm of the women unbounded, as they predicted a rousing republican victory next fall.

Connecticut furnished the largest delegation of any state. Among the listed are: Mrs. Austin Cheney, South Manchester; Mrs. John B. Russ, national committee woman, Shelton; Miss Annie B. Jennings, Fairfield; Mrs. Charles W. Andrews, New Haven; Mrs. John C. Bulkley, West Hartford; Mrs. Arthur Gillett and Mrs. William H. Deming, Hartford; Mrs. J. W. Aslop, Avon; Mrs. Herbert M. OIL SUBSTITUTES WILL LAST FOR MANY YEARS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—(AP)—When present petroleum deposits in the United States are exhausted the country can turn to oil shale, coal, corn and sugar cane for a supply of oil and oil substitutes that will last for many years, in the opinion of the federal oil conservation board.

The board's second report to the president, made public today, said that in the country's oil shale alone there are 92,000,000,000 barrels of recoverable oil.

The board made one specific recommendation for the executive withdrawal of 4,000 acres of publicly owned coal deposits in wyoming and Montana where there is a coal supply from which, it was estimated, 80,000,000 barrels of oil could be produced.

The board further recommended that while there was no immediate need of developing oil from shale and coal, the study of the technical problems involved in the process should be carried on, as eventually the well oil in the country would be exhausted.

COOLIDGE WAS GREETED BY GREAT CROWDS AT HAVANA

Waterfront and Tall Buildings Were Lined With Humanity as the President Disembarked From the Battleship Texas—The Texas Was Escorted by the Cruiser Memphis and Six Destroyers—The Texas Fired a Salute of 21 Guns When It Passed the Cuban Flag Over Morro Castle—Guns of the Cuban Fort Responded.

HAVANA, Jan. 15—(AP)—The stately Texas, one of Uncle Sam's largest battleships, accompanied by the cruiser Memphis and convoyed by six destroyers, glided into Havana harbor with President Coolidge and his official party at 3:55 this afternoon amid the saluting of cannon at Fort Cabanas and the screeching of sirens and whistles.

The warship bringing the Americans to the Pan-American conference were sighted on the horizon at 2:10 and anxiously watched from all vantage points by thousands of persons. The Texas and her convoy came in at full speed in order to reach the dock on schedule time and at the mouth of the harbor, a quarter of a mile off Morro Point, the ships came to a halt for the formation of a convoy of three destroyers to head the procession. The Texas followed them, then the Memphis, and the three other destroyers brought up the rear.

The firing of salutes opened again when the American ships were opposite the famous Morro Castle. The national and presidential salutes were fired from Fort Cabanas while the 16-pounders of the Texas boomed forth a salute to President Machado and to Cuba. The Memphis and the destroyers joined this chorus with small guns.

As the ships came to rest in Havana harbor, the first American vessels in the port in many years, a graceful salutation was rendered to the Coolidge transport by three of six Cuban army planes which had been circling over the waters throughout the day escorting the American officials. Banking into a side slip the planes dipped before the Texas, on which the presidential colors were flying. These planes had been reporting regularly the progress of the Texas and her companion vessels throughout the day.

A cloudless sky, placid blue sea and cooling tropical breezes combined to make the arrival of the presidential party a pleasant one the beautiful Avenida Malecon, which stretches the entire distance of the Havana harbor, was throned with holiday crowds eager to glimpse President Coolidge and his party when they disembarked from the superdreadnaught. Small boats, steam and sailing yachts and official launches with their gayest flags and bunting flying, dotted the harbor and approached as near the Texas as they could.

A half hour before the battleship steamed majestically into the harbor, President Machado, accompanied by the official reception committee, arrived at the specially constructed pavilion at port headquarters. The party included Vice President and Mrs. Dela Rosa; American Ambassador Noble B. Judah and Mrs. Judah; the Cuban ambassador to Washington, Colonel Orestas Ferrara, and Mrs. Ferrara; President Vazquez, of the Cuban senate and Mrs. Vazquez; all members of the cabinet and supreme court, United States embassy officials and the highest ranking officers of the Cuban government.

When the Texas and her escort of seven warships neared shore, Messrs Judah and Ferrara, accompanied by Colonel Julio Morales Coello and Colonel Rasco, aides to President Machado, boarded the official launch and went out to meet the distinguished visitors. They were taken aboard the super dreadnaught just as she filed past the pavilion Colonels Coello and Rasco officially greeted President Coolidge in the name of the Cuban executive and Mr. Coolidge thanked them in a brief reply.

After the Texas berthed and her gangplanks were made secure, President and Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg, Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur, Ambassadors Judah and Ferrara and President Coolidge's aides and Colonels Coello and Rasco, disembarked and were greeted at the dock by President and Mrs. Machado and the official reception party. The entire assemblage walked to the pavilion where automobiles were waiting and then began the parade to the presidential palace.

President Machado and Mr. Coolidge rode in the first car followed immediately by Mrs. Machado and Mrs. Coolidge in the second car. Seven other automobiles carried the remainder of the party over the beautiful Avenida de Las Misiones through Havana's most colorful and picturesque seaside section to the palace, where the Coolidges were installed in their nine room suite.

Moved as he seldom has been before, Mr. Coolidge responded to the repeated demands for him after he entered the palace by appearing on the balcony of the Cuban president's home, where he looked out over a plaza filled with an enthusiastic crowd. He waved and hundreds threw their hats into the air and cheered.

The president waved first from the center of the balcony, then from the left, and when he turned back again the enthusiasm of the multitude had reached such a pitch that the police lines were broken and the crowd swarmed up to the very door of the palace.

This display of excitement was but a climax to the noisy, tumultuous greeting to which every balcony and house top between the pier and the palance contributed. The narrow, winding streets through which the procession passed reverberated in waves of happy, stacato applause.

GREAT DEMONSTRATION FOR PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

HAVANA, Jan. 15—(AP)—On the shores where American forces planted freedom, President Coolidge landed triumphantly today amid the greatest demonstration Cuba has ever accorded the visiting head of a foreign nation.

He was honored as the head of a great and friendly country by Cubans of high and low estate who, led by their own president, Gerardo Machado, poured out a full measure of homage to the man who came with a message of good will not only for their country but all other nations of the Western Hemisphere.

Landing from the battleship Texas on foreign soil for the first time since he took office, Mr. Coolidge was met by the Cuban chief executive and his cabinet and taken to the national palace through streets literally seething with a mass of wildly cheering Cubans.

It was a spectacle such as this American president had never before participated in and recalled to mind the clamorous entry of Woodrow Wilson into Paris.

PARTY ATTENDED CHURCH SERVICES ON DECK OF TEXAS

ABOARD U. S. S. TEXAS, en route to Havana, Jan. 15—(AP)—Under a threat of rain, President Coolidge and his party were crossing the straits of Florida bound for Havana, Cuba where they are expected to arrive one and a half hours late.

The voyage from Key West, Fla., where the president arrived last night on a special train from Washington started out under ideal conditions, but when the Texas was half way over light rain began to fall.

The party boarded the cruiser Memphis at Key West and seven miles out were transferred by tender to the Texas, where full honors were paid the distinguished guests.

President and Mrs. Coolidge and all others in the party en route to the Pan-American conference attended churhc services on deck under a bright sun. The president was standing the trip well and appeared to enjoy immensely the luncheon served on board the battleship.

CONFERENCE WILL OPEN THIS MORNING

HAVANA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—With all delegations of twenty-one Latin-American countries here and with President Coolidge and party present, the opening meeting of the sixth Pan American conference will take place tomorrow morning at ten thirty at the National theatre, which is located on the Prado, leading thoroughfare five locks from the presidential palace.

Inasmuch as there are to be but two speeches delivered, that of President Gerardo Machado, Cuba, and President Coolidge, both of which are expected to be brief, the meeting will probably be concluded before noon.

CONGRESS IS ATTRACTING GREAT INTEREST IN FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 15—(AP)—The Pan-American congress opening at Havana tomorrow is attracting greater attention in France than any of the five preceding ones and is the leading American topic of discussion.

That the Pan-American union may be turned into a political organization, the establishment of a league of nations for the Western Hemisphere, and that a general attack will be made on the present foreign policy of the United States, are some of the probable results advnced by Paris newspapers.

All papers print lengthy front page stories, the Temps particularly, which devotes two columns to an editorial discussing from all angles the possible effect of the conference. American intervention in Nicaragua, the leading organs of the left feel, cannot be kept out of the discussion at Havana. The attitude of Argentina and Chile toward the proposed resolution which will be proposed by the San Salvador delegation against intervention by any state into the affairs of another, is keenly watched by this group of publications.

OFFICIALS CONFIDENT OF CONSTRUCTIVE RESULTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—The United States government is confident that "valuable and constructive results" will accrue from the Pan-American conference at Havana.

This view was expressed tonight by Secretary Kellogg in a letter addressed to David Lawrence, editor of the United States Daily, a national newspaper devoted entirely to the publication of official news. The letter, which was read over the "red" network of the National Broadcasting company by Mr. Lawrence follows:

"The continuation and development of friendship, mutual understanding and sympathy among the nations of the Western Hemisphere are the ends which the United States believes the sixth international conference of American states can further, and the American delegates will use their best efforts towards the accomplishment of this purpose.

"The policy of the government of the United States towards the republics of Latin America is one of mutually beneficial cooperation, and the spirit of this policy will be manifested in our attitude and action at the approaching conference.

"During past conferences projects have been endorsed and recommendations made on matters political, commercial and sanitary which have had a profound and far-reaching influence on the course of events in this hemisphere. Furthermore, the coming together of men typical of the best feeling and thought of all the republics brings out a gradual growth of mutual understanding upon which it is possible to build solid international friendships founded in justice, respect, good will and tolerance.

"We have every reason to be confident that valuable and constructive results will be derived from the Havana conference."

HOUSE GUTTED BY FIRE OF MYSTERIOUS ORIGIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

Willimantic, Jan. 15.—A blaze of mysterious origin caused damage estimated at between $1,200 and $1,500 early this morning in a frame dwelling at 211 Mansfield avenue, owned by Mrs. Anna DeMarco and occupied on the second floor by Frank Monroe. The lower tenement which suffered heavily was unoccupied. Members of the Monroe family were awakened about 1.35 o'clock in the morning by thick smoke. The Monroes and their two children ran from the building in night clothing and in their haste forgot a three year old collie dog, a great pet of the family. When the firemen reached the animal it had suffocated from smoke. A telephone alarm was sent in to Engine Company No. 1, and the pumper and aerial trucks responded in charge of Assistant Michael J. English. The vacant floor was blazing and two lines of hose were laid. The fire, which spread through the woodwork, gutted the lower floor and gave the firemen nearly one hour's battle before it was extinguished. The blaze was confined to the first story, the only damage to the Monroe home being caused by smoke. Fire Chief Henry J. Kelley conducted an investigation today in an unsuccessful endeavor to discover the cause of the fire. The blaze started in the flooring of the empty kitchen and is believed to have gained much headway before being discovered. After determining that the furnace in the basement had not been in use for several days and that there no defects in the electrical wiring, Chief Kelley gave the cause as "mysterious."

WELLES IS FINED AND HE TAKES AN APPEAL

Willimantic, January 15.—Enlivened by verbal fireworks in which several charges of discrepancies were showered on the court and Coventry politicians in general by the defense counsel, the case of Thomas Welles, defeated Democratic candidate for board of relief in the October elections ofthe town of Coventry, was heard in the Coventry town court Saturday and Welles was fined for not having filed his election expenses. A fine of $25 was imposed and remitted but the remittance did not satisfy Welles' attorney, Robert P. Butler of Hartford, that justice had been meted out and he gave notice of appeal to the superior court. A bond of $200 was named and furnished by Ernest H. Woodward, chairman of the Democratic town committee. In answer to the reading of the charge by Grand Juror Robert G. Brooke, the accused pleaded not guilty. Attorney Butler questioned the right of Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman, a republican to preside at court because of possible political "animosity" but his question remained unsustained. Testimony was given by Town Clerk Louis W. Daniels that Mr. Welles had not filed his expense account and had the backing of the court in the statement that the candidate is responsible for securing the blanks himself for filing his account. The defense counsel's contention was that the town clerk was compelled by law to furnish blanks to the candidates. He claimed that this had not been done and that there were several October election candidateswho had not filed their accounts until after the expiration of the 15-day period.

MRS. ELIZABETH LORD OF HEBRON REACHES 100th YEAR

Willimantic, Jan. 15.—Mrs. Elizabeth Lord, native of Hebron, today reached that much envied milestone of longevity, the century mark. At the home of Mrs. G. M. Hough in Hebron, where the centennarian observed her birthday there was a constant stream of friends today who came to extend their congratulations and well wishes to Aunt Libby as the oldest resident is familiarly and lovingly called. Aunt Libby retains all of her faculties and she had hardly time to read the Sunday papers, which she does without glasses, when she began her busy day of entertaining. Mrs. Lord is the oldest retiring school teacher in the state. Her ancestors, some of whom were early settlers of Hartford and Windsor, figured in the Revolutionary days. Her "kid brother", Alfred Hutchinson of Gilead is 87 years of age. He is her nearest relative.

All previous attendance records were smashed during the four-day run of the third annual Willimantic exposition which closed at the state armory here Saturday night. G., served to bring to the city one of the most widely educational collections of exhibits ever shown here, both in live stock and commercial displays. Special awards which were made by D. D. Cavanaugh, exposition manager in addition to the regular competitive exhibit prizes which have not as yet been compiled, were announced today as going to the following: George Martin of Stafford; Miss Eva Ellis of this city; Ivan M. The continued mild weather of the past week is believed by weather connoisseurs to have shattered the mid winter records of the past 40 years. Ice dealers were watching the prospective ice crops with anxiety today in the fear that the fine grade of ice which had been formed some ten days ago would soon break up if mild weather persisted. While the ice dealers were wondering when the weatherman would assist them in holding their ice the coal dealers were scanning their overstocked bins wondering how to get rid of their stationary stock.

Those who find it necessary to travel over country roads hereabouts are meeting with difficulty in navigating several inches of mud caused by the pre-season thawing which has lifted some six inches of frost from the ground within the past week. The rural delivery letter carriers haave found it difficult to maintain a schedule as some of the roads are practically impassable because of mud and detours are necessary in some instances. Rural Carrier George H. Arnold, who covers 25 miles on Route 1 has had to deviate his course in several places, especially in Village Hill, town of Lebanon. Rural Carrier William Cummings on Route No. 2 states that Scotland roads are heavily surfaced with mud.

Lillian May, nine months old daughter of George M. and Winifred Kelly Brown, died at the home of her parents in South Coventry Saturday morning after a brief illness of pricing monia. She was an only child. The funeral services were held at two o'clock this afternoon with burial in St. Mary's cemetery, South Soventry. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey Brothers.

The efforts of several members of the police department to pin the cognomen of "bugologist" on one of their contemporaries is meeting only with wholesale denials on the part of the "finest" who have been approached with the title. The recurring appearance of insects that are now out of season at police headquarters has led into an investigation to establish the identity of the amateur entomologist. A thriving caterpillar that was doing well in January weather, is the latest catch of the mysterious bug-chaser and the police are looking forward to sa butterfly.

NOANK

Friday fell on the 13th in the village. A young man, Mike Sallico, who is a member of the American Legion post, No. 55, had his plans all made for a big time in Norwich that evening. So in the afternoon the Legionnaire dolled up like a sheik and was standing at the waiting room at 2 o'clock for the bus to come along for over one hour. He waited in vain until a friend came along and said "Where are you going, Mike, to a wedding?" "No," was his answer, "to attend the district meeting in Norwich tonight!" Then thinking for a minute. "Sure enough, I forgot it is the 13th and unlucky! I lost a half day's pay waiting and that is twice the 13th proved unlucky to me!"

The American Legion post in a large trolley bus stopped at the waiting room with 1 aboard Friday night, bound for the Rose of New England, where a district meeting of the Legion was held in Buckingham Memorial. Over 150, also the auxiliary members, sat down to a fine Norwich oyster stew.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 15—Simon P. Nichols, 72, whose death occurred at the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital Friday about midnight, never regained consciousness from injuries suffered when he was struck on Fishtown Hill, Mystic-Groton road, by the automobile operated by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the New London Second Congregational church. He was a resident of Potter Hill road, Westerly for more than two score years. Mr. Nichols was the son of David and Lydia R. Sherman Nichols and was born Feb. 8, 1855, in the town of Exeter. March 13, 1878, he married Miss Georgia A. Crandall of Charlestown. About 43 years ago he bought a farm on the Potter Hill road, just outside the village of Westerly. He was elected a member of Westerly town council on the reform ticket of 1906 when the entire republican slate was defeated by a combination of democrats, republicans and prohibitionists. For a number of years Mr. Nichols was a fire warden of this town. He was one of the chester members of the Washington County Agricultural society, also was a member of the First Baptist church. He is survived by his widow; one daughter, Miss Jessie M. Nichols, and two sons, John D. and Harry J. Nichols, all of Westerly; also a sister, Mrs. Sarah A. Law, in Roslindale, Mass. JEWETT CITY

JACOB DAVIS, NORWICH, COLLIDES WITH B. I. CAR

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 15.— Jacob Davis, of 57 Forest street, Norwich, driving a Hupmobile, bound south at the S curve Tadpole bridge this afternoon, was in collision with a north bound Ford coach. The latter machine was drvien by Albert Dewey, with George R. Lewis as a passenger; both are U. S. Coast Guardsmen from Block Island. Both machines were pretty well stove up. Local wrecker removed the cars as wheels were smashed on both. No one was injured, and by merest chance the Ford escaped being rammed over the bank. Officer Henry Vegiard found that there was no foot brake on the Hupmobile. Davis will have to explain this matter in court Monday morning.

HENRY A. JONES DEAD— OLD-TIME STAGE DRIVER

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 15.—Henry Alfred Jones, 72, died at his home on North Main street, Saturday, after a long period of ill-health. Mr. Jones was born in Foster, R. I., August 4th, 1885, the son of Alfred and Diana Young Jones. His home has been in Jewett City for over fifty years, where he was known as a man of most kindly disposition. He married in 1883, Stella Green, who after years of helpless invalidness during which Mr. Jones and Miss Minnie Green his wife's sister, devoted their entire time to her care, died two years ago. Since then Miss Green has cared for Mr. Jones, the only daughter, Mrs. George Robertson of Danielson of Danielson spending as much time at the home of her parents during these years as was possible. Besides the daughter, a grandson, Methven survives Mr. Jones. There are also three nieces.

Mr. Jones was one of the pioneer drivers in the overland stage line that forty years ago made daily trips between Jewett City and Voluntown, with a stop at Pachaug. With the establishment of regular star route mail service by the post office department, Mr. Jones bid in the contract, and in spite of the heavy snows of those winter seasons, for 25 years, never missed a trip when it could possibly be accomplished. Mr. Jones, at that time, was one of the Boat-train watchmen. A long obsolete Connecticut law, required that a white lantern should be shown to the engine drivers of night expresses, as they approached the first-switch in any town, where no stop was to be made. The Boat-train due here at 10.17 p. m. south, and 4:45 a. m. north, was duly signalled accordingly to law by Mr. Jones for a considerable term of service.

Many call at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox to admire the display of artistic 1928 calenders. Within the collection, which is 41 in number, are to be seen many of the handsomest prints and paintings in the east. Every one was given to the present owner. The admiration of those who have seen the set, is divided because of the widely diversified subjects which are taken up by firms and traffic organizations that choose to utilize this form of advertising. The railroad calendars are the most striking and the outstanding figures in the group. Notably the new issue of the Pennsylvania system, "When the Broad Way Meets the Dawn," and the New York Central's, "Thoroughbreds", with the New York, New Haven and Hartford's issue, "Serving New England," make a trio of railroad calendars unexcelled. The first two are from paintings by Grif Tellar and Walter L. Green respectively, and are reproductions true to color detail.

There are the new prints of the White Star, Buxton, Munson, and the Cunard and Anchor steamship lines. The sets from the Attleboro Falls, Mass., jewelry and box firms are all water colors, done by hand from the original, and are Gerlach-Barklow creations. To be seen in one set from the W. N. Fisher Co., are seven years, all young women's photographs, large cabinet mountings, tinted in water cloors by hand, they are chosen from among the beautiful girls of eastern Massachusetts. The group of bank calendars includes novelties from the Jewett City Savings, the Brooklyn Savings and the Windham National. These portray two attractive scenes from nature, with "Old Ironsides" frmo the Danielson bank.

The American Bank Note Co. has its accustomed unique issue in varied color, and a New York linen company, finally allowed its "Such a Little Beauty" to go outside the trade.

A commercial air plane calendar, featuring Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and a local specialty given by L. E. Boucher, a home photographer, are in a class by themselves.

One of the real peaches of the collection is "Connecticut" from the Edison Mazda Lamp department of hte General Electric Co. its beauties, two of them must be seen, as printer's ink is inadequate to tell the story.

The General Electric also presents in its regular calendar, a series fo 12 pictures, all from the brush of W L. Green, that serve to show augmented strength and new economics in modern electrical equipment. Local firms are contributory to the sets, including the issues by Frank Driscoll, W. LaChapelle, Edmond Jodoin, Hourigan Bros., Sullivan's store and Adams Motor Co. Notable among the insurance prints are those from William A. Wilcox of Westerly, G. R. Edmond, Voluntown, and the Pacific Mutual, of California, R. Hoe & Co. of New York, and the Western Insurance Co give scenes in the Squol redwood reserve, "The Majesty of Age," and "Wawona in Winter."

The granite companies' set are masterpieces, with "The Burial Place of Shakespeare, Stratford-on-Avon," from the New England Granite works, in panel design, and the "Foundation of American Government," from the Smith Granite Co. both of Westerly, and, "With Malice Toward None, With Charity for All," from the famous painting by Harold Brett, an offering from the Golden Pink Monumental works, Niantic.

Two Colonial prints in high color are beauties, "The Peace Ball" from the U. S. Mortgage Loan and Trust Co., of New York. Several salt water scenes are from Fall River and New Bedford, with the yacht race between the Henry Ford and the Columbia, from Geo Kirby Jr. Others of outstanding attractiveness and varied design and subject are from The Hercules Powder Co. Wilmington, Delaware, the Winchester Arms Co. Wheaton Lumber Co. of Putnam. Thos. Redfern & Fern of Fall River, gave a lake and mountain night camp scene. The "Anne Hathaway Cottage," is from the Grove Street greenhouses, Putnam. John A. Roebling's Sons of Trenton have to offer a copy in oil, in their Hydro-Electric development scene at Conowingo, Maryland.

For real artistic merit, F. & B. Suter, of Pawtucket gave one of a painting in water color, "An Adirondack Dream." The De Laval Separator Co. of New York, celebrate its gloden anniversary with a trade color calendar, as large as a door. Certain of the displays are issued at a cost of as much as $5 each by the hundred. Many of the finest in the collection were secured by visits to the ocean traffic docks and distant city establishments.

BODY OF MRS. KEITH FOUND AT NO. GROSVENORDALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 15—The waters of the river that had held it for more than two months this afternoon yielded up the body of Hilda Marlene Pierce, otherwise known as Mrs. Marlene Keith, whose home is in Raynham Center, Mass. She was about 22 years of age. The young woman lost her life on the eve of Armistice day when the car in which she was riding with Jerome Sheldon of Watertown, Mass., and formerly of Putnam plunged through a guard rail and dropped into the deep water of the mill pond at Wilsonville in the town of Thompson. A mailman passing that way early the next morning noticed the illuminated taillight of Sheldon's car protruding from the water and when the car was taken out the body of Sheldon was found within it. Other contents of the car included a woman's hat indicating that Sheldon was not alone when the car took the fatal plunge. This suspicion was strengthened by the fact that Marlene Keith, who was known to be friendly with Sheldon, was missing from her home near Boston. State officers from the Danielson barracks dragged the mill pond and searched along the river bank for a day without any indication that a body was in the river. Eventually the search was abandoned and the belief grew stronger that Sheldon was alone when he met his death.

Early this afternoon the engineer of a freight bound from Worcester to Putnam at a point where the tracks skirt the river about two miles north of North Grosvenordale saw the body floating in the stream and reported it on the arrival of the train at Putnam. Coroner Arthur C. Bill, Dr. R. C. Payne, medical examiner, of Thompson, and officers from the Danielson barracks hurried to where the body was floating and where it was later recovered. Positive identification was made tonight after Lieut. Ross V. Erkhart of the Danielson barracks had communicated by telephone with the dead woman's relatives and was furnished by them with information about markings on the body that would fix beyond her identity. The body was found to carry these marks. The condition of the body was such after its long immersion that it was placed in the vault at the cemetery in West Thompson to await instructions of the girl's relatives.

It has been definitely established that a child of Mrs. Keith supposed to have been in the car with her did not figure in the accident. The finding of a nursing bottle and a child's baseball bat in the car when it was taken out of the mill pond led to the belief that a child might have been with Mrs. Keith, but it had been established that this was not a fact. The child is said to be with relatives in Mass.

Approximately 500 residents of the town of Killingly—men and women—failed to pay their personal tax assessments before 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, the time limit, so now will be called up to pay an extra dollar. Repeated announcements relative to this tax being due did not serve to stir the delinquents into payment.

During Saturday Arthur A. Dean, collector of personal taxes, received payments from about 300 people. There was no great rush to pay at any time, but a fairly steady stream of payments flowed in during the hours the office was open.

Danielson's fixed policy of refusing to furnish night's lodgings for rounders is working out very satisfactorily. It appears that the gentry of the road have passed the word along that this town is not one that welcomes them with open arms. The majority of them are giving it a wide berth—but not all of them. Occasionally a candidate for a place to sleep and breakfast makes ficer, but invariably is turned down. Many are the tales poured into officers' application for what he wants to an officers and many the ruses tried in an effort to get sympathy and the comfort that goes with it, but the officers are obdurate and their answer is always a firm "No."

The deer inhabiting towns in this section of Windham county are becoming more and more fastidious. In this open winter when they find little difficulty in getting food they are browsing on the tender twigs of fruit trees and causing heavy damage in some quarters. Among those who have suffered losses and others who have witnessed instances of damage that deer can do there is a growing sentiment for an open season for hunting the animal. Deer appear to be more numerous than ever in this section, though many of them have been legally killed off by owners of lands that have found them doing damage, not to mention those that have become the principal factors in venison dinners by getting within range of hunters who do not hesitate to shoot one, if the chances of detection are not too great.

Happenings in the central section of the state, particularly in Middletown, have led Health Officer E. C. Babson of the town of Brooklyn to advise that vaccination be resorted to in this territory as a protection against the possible contracting of a dread disease. He points out that in this day of such easy and such frequent going about by means of motor vehicles that one never can tell when some person making a tri pinto territory where epidemic is rampant may be the means of bringing a disease into territory that is free from it.

Register number seven for Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey, who has had much success in hunting foxes this winter and during the past fall. At the week end he brought in the seventh red fox of the season, this one a fine dog fox. Only the accidental happening along of a man while a fox was running directly toward Warden Withey on a day last week kept his score below eight, for on seeing the man the fox turned off on a new course.

This afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Addie R. Robbins was held from the home at East Killingly with services at the Union Baptist church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, pastor of the Danielson Baptist church conducted the service. During the service Mrs. Elizabeth Potter and Grace Sheffield sang Jesus Knows and Cares, and Abide With Me. The bearers were Robert Smith, Claude Moran, William H. Cook and George Mason. The body was entombed at Bartlett cemetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

From the home on Franklin street the funeral of Mrs. Rose Teatreault, wife of Joseph Tetreault was held Saturday morning with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Many relatives and friends were in attendance, including the members of the Ste. Anne society. Rev. Oscar Norman of Moosup was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. The bearers were Louis L'Homme, Theodore L'Homme, Alfred L'Homme, Eli Gamache, Frederick Gamache and Joseph Gamache. The honorary bearers representing the Ste. Anne society were Mrs. Joseph Gallichant, Mrs. Omer Aubin, Mrs. Martin T. Burns, Mrs. Pierre Rondeau, Mrs. Victor Perreault and Mrs. Joseph Malboeuf. Burial was in St. James's cemetery, where the committal service was rendered by Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S. and Rev. Fr. Norman. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Corporal Warren D. Nichols and Trooper Bernard F. Redihan of the Rhode Island state police barracks at North Scituate, a few miles east of here have been meted out punishment by their superiors in the department for allowing Ernest K. Gould to escape from custody at the barracks one day last week. Trooper Redihan has been dismissed from the department and Corporal Nichols reduced to trooper. PUTNAM

D. A. R. TO SPONSOR DRIVE FOR LIBRARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, aJn. 15.—The Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter D. A. R. is much interested in having a new public library building in Putnam and for several years has been working with that end in view. The following letter which is self explanatory has been sent to the library directors and to the various organizations of the city:

"The Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution for several years has been accumulating a sum of money known as the Library fund which has now reached $2,500. This, while small, is sufficient to serve as a nucleus of a much larger amount. At the November meeting of the chapter a committee was appointed to consider the advisibility of an immediate effort.

"Obviously the matter is too large for one organization to take upon itself. It must be shared by every organization and every citizen. Therefore bearing the vital need and the greatness of the task in mind, the committee has drafted this letter which has been sent to all organizations in the town soliciting co-operation.

"You are asked as an organization to appoint a representative to meet with the aforesaid committee Monday evening, January 16, at 8 o'clock in the Community room of the savings bank to discuss entering immediately on a definite campaign for this purpose."

The present Putnam free library is located on the second floor of the municipal building on Church street. There is but one room and that is not large.

An evidence of the mildness of the winter was the appearance Saturday morning of a flock of gold finches, if that is what they are, black birds with yellow wings. Usually these birds are not seen here until early spring.

The rain Friday night and last night was accompanied by thunder and lightening, another thing that has played havoc with the prognostications of the weather prophets. There has been but one snow storm—that a slight one—and the snow was washed away the next night by a heavy rain. The weather today has been like a spring day.

What every woman wants

—and can readily obtain

WOMEN the world over are constantly seeking greater opportunities for expression of the yearnings and talents within them. Half-puzzled, half-plaintive, they ask themselves this question—"What can I do to accomplish something worth while—to win my own way in the world?"

It is the plea of women who have lost husband or father, and find themselves facing, for the first time, the grim reality of self-support.

It is the query of women whose home life leaves free hours that might be diverted from idleness to constructive achievement. . . . All of them murmur in concert, "What can I do?"

The response is immediate. It comes from the large group of other women already successful in business and the professions.

"Today, women are welcomed in scores of vocations formerly closed to them—provided they have the necessary training. Only study will qualify you for the position you choose. . . . You must learn, to earn."

Thousands of women have found a certain, simple way to acquire the training that is so indispensable—through the courses of the International Correspondence Schools. Nearly 10% of the students in "The Universal University" are co-eds!

Accounting, advertising, architecture, art, banking, chemistry, drafting, industrial and personnel management—many, many fields include women who have gained their background from home-study courses. To a great number of them, instruction by any other means would have been impossible. Their letters of appreciation fill our files.

If necessity has set you to searching for a vocation—even if you want work just for the zest of it—the coupon below will help you to a decision. It will bring you booklets explaining the modern method of spare-time study at home. It will start you toward the full independence that every woman wants and so many women have achieved through I. C. S. training.

THE ENDURANCE FLIGHT

Not from a lack of courage or a willingness to stick to it until accomplished, did Chamberlin and Williams give up their attempt to break the endurance flight in which it was hoped to establish a new international record. The fact is that they appear to have met the various difficulties encountered in a skillful manner but there were handicaps which could not be overcome. When they got to the point where the fuel gave out there was nothing else to do but land, record or no record, but it was most unfortunate that leaks should have been the cause of this for they went through all kinds of hardships and met all the conditions which were imposed upon them in the way of personal suffering with resignation.

Such a combination of difficulties as developed may perhaps be anticipated on any such flight, whether it involved the circling of a particular locality or making distance, but while leaks and mechanical trouble may develop it is less frequent that they affect the food. The particular mixture of troubles was enough to discourage, so that it is all the more surprising that they were able to come within the half hour of the existing record.

But when difficulties of that kind are being faced by those who are flying over land, it serves all the more to accentuate the hazard faced by those who undertake flights across the ocean. There are machines in which successful flights have been made to Europe, but there are others which have never been seen again after attempting such crossings. This probably will not stand in the way of further efforts to fly the Atlantic but in both ocean crossings and in endurance land flying the need of overcoming existing or possible defects in the flying machine is effectively demonstrated.

Chamberlin's flight was fortunately over land. He could make a landing when necessary but it would have been a serious predicament had he been forced down in midocean. But bothersome as the difficulties were they will not stand in the way of further attempts on, as it is believed, the successful attack upon the record.

EXCHANGING THIRD LIBERTIES

Commencing today it is possible for the holders of third Liberty bonds to make an exchange whereby they will receive in their place United States treasury notes bearing 3 1-2 per cent. interest and running for five years, although they are callable in 1930.

Such an exchange might not seem desirable, inasmuch as the bonds pay 4 1-4 per cent. interest, but for the fact that the third Liberties mature in September of this year. Thus the government is beginning early in its refunding operations and furnishing an opportunity for those willing to make an exchange now to transfer their funds to another government security.

This is only another of the methods followed by the treasury in meeting its war obligations, and it comes soon after the calling of the second Liberties. At the present time only those interested in an exchange are interested in the new proposition, and an encouragement to such the government will pay interest on the new notes from the date of issue and will in addition pay full interest on the exchanged bonds to the middle of March. This double interest will mean an advantage of about 70 cents on each $100 bond and will thus practically offset the premium of 75 cents which can now be obtained on the bonds in the market.

It is a case where the treasury department apparently believes that there is an advantage in tackling this job early through inducements that will encourage the exchange. Later there may be a chance to buy the treasury certificates and as the time approaches for the payment of the bonds the treasury can be expected to have the matter so arranged that the whole transaction will be quickly put through.

In meeting its obligations the treasury has frequently employed the short term notes and it has been its experience that there has been an eagerness to get them.

NOT AN EASY TASK

When this country undertakes to assure to Nicaragua a fair election this year it involves no easy task, and Brigadier General McCoy, who has set out for that country to supervise that election must be fully conscious of his responsibility.

Fair elections may be said to have been about as scarce as hen's teeth in the Nicaraguan republic. There have been changes in control but when that has occurred it has been by the bullet rather than the ballot. The revolution has been depended upon to bring about an upset of the government and it was inevitable that it would have its detrimental effect upon the country.

Thus when this country, through the agreement of the conservative and liberal parties in Nicaragua, agrees to see that Nicaragua has a fair election it promises a novelty to that republic, but which should be welcomed in a most enthusiastic manner. The chance to go to the polls and vote for the officials desired, without being subjected to dictation, or guided by armed men who are laboring for one or the other candidates, may seem Utopian to the Nicaraguan voters, but that will be the mission of this government.

Because it is different and because this aid to Nicaragua is coming from the outside there will be those who will do their utmost to handicap it. Even thought it is for their benefit there will be those who will resent it. There will be anger displayed because the revolutionists cannot have their way as in the past. Personal feelings will not give way to national benefits. Those who have worked for peace have invariably been forced to experience difficulties.

Supervising an election in Nicaragua is decidedly different from doing such work in one of the states of this country. It will require long and thorough preparation, which explains the departure of General McCoy this month for the field where the election will not take place until October. It is unfortunate that all the Nicaraguans will not lend their assistance to what is to be done for their benefit instead of putting obstacles in the way to handicap the election and to create the impression in the days to come that fairness is not being shown.

BULLETIN FUND FOR BLINDED BOY

For the purpose of giving needed assistance to Kenneth LaFlamme, the 14 year old Montville boy who was blinded as the result of an automobile collision on Mohegan hill last month, The Bulletin today heads a subscription list with a contribution of $100 and will receive such funds as others will undoubtedly wish to contribute in such a worthy cause.

This is an instance where a boy at a critical age faces a life of blindness because of an accident. The distressing affair naturally arouses much sympathy but something more substantial is required if he is going to be aided to maintain himself and get an education that will make it possible for him to find employment under his handicap.

Only a few months ago Norwich had an effective demonstration of the accomplishments of blind persons throughout the state. Their handiwork was varied and excellent, and through that channel they are able to make fine use of their time and in spite of their handicap be industrious and self sustaining citizens.

Such a case as that of Kenneth La Flamme cannot fail to appeal to those who are in full enjoyment of their eyesight and to awaken a desire to roll up the contributions to the point where he will be able to obtain financial assistance for study as a blind pupil and to aid him in meeting and overcoming the tremendous burden which has been thrown upon an active boy.

The Bulletin is pleased to lead in this worthy cause and will receive such contributions, large and small, as the people or organizations in this end of the state desire to make.

AIR MAIL SERVICE

Without a doubt the time is not far off when air mail service to the republics to the south of us will be established. The flying demonstrations which have been made indicate it. This would mean not only a much better service between the countries involved but it is to be realized that it means a service where existing rail connections are not of the best. Thus the air service would mean an advantage in more ways than one to say nothing to bringing the respective countries closer together.

Before such lines are established, however, it is likely that there will be a survey to determine whether such lines could be maintained at a profit. Unless operated by governments this is a necessary phase of the matter. Private capital isn't disposed to do something for nothing for an indefinite period of time, and it certainly could not be expected.

Last month air mail service out of Indianapolis to Chicago by a line starting at Cincinnati was established. It is too short a time to pass final judgment on its success but when the postmaster of the first named city calls attention to the fact that owners of the flying contract have been losing money ever since they started, that the business men are not taking advantage of the service but are adhering to the slower method and in some instances the greater cost, it becomes apparent that the public must come in for more or less intensive education regarding this service if it is going to be continued and if they are to be awakened to their own welfare.

Air mail service will experience a steady increase, it is confidently believed, but the change from the old to the new isn't always as rapid as sometimes supposed.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Half of January gone, and only six weeks to spring!

The man on the corner says: Isn't it about time for someone to spring a blizzard prediction?

Did you predict that because we had no summer last year that this winter would be like it is?

"Are we eating less?" someone asks. Possibly so but the number of restaurants continues to grow.

Inasmuch as he has been sent into exile, Trotzky couldn't have fared much worse is the czar still reigned.

Probably Houston doesn't realize what it is letting itself in for, but it expects to get some return and a lot of advertising.

Perhaps Congressman LaGuardia would learn differently about rum running at New York if he should spend a little time in the enforcement service.

The testimony that is being given concerning the 8-4 and the attempts at rescue completely refute some of the stories which carried so much criticism.

To avoid splitting hardwood when you drive nails into it, rub them with soap.

The roasting pan is much easier to clean if the inside is well greased before the fowl is put in.

When making hash from left-over meat add a little fresh liver and it will be greatly improved.

Bake cookies on the bottom of an overturned baking pan and they will never be too brown.

Put hot cookies or doughnuts in a crock with the skin of an orange or lemon. It gives them a very delicate flavor.

Preserves of all kinds, more especially if they are in glass bottles, should be stored in a dark place. They quickly deteriorate in flavor if kept in a light place.

A lump of starch dissolved in the water with which the windows are to be washed will make the glass shine.

An inch or so of adhesive tape on each corner of the bed springs is likely to save many tears in the corners of the sheets.

A soft paste of whiting and ammonia will clean brass nicely, but if followed with a "rub down" of olive oil, it will keep bright for a long time.

Fingermarks on doors and cupboards vanish when lightly rubbed with a piece of flannel dipped in melted paraffin. In order to do away with the odor of the oil rub the door with a clean flannel wrung out in hot water.

COOLING FOOD.

Food should never be allowed to cool in the kettle in which it has been cooked unless the pot is earthenware. Delicately flavored foods are affected by the metal.

A STRING HOLDER.

Paint the old funnel white and use it in the kitchen to hold a ball of twine, the end coming out the spout. It will save that everlasting hunt for an elusive piece of string when you are in a hurry.

FRYING FISH.

If the fish you are frying seems to splatter a great deal, invert the colander over the pan. This will prevent splashing, and yet the small holes will allow the steam to escape.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Boil all linens use in a sick room, rinse and hang in the sun and frost if possible.

If a child puts a bean up his nose, a little pepper put on his upper lip will cause him to sneeze it out.

While there are many good remedies for dandruff on the market, it is a mistake to believe that the mere application of a salve or lotion will rid the scalp of the trouble permanently. The flakes should be gently loosened with a fine comb and brushed out about once a week. Every day the scalp should be massaged thoroughly and the hair brushed out.

Cold weather renders the outer skin more brittle and harder. The natural oil flows less freely then, so that the lubrication which keeps the whole skin elastic, soft, and humid is faulty. It is, therefore, much more damaging to scrub and over-wash hands in cold than it is in warm weather. Hands, to be at their whitest and most charming, should be but rarely washed.

POWDER YOUR GLOVES.

Another excellent use for talcum powder is to shake into kid gloves after they have been worn and are being put away. The powder absorbs the moisture of perspiration that may be inside the glove without showing through the kid. When taking out the gloves later to wear at another time, shake out the powder and the gloves will be fresh and sweet and flexible.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR TRAYS

It is difficult to put down a heavily laden tray as gently and quietly as one could wish, and consequently the polished surfaces of tables and sideboard are often scratched. This is very simply overcome by covering the bottom of trays with baize. Cut to fit and fixed with some household glue from a tube, the job is quickly and neatly accomplished.

TO CLEAN TAN SHOES.

Tan shoes often become almost black owing to the wax in the polish caking on the surface of the leather. The layer of wax absorbs mud and dirt, which cannot be entirely brushed off and is glossed over by the next application of polish. When this has occurred give the shoes a good rubbing with an old rag moistened with petrol, paying particular attention to the creases. The petrol will dissolve and remove the dirty coating. Put the shoes in a current of air for an hour, then polish again and the original tan color will be restored.

TWO IN ONE.

When boiling ham, preparatory to baking, save the water in which it is boiled and in it cook the cabbage. It will give the cabbage much more flavor than if cooked in plain water and can be boiling while the ham is receiving a spicy brown coat in the oven.

MORE FLAVOR.

When boiled ham is to be used cold, be sure to let the ham cool in the liquor in which it has been cooked. It will then be juicy and tender.

Bloomer frocks of printed challis are very cunning and smart for little girls.

An ensemble of midnight blue red has a one-piece dress, with the bodice embroidered and edged with white and a short jacket.

A gaudy Scotch plaid silk fashions the pleated skirt of a new sports ensemble that uses white jersey for the jumper.

France sends "grege" as a contribution to our color card. It is a soft grey-biege—like the old-fashioned "fawn" on a dark day.

A parrakeet green silk marocain has an extra bolero jacket with a longer back line, making an ensemble of the peacock silhouetted frock.

White velveteen fashions stunning new cardigans for sports. They may be stitched fancily in color or may grow nautical with brass buttons.

Dance handkerchiefs are huge, almost as big as a man's. They come in fragile chiffon and lace. A cherry red chiffon one has a modernistic pink pattern.

Hosiery grows darker this winter. New grays, however, take on a rosy tint somewhat like the beiges did this summer, making lovely colors.

The winter's hand bags grow larger. Some of them are roomy to the point of pouchiness. A green tweed one measures 12 inches long.

Chanel has introduced an entirely new accessory — the evening neckerchief of sequined net which is thrown carelessly over the shoulders, or knotted and pinned at one shoulder.

A new leather called sea leopard is the very latest thing. The skin is pitted in an all-over patern, and the color tone is a rich brown beige with natural markings of umber.

AS SABLES ARE WORN.

Nearly every woman craves to wear sables, but the extent of her sophistication nowadays is measured by the place where she craves to wear them. The real place is not in a scarf or as a collar to a coat but as deep cuffs on a cloth coat. These often extend from elbow to wrist, and sable cuffs of that type cost approximately what three sable chokers might be bought for.

NEW BLACK COAT.

Black, always important in the mode, takes on new interest for the smart woman in a very new-styled coat developed in black broadcloth with an enveloping collar of black caracul which reaches down to the elbow in the new cape manner.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

Fold clothes carefully before putting them through the wringer. If put through in bunches the clothes are apt to be torn and the strain on the wringer soon tells on the springs, frequently causing breakage.

It is not wise to soak clothes in hot water and leave them in it until the water is cold, as cloth fiber expands in warm water and contracts in cold and will in this way hold the dirt. Make a suds of cold water if you want them to soak for a length of time.

When white clothes become discolored, soak them overnight in a solution of cream of tartar and water, one teaspoonful to a quart of cold water. The next day wash in the usual way and they will be as white as when new.

STAIN REMOVERS.

Remove tea and coffee stains with boiling water.

Remove milk and cream with cold water.

Remove grass stains with ammonia and water.

Remove ink stains with some milk, lemon juice or salts of lemon.

Remove paint with turpentine or turpentine and ammonia.

Remove iron rust by moistening with ammonia, then use salts of lemon or oxalic acid. Rinse in boiling water.

Remove medicine stains with alcohol.

Remove tar with kerosene, then warm water and soap.

REPAIRING FURS.

If you are looking over your furs and discover a tear in the skin, it should be mended immediately, or the hard wear of winter will make it beyond repair. If the skin is thin and deteriorated, mending with a needle and silk is virtually useless, for it pulls away as fast as it is sewn. A better and easier plan is to purchase a small packet of the rubberized tape which is sold for repairing and remaking hems on mackintoshes. Draw the edges of the skin together, place a patch of the tape on the spot and press with a warm iron.

CARE OF PLANTS.

If a plant begins to look sickly, give it a bath in the following way: Take a basin, or better an eight or ten-quart pail of hot water and make a very strong ivory soap suds. When the water is lukewarm hold crushed newspapers all around the earth of the plant so that it will not fall out of the pot, invert the plant and wash with a sponge or soft cloth each leaf and stem thoroughly in the solution. Do not put in the sun to dry. Repeat once a week for two or three weeks and the plant will be strong and healthy.

A BETTER POLISH.

Don't forget to wipe off the furniture with a cloth wrung out of warm water and remove all dirt before applying a polish. It will mean a much more brilliant luster.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Miss Margaret Bevan, first lord Mayor of Liverpool, England, has had her salary raised from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.

Mme. Sarah Grand, the novelist, who has served for terms as Mayor of Bath, England, has been invited to serve a fifth term.

Mrs. Charles H. Blackwell of Rapid City, S. D., is known as the "bee king" of that state. She ships 50,000 pounds of honey from her farm annually.

Mrs. Maud Chin has just completed 20 years of service in San Francisco's famous Chinatown telephone exchange. She is chief operator and possessor of a four-star service button.

One of the few women who wield a megaphone in Hollywood is Miss Elizabeth Pickett, formerly of Oak Park, a suburb of Chicago. She is listed as a full-fledged movie director.

Nearly all old women do the heavy work of porters in Dieppe, France, in the fish markets and on the beach, where they carry loads of stone weighing 150 to 200 pounds on their backs.

DELICIOUS CLAMS.

Oysters or clams are delicious if baked, covered with chopped spinach, cream sauce and sprinkled over the top with crumbs and cheese.

COMBINATION SALAD.

Finely shredded cabbage, finely diced green pepper and pineapples make an appetizing salad. Use boiled dressing over it.

RECIPES.

Six Fruit Frozen Salad—An even more delicious salad combination of frozen fruits may be prepared with one cup of mayonnaise, one and one-half cups of heavy cream, one-half cup of diced, canned pineapple, one teaspoon of gelatine, three-fourths cup of halved strawberries, three-fourths cup of diced oranges, and one-half cup of mixed minced maraschino cherries and stoned minced dates. Pour the cold water over the gelatine and let stand five minutes. Melt the gelatine over hot water, add it to the mayonnaise, and fold the whole into the heavy cream, whipped. Stir in all the fruit, pour into mold dipped in cold water and bury in ice and salt four hours. This salad may be moulded in individual servings (which should be small, since frozen salads are very rich), and chilled for only two hours. Serve with hearts of lettuce and fresh fruit.

Lemon Meringue Tarts—Bake some rich pastry in patty pans. For the filling scald two cups of milk and pour it slowly onto one cup of sugar, one-fourth teaspoon of salt and three tablespoons of cornstarch, which have been mixed together. Cook in a double boiler for 15 minutes, stirring constantly until thickened. Beat two egg yolks and add them to the first mixture. Cook for three minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from the stove, add three tablespoons of lemon juice and the grated rind of one lemon. Cool slightly, pour into the baked shells. Cover with meringue made by beating two egg whites stiff and adding four tablespoons of sugar. Bake in a moderate oven until firm and slightly browned.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Although a teacher of the dead language, Ralph Van Beman Magoffin, who has been elected to his seventh term as president of the Archaeological Society of America, is far from being a dead one. A native of Kansas, he benefited by experience in railroad work, and as a worker in a lumber mill and a cotton gin in Arkansas, and ran a drug store—all before he had commenced to begin a college education. As a consequence he was nearly 30 years old when he graduated from the University of Michigan. Now, when only past fifty, he is president of one of the great learned societies of America and a writer of international reputation on classical subjects. After several years on the faculty of Johns Hopkins University, Professor Magoffin is now head of the classical department of New York University.

YOUR HEALTH

The Problem of Appendicitis

By Arthur O. Hart, M. D., St. Johns, Mich., Member Gorgas Memorial

Physicians are often asked, "What is the function of the appendix?" The only answer that can be given is that it has no known function except to cause trouble. It is the organ most subject to disease in the abdomen. It oftimes can empty itself only with difficulty and has a blood circulation that is interfered with very easily. It constantly contains material swarming with bacteria, many of which can cause disease, and, whenever it is unable to empty easily or its circulation is lessened, the lining membrane loses its normal resistance and is easily penetrated by the bacteria.

There is an old saying that "disease always settles in the weakest part," and, as the appendix is the weakest organ in the human abdomen, any irritation of the bowels is very liable to cause inflammation of the appendix.

In one county of our state, which has nearly 25,000 population, there were, in 1923, about 96 cases of appendicitis, with 17 deaths—a heavy loss. A careful investigation revealed that proper and early surgical treatment would have saved most of these lives.

There is no medicinal treatment that will cure appendicitis or in any way influence it for the better, although rest in bed and no food or physic will result, in a majority of cases, in temporary recovery, only to await future attacks. An appendix once diseased is always diseased. The only successful treatment for the diseased appendix is its surgical removal and, if this is done during the first 24 hours of the first attack, the loss will be less than 1 per cent. Surgical treatment later in the attack and during succeeding attacks may show a higher mortality rate. The next safest time to remove the appendix is three or four weeks after the acute attack, and will result in a loss of less than 1 per cent. for those who recover from the acute attack.

The safest thing to do, when taken with a pain in the abdomen, is to call your physician at once, abstain from food and physic, and, if he finds that you have appendicitis, go to the hospital and have it removed. If taken with appendicitis under circumstances which render it impossible to do this, take no food nor physic, stay in bed and, if fortunate enough to get over the attack, take only light or liquid food for two or three weeks, then go to your surgeon and have the appendix removed. If all could be persuaded to follow this course, the loss from this disease would drop to less than one in a hundred.

Most of the bad results are due to failure to call the physician early or to follow his advice when he is called. The hospital is by far the safest place to treat appendicitis.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Lorenzo Dow

Mr. Editor: I thought the recent articles in the Bulletin about the great preacher, Rev. Lorenzo Dow, very interesting and it was my privilege a short time ago to see the ancient time-piece he used to own, still ticking off the golden moments in true precision at the home of Mr. Treland at 2 Winchester place, in Norwich. It certainly is a curiosity, and one is reminded of the poem of The Old Clock on The Stairs. That Lorenzo Dow was a great man, is evident for we know of numbers of highly respected men who were named after him. The wisdom of Solomon was almost his, in dealing with the erring as we still hear incidents retold about how one of his parishioners came to him and said: "Some one has stole my axe, will you help me to find it?" and he said he would. When he went into the pulpit he took a good sized stone with him (everybody went to church in the good old days). He related the incident of the man losing his axe, closing with, now I perceive that the thief is in this congregation, and I am going to throw this stone I have here directly at him. At this point observing a man ducking himself down in the pew he said, "and there is the thief." Lives of great men all remind us that we can make our lives sublime and, departing leave behind us footprints on the sands of time.

JAMES A. RANDALL.

Treat All Alike

Mr. Editor: Miss Royden, the great English preacher, has been denied the right to preach in the churches of several of our large cities, because she smokes. Has she not just as good a right to preach, as men who smoke? Some of our most popular preachers are and have been smokers from time immemorial. If smoking is such a privilege and pleasure why deny it to women?

Personally, I despise it in both sexes but I do believe in justice. It is not even common sense to discriminate as has been done in Miss Royden's case. Has not England a right to demand of America justice to her great woman preacher? Hither to men have not only made the laws but also the customs and have arrogated unto themselves the right to do as they pleased and women here had to do as they have decried. That day is past.

Is it not high time that we put justice into our religion and cut out mawkish sentiment? When God placed Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden, he put them under the same law. "Thou shalt not," was prescribed for both alike. We have wandered far away from this just ruling. It is high time we came back to it and put men and women on the same moral basis. If it is wrong for a woman to smoke it is equally so for men. In the right of our Creator, women are no better than men, custom has tried to make them appear so. Human nature is pretty much the same in both! If it is dignified for ministers to smoke it is equally so for women and Miss Royden should be permitted to occupy any pulpit in America as she is in England.

We have made ourselves the laughing stock of England by our abominable treatment of their great woman preacher.

Speckles Answers Questions

You'll always find it best for you
To make answers frank and true.

The eyes of Tommy Tit twinkled and snapped and snapped and twinkled as he sat on a twig in front of Speckles the Starling. "Do you eat fruit?" asked Tommy.

Speckles nodded, and his eyes brightened a little. "I certainly do," said he. "I wish I had some now."

"Do you eat cherries?" asked Tommy.

Speckles nodded and swallowed as if a cherry were going down. "I don't know of anything better," said he.

"Do you eat strawberries?" continued Tommy.

"Sometimes," replied Speckles.

"Do you eat Farmer Brown's grain?" asked Tommy.

"Of course, I do," replied Speckles. "Why shouldn't I?"

"Do you eat a lot of it?" Tommy inquired.

"Considerable," replied Speckles.

"Didn't I tell you that he is of no use?" interrupted Sammy Jay. "It's a wonder to me that Farmer Brown's Boy hasn't shot him before this. He's a pest! He eats Farmer Brown's grain and fruit and he doesn't do one solitary, lonesome good thing."

"Do you like bugs and worms and insects?" Tommy asked.

"Rather," replied Speckles. "Do you know where there are any now? I know of nothing I should like better than a good meal of cut-worms this very minute. As for grasshoppers and crickets, it seems to me I never could get my fill. Do I eat bugs and worms and insects? If you know of anybody whom you think eats more of them than I do I should like to have an eating match with them next spring. Why, the biggest part of my food consists of bugs and insects and worms of the kind that do the most harm. Of course, I can't get any of them in winter, but when spring comes I'll be right on the job."

"Do you suppose," inquired Tommy, "that you eat as many bugs and worms and insects as Winsome Bluebird or Welcome Robin?"

"Do you eat cherries?" asked Tommy

"Huh!" exclaimed Speckles. "Those fellows don't know how to eat!"

"Do you suppose," continued Tommy, and there was a very sly twinkle in his eye, "that you eat as many of these things as Sammy Jay does?"

"Haw, haw, haw! Caw! Caw!" laughed Judge Crow. And everybody joined with him. That is, everybody did but Sammy Jay himself.

Tommy Tit didn't wait for an answer. "When cherries are ripe you eat a lot of cherries from Farmer Brown's tree, don't you?" he inquired.

"I certainly do," replied Speckles.

"Do you suppose that at that time of year you eat as many worms and insects and bugs as you do cherries?" inquired Tommy.

"Five times as many," replied Speckles. "The cherries are just a sort of dessert."

"That's all," said Tommy Tit.

All the other birds looked at each other, and then they all looked at Judge Crow. Judge Crow cleared his voice. "I find," said he, "that Speckles the Starling is just like the rest of us. There is some bad in him and there is a lot of good in him. And, this being the case, I herewith sentence him to the freedom of the Old Orchard."

COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE NOT FOR CATHOLICS

"There was a marriage in Cana of Galilee and the mother of Jesus was there. And Jesus also was invited, and His disciples, to the marriage," was the text chosen Sunday morning at the 7.30 mass by the rector of St. Patrick's church, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May. Monsignor May had just read the gospel for the day, the second Sunday after Epiphany, John 2:1-11, the account of Christ's first recorded miracle in turning water into wine at the marriage feast, at the suggestion of His mother. The preacher made the point that while this marriage was singularly blest, because of the presence of Jesus Christ, His mother and the apostles, the same distinguished guests come to every sanctified marriage among Christians.

The Roman Catholic church sanctifies marriage contracted with the approval and presence of Jesus, makes it a sacrament, a sacred thing. Matrimony in this church is a sacrament. No contract can be valid unless made by mutual consent. So in matrimony, God Himself could not break the tie of a valid marriage—a true spiritual as well as physical union—no Pope, no bishop, could disrupt such a tie. If the contract ever ceases to be a valid contract there must be some reason for breaking it which we may not know. Once marriage is contracted, solemnly, validly, there can be no divorce. In the Roman Catholic church there is no such thing as companionate marriage.

Jesus Christ is not present at some marriages and this is because those contracting them are not in the proper state—a state of grace. Yet even while Christ may not have been present, the contract itself cannot be broken, provided it was in truth a valid contract. But Jesus will be present, Mary will be present also the Apostles, as truly now is at Cana, at every Christian, Catholic marriage. If however, Jesus is absent, it is proof that those contracting the marriage are unworthy.

Hence the church insists upon the necessity of proper preparation for this sacrament, the publication of the banns, prayer, to seek special blessings from God. Then will the marriage be honored by the presence of Jesus, of Mary and the Apostles.

As customary, Monsignor May read the low mass at 7:30. In giving holy communion to a large number, including members of the Rosary society, he had the assistance of Rev. Myles P. Galvin.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. Frank Sellers, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning thru their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it recommend it to their daughters as a dependable medicine.

Mrs. Lucy E. Hunt Moore

On Jan. 13, at 1.30, a. m., Mrs. Lucy E. Hunt Moore passed away at her residence, Moore's Hill, in North Waterford.

Mrs. Moore was the daughter of William and Ann Baxter Hunt and was born in Leicester, England, April 22, 1839.

At the age of two and a half years she came to this country with her parents. They lived for a short time in New York, then came to New London, where she spent her girlhood, and attended, first, the private school of Miss Nancy Hempstead, and later the Coit Street school, of which, L L. Camp was principal. She finished her education at the normal school in New Britain. After leaving the normal she taught school for several terms.

At the age of eighteen she was married to Egbert N. Moore, and went with him to Iowa, remaining there three years. She then returned with her husband and daughter Mary to Connecticut, to visit their relatives. They went back to Iowa in 1865 and remained there one year, then returned to Connecticut.

Very soon after returning they bought land in North Waterford, erected their homestead, and spent there the remaining years of their life.

Mr. and Mrs. Moore had four children, Mary Baxter, Egbert William, Lucy Abby, and Annie Hunt. Egbert William died in his nineteenth year. The other children are all living.

Mrs. Moore was a woman of most lovable disposition and true culture. She made many friends, and ever afterward retained their friendship. She was throughout life a great reader, being fond of travel, history and other cultural subjects. She had a truly home-loving disposition, and, until her health failed spent much of her leisure in gardening, her flowers being a truly wonderful sight. She delighted in being generous with her flowers, giving them lavishly. Besides her outdoor gardens, she kept a large collection of potted plants, which kept the house cheerful with blossoms in the winter.

Mrs. Moore was a member of the Chesterfield Baptist church until that church went out of existence. She remained of the Baptist persuasion throughout her life.

STATE INSTITUTIONS IN COUNTY HAVING IMPORTANT ADDITIONS MADE

Three state institutions in this county, the Norwich state hospital, Mystic Oral school and the state farm for women at Niantic, are included in the extensive building programme of the state for this year, which represents a total expenditure of $3,500,000.

Briefly, the more important appropriations made by the last general assembly for building purposes took into consideration the following: Garage at Brainard field, $15,000; New Haven armory, $700,000; Bristol armory, $150,000; site for new state office building, $325,000; new office and recitation building, Connecticut Agricultural college, pathological laboratory and improved sewage disposal plant at Storrs, about $487,542; Long Lane farm for girls, Middletown, $118,000; school for boys, Meriden, $118,000; Mansfield State Training school and hospital, $190,000; State Hospital for the Insane, Norwich, $220,000; Mystic Oral school, $15,000; dormitory, New Britain Normal school, $350,000; Willimantic Practice school, $200,000; Middletown State Hospital for the Insane, $125,000, and additional appropriations for sewage plants at Mansfield and Middletown.

State Farm For Women.

The state farm for women at Niantic presents one of the biggest problems the state has to face. Conditions have developed so that in the congestion and overcrowding the staff more and more finds itself under a greater handicap. The appropriation of $110,000 by the general assembly last spring to provide a mothers' and babies' building has been termed a "Godsend" by the directors of the institution. Miss Elizabeth Munger, the superintendent, who has received high commendation from state authorities, showed the great need of this building when she pointed out the other day that the number of infants under two years of age has increased at the institution nearly 100 per cent in the last year. This has taxed the abilities of the staff to the utmost. Most of the mothers and their babies have been crowded into one cottage and in other buildings where ever there has been room. So serious has the congestion become at the Bride lake farm, that the state changed its request of the architects to prepare plans for a ward accommodating from thirty to forty to a demand for drawings of building that would house fifty mothers and as many infants.

The present cottage will provide for only sixteen mothers and their offsprings and is nothing more than a barn made over. The state has, however, rented a house nearby for the winter, to relieve the grave conditions temporarily until the new maternity ward and mothers' and babies' residence is finished. Besides the $110,000 for the building, the legislature appropriated $8,000 additional for a sewage plant and other facilities at the farm. In the early part of November the board of finance and control awarded the contract for this combined maternity hospital and residence. The contract price was $93,000.

Norwich State Hospital.

At Norwich, another problem of overcrowding, at the state hospital for the insane, is being met. Two new dormitories are under construction, each to accommodate 100 persons, one building for men and the other for women. The contract for the two jobs was awarded as one by the state about the middle part of September. A Hartford company was awarded the heating and plumbing contract at $31,490, and the electric wiring and lighting contract went to the O'Neil Electric company of Norwich, for $5,530. Cudworth & Thompson of Norwich were the selected architects.

Mystic Oral School

At the Mystic Oral school for the deaf the construction of the physicians' cottage is proceeding at a cost of about $15,000.

Willimantic Practice School

At the Willimantic practice school, so-called because as a primary school it serves as a practical means of training students in the Willimantic State Normal school in the work of teaching kindergarten and elementary grades, a new building will replace the school which burned down some time ago. Towards its construction and the purchase of the site the town of Willimantic appropriated $100,000 and the state $200,000. A Hartford company has the general contract. The total contract figure is $185,427.50.

At Agricultural College

The new office and recitation building at Storrs has been under construction nearly two months, the contract being awarded for $343,390 during the first part of November. The legislature appropriated $420,000 for this building and its equipment, and it is planned to have it ready for use next fall or by winter at the latest. Office rooms for college authorities as well as recitation and laboratory rooms will be found in the structure. The pathological laboratory is not yet a definite addition to the college. Preliminary plans have been made, but the cost of construction is considered too high. However, a building of the type described is what the state has in mind.

WOMAN IS CHARGED WITH POISONING COWS

Placed under arrest in New York city Saturday, Mrs. Alexander Lesovsky is to be brought here and presented on the charge of poisoning four cows on the Alexy Pisarko farm on Canterbury turnpike on Dec. 22 last.

Suspicion was directed towards her when she disappeared from the farm at noon on Dec. 22, after one of the cows had been found sick. The four cows died two days later and when Dr. Frank D. Coles was called he declared the animals had ben poisoned.

The farm formerly belonged to the Lesovsky family, but became the property of Pisarko in a trade for New Jersey property. It is alleged that Mrs. Lesovsky harbored a grudge against Pisarko because of the transaction and had threatened to get even with him.

After the woman was arrested in New York, her husband said that they had been there since Dec. 7. There are three children in the family.

He has been a patient at the Backus hospital, but has now returned to his home.

ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF LIQUOR LAW VIOLATION

Charles Duchenan, 34, was arrested Saturday night in this city by Officer Henry Fenton on the charge of violation of the liquor law.

The police have been watching for Duchenan since Dec. 15, when officers from Willimantic were here looking for a Willimantic man and visited the Riverside house at 80 Shetucket street where they accidentally stumbled onto the evidence on which the liquor violation charge was made against Duchenan. UNIVERSALIST PASTOR TELLS DERIVATION OF BIBLE

Preaching Sunday morning at the Church of The Good Shepherd— Universalist, the pastor, Rev. A. N. Foster spoke upon the subject, How We Got Our Bible, using the text Acts: VIII—30-31; and heard him reading the prophet Isaiah and said: understandest thou what thou readest? And he answered—How can I, except some one guides me.

He spoke as follows:

The Bible is all but universally present with us; in our churches; in our courts and in our homes; it is with the soldier and the worshipper; with the murderer and the devotee; with the child and with the aged.

As a matter of common intelligence we ought therefore, to know how the Bible came to us. We are now concerned with two answers to that significant question.

The first declares that the Bible came to us from heaven; it is a special revelation of the divine will and as such it is inspired and free from all error. It concerns all things; the creation of life and of the world; the divine nature and human nature; the presence of sin and sufferings; the plan of absolute salvation and the destination of mankind and the future of all the world. This estimate of the Bible has commonly prevailed in Christendom for hundreds of years. Two important exceptions are to be noted by believers who yet insist the Bible constitutes a class by itself and who resent comparison with other literature. It is admitted that there may be errors in the punctuation marks and it is contended that the Bible does not pretend to teach science. In a way, you may have that greater respect for those devotees who consistently contend that the Bible is absolutely perfect than for those who say it is perfect—with certain reservations!

The other answer to the question declares that we got our Bible—not from heaven—but from the struggle and experience of advancing humanity. It was not let down from above as a finished and perfect product but it rather reflects the hopes and fears; the struggles and aspirations of humanity; it reflects in particular, the stress of a peculiar and a chosen people for over a thousand years, in their search for God. It contains errors and mistakes and is to be judged by the acknowledged literary and moral standards. It is not a fetish to be worshipped but rather a book to be studied.

The story of the Bible is of fascinating interest as it is traced back in history through the use of the printing press and the laborious copying on pages of parchment to the cherished ark of the covenant and the chiseled tables of stone in the distant days of a crude society; the interest does not lessen as in the 16th century the selected book becomes invested with an authoratative sanctity to match the authority of the Church of Rome. It should be realized that the Bible has been through many translations—from Israel to Greek; to Latin and to German and to English and that the possibility of error has been much greater than that in a modern printing establishment among people of the same language and similar racial inheritance and religious custom. It should be realized also the present arrangement of chapter and verse dates only from the middle of the 16th century; before that time it was one continuous mass of words with even greater possibility of error.

The Bible commonly recognized is a volume containing 39 books in the Old Testament and 27 books in the New Testament; if with the Romanists we recognize Apochapha with 14 books we have a total of 80 books comprising the sacred writings. A majority vote of an ecclesiastical council has decided what books shall be included in the canon and so honored as sacred; from the religious standpoint; what a pity that some books—like Esther—were ever admitted to the canon and what a pity that others were excluded. Luther even objected to the inclusion of the Epistle of James. Who would believe that his eternal salvation depends on a majority vote of a council! Later interpolations attribute the authorship of the first five books of the Bible to Moses and yet Deuteronomy gives an account of the death and burial of Moses.

Indeed it should be realized that the accepted order and arrangement is not chronological. Genesis and its story of creation comes first and yet the stories of a Garden of Eden and a serpent and a great flood, etc., came largely from Persian influence during the Babylonian captivity long after the prophetic period of Israel's life. The great prophets Isaiah and Jeremiah make no reference to those stories although our later day has adjudged them so important.

In the cherished New Testament, the oldest writings are the Epistles of Paul rather than the gospel of Matthew. Perhaps the synoptic gospels were next in time and of the three, Mark is the oldest and it has no involved story of the Bethlehem virgin birth of Jesus. The interesting book of the Acts of the Apostles may have come next in time of writing and the mystical Fourth gospel attributed to John; over a hundred years later. Yet we are so habituated to the commonly recognized order, if the Prophet Malachi were not last in the Old Testament and if the gospels were not first in the New Testament and if "John" rather than "Revelation" were the last book in the Bible, many devout souls would feel that they had really lost their Bible!

There are certain advantages incident to the belief that the books of the Bible are of varying values. The book of Leviticus tells of the elaborate ritual service of worship; compare that with Jesus' gospel utterance—"not in this mountain nor in Jerusalem, but in spirit and in truth shall ye worship the Father." Joshua commands the sun to stand still that he may slay more enemies and in contrast Isaiah—"Wash ye; make ye clean; seek righteousness and pursue it!" Of equal or of contrasted value? Chronicles tells of the temple service and the book of Job deals with the deep and searching philosophy of the question—"Why do the righteous suffer?" These books are of equal or of contrasted religious value?

Further the Bible tells of so many friendships; that of David and Jonathan is proverbial; that of Ruth and Naomi is beautiful. We linger over those pictures portraying Jesus with those who had special interest in him and his cause; Joseph of Aramathea and Nicodemus and Mary and Martha and Zaccheus and the Roman Centurion. We love to see the great Gentile Apostle grouped with Mary and Barnabas and Timothy. Aside from such friendships, we cherish with awe and affection the blessed Beatitudes of the Sermon on the Mount and who can forget the loving trust and the consoling tenderness of the fourteenth chapter of "John"?

We admire the grandeur of Dante's verse; we marvel at the rhythm and uplift of Milton—but even to such the Bible is superior. We come to this appreciation of the Bible as we apply the test of comparison. We lose such if we insist that the books are of uniform value and the standard tends to fall to the level of things primitive or technical or brutal and outgrown. If reason shall be our guide in our search of the Scriptures we shall esteem the more highly the message the Bible has brought to us from the toil and stress of humanity's life.

Soccer came back to Norwich Sunday with real success. A good sized crowd and a nice exhibition of the game between the newly formed J. B. Martin team and the Jewett City Favorites all making for a pleasant afternoon at J. B. Martin park. The Martins won 3 to 0 and for the greater part of the game they had the ball down in their opponent's territory.

The Taftville team looked mighty good for their owner. Their play, while ragged at times, was above expectations and that they will show a big improvement the next time out seems certain.

Taftville forced the issue pretty much of the way. With Troeger, Kid Decelles and Siedel carrying the brunt of the attack the Martins swept down on Sandy McCluggage in the up-state goal time after time and three of these times they were successful. The Jewett City backs had a tough time resulsing the Taftville drives while on the other end of the field Eccleston and Krauss were taking care of far less number of attacks that the vistors made.

Ed Murphy in the Martin goal, had little work, so well did his backs take care of the more experienced visiting team.

Lloyd Jarvis, Academy baseball star, was a big part of the Jewett City attack, his dribbling being the best on either side. Many times he seemed just about to slip away and have a good chance to score but he was outnumbered too greatly when things became dangerous and he lost the ball amid some wild tangles. Dee Gaudette showed form at times but none on either side was as good as Jarvis, especially on the attack.

The first half was a scoreless affair with Taftville missing many opportunities to score. They had the ball down in Jewett City territory almost all the way but some nice work around the goal by Jewett City prevented any scoring. Jewett City had a few chances but on these occasions she was so hurried that little came of them.

Eccleston tallied first with about half of the final period gone. He "hooked onto" a corner shot and with a quick boot sent it barely skimming past McCluggage. Kid Decelles scored the second goal after a rugged scrimmage down within the shadow of the goal. The ball had been brought the length of the field with some nice booting. Bill Gley finished the scoring with another of much the same variety as Decelles'. Taftville sent the ball through again but an offside nullified the point.

The game ended soon after this last sorty on the City goal.

The Martins have not decided on their opponent for next Sunday. Either the crack Westerly eleven comes here or the locals go to Jewett City for a return game, is the report.

AL REACH WAS FIRST PROFESSIONAL BALL PLAYER

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Tagged by death in his 87th year, Alfred J. Reach, another grand old man of baseball, has joined the ranks of those real veterans of the diamond who have gone before. Al Reach, as he was best known to early day baseball fans, died at his home in Atlantic City yesterday after an illness of three days. His funeral will be held here Wednesday and interment will be private.

Reach started his baseball career before the days of the professional ball player and he was keenly interested in the game and its development, ultimately the game made his a millionaire.

First a newsboy in New York and later a worker in an iron foundry Al Reach played ball in his spare moments and, according to the tales that are told of his prowess on the diamond, was the first great second baseman and one of the first, if not the first, professional player.

He started professionally with the Philadelphia Athletics, not the present organization in the American League, during the 60's at the time baseball was emerging from the purely amateur sport into the professional field.

The hard hitting second baseman remained with the old Athletics until after the organization of the National league in 1876, retiring to found the firm of A. J. Reach and Company. Reach formed a partnerhhip in the business with B. F. Shibe, for whom the American league baseball park here is named. Shibe died six years ago.

Reach helped organize the Philadelphia National league ball club.

Another Boost For No. 13

NICE, France, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Bearing the unlucky number 13 on his saddle as post number, Le Pallet, four year old belonging to Count De Rivaud, captured the grand prix at Monte Carlo today from a field of fourteen starters.

The odds were 7 to 1 and the race was worth 183,750 francs to the winner. The distance was 3,500 meters, with hurdles. Cunt De Perigny's Eneas was second and A. K. Macombers Frseti was third.

WINDHAM FOR OUTCLASSES HARTFORD BULKELEY FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 14.—Figuring in the unusual coincidence of scoring 13 points, using 13 players playing a game on the 13th day of the month, Bulketley of Hartford felt heavily the ill omen of unlucky 13 Friday night and was returned a ler by 15 plonts in its basketball encounter with Windham High school here. The Hartford men failed throughout the game to solve the intricacies of Windham's five-man defense and while the visitors were figuring the locals were scoring. The final score was 28 to 13. "Eddie" Saba, the Windham flash center netted seven baskets from the floor and one from the free-try line, for a total of 15 points. Molloy, opposing Saba, was the outstanding player for the Hartfordites, piling up eight points, one basket from the floor and registering six from the 15-foot mark. Lamson got Windham off to a lead during the first quarter of the game and from then on there was no doubt in the minds of a banner gathering of spectators as to ultimate outcome. Windham outscored the visitors 11 to 4 in the last period, much of the closing episode of the game being played by substitutions. In the last four minutes of play Coach "Babe" Allen inserted the entire Hartford second team into the game. Summary:

MANDELL WILLING TO DEFEND TITLE ANYTIME

ROCKFORD, Ill., Jan. 15—(AP)—Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion, answered the challenge of the national boxing association tonight by declaring he is willing to defend his crown against any challenger, if some promoter or manager would give him a guarantee on which he could "make some money."

"I don't know what challenges the national boxing association has on file for my lightweight crown, but they don't mean anything to me, for I'll meet any of them. I don't see, though, how the national boxing association can, in justice, suspend me if I don't sign up in 30 days when I haven't any offers to sign."

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Benny Friedman's Cleveland Bulldogs defeated the Wildcats, 12 to 6, in a fiercely contested professional football game today.

JONES EXPLAINS WHY HE MUST RETURN ATLANTA'S GIFT

ATLANTA, Jan. 15—(AP)—Bobby Jones, in an open letter to the contributors to the $50,000 fund to purchase him a home here as a tribute of the esteem and affection from friends and admirers in his nativity, last night explained why he announced recently in New York that he would not retain the gift.

"At the time the gift was made to me, it appealed to me as the most generous and sincere tribute which a man's friends could pay him," said the British open and American amateur national golf champion, in his letter, "and it was accepted by me in the spirit which I knew it was tendered. I knew there was nothing connected with the subscription of the fund or the use to which it was to be put, which was not entirely proper. A portion of the general public is aware of that fact, also, but it seems that another still respectable portion entertains some doubts. In other words, criticism from various sources have come to my notice. It appeared to me in the light of them that not only was amateur golf in danger of serious injury wholly unjustified by the facts, but both my Atlanta friends and I were apt to be placed in an awkward position which wa sat the same time a position which was at the same time a a place.

"It was to avoid any chance of misunderstanding that I decided that the best thing to do was to return the home. As I remarked, when I accepted the gift, by far the most important part of it was the testimonial and tribute which my friends sought to make me. I am now in possession of the testimonial."

Bobby declared that his chief regret was that "it seemed desirable to make the announcement from New York" but even though he felt that "I owed it to my friends in Atlanta to show them the courtesy of informing them of my decision before it was made public, but when the U. S. G. A., approved your action in making the gift, and mine in receiving it, as proper, it seemed to me that the moment had arrived for a final announcement."

Bobby declared that in returning the gift he was "losing only the least part of the gift," and that whatever loss he might feel, "will be more than made up by the gain to amateur golf."

TWO PROMINENT HEAVIES BATTLE THIS EVENING

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Rival boxers in quest of heavyweight laurels will battle in New York tomorrow night but in different arenas.

Meanwhile, Paulino Uzcudun, reputed basque woodchopper, will stack up against Ed Keeley, Boston southpaw, in a ten round stellar attraction at the new Broadway arena in Brooklyn.

Both Delaney and the Spanish senor are regarded as prospective timber for the heavyweight championship. Delaney is pointing for a match with Risko of Cleveland at Madison Square Garden on Feb. 10 which he hopes will gain for him prestige as a leading heavy.

Montgomery will have an advantage over Delaney in bulk and reach but the so called "caper of the north" is the better schooled in ring skill.

Delaney was obliged to abdicate his world title by taking on more weight than the light heavyweight division allowed. The Bridgeporter scored an impressive victory when he knocked out Paul Berlenbach in six rounds in Chicago recently which incidentally rang down the curtain on Paul's boxing activities.

The Paulino-Keeley affair derives most of its importance due to the controversy waged by Paulino in opposing the Bostonian. Last summer, Paulino was suspended by the Massachusetts commission for failure to meet Keeley and in accordance with the Bay state action, the New York solons imposed a like suspension. Paulino was banned in the ring until a satisfactory adjustment was made with Promoter Eddie Mack of Boston.

DEBAETS AND BECKMAN WIN SIX DAY BIKE RACE

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP)— Prize money of nearly $10,000, was distributed today among the 20 riders who finished the six day bicycle race last night, and the riders left for the east. Gerard Debaets and Tony Beckman carried off first money after one of the greatest finishes seen in the 19 international six-day races held here.

They were paired Friday afternoon after Debaet's fellow Belgian, Alphonse Goosens, was hurt in a fall Eddie Madden agreed to withdraw and let Beckman team up with Debaets, and the new team started seven laps behind the leaders, with 32 hours of riding to make up the distance. Lap by lap they picked up lost ground, and early Saturday evening they put on a spurt which gained three laps in succession, giving them the lead by two laps.

The pair defended their advantage gamely, Debaets coming back after a mean spill 15 minutes before the finish, to hold his own against the great Bobby Walthour in a lap-stealing dash only five minutes before the end of the race. Beckman came to Debaet's aid and they held grimly on to Walthour's spurt. Walthour and Freddie Spencer, the popular favorites, were second by two laps and Dave Lands and Klaas Van Nek were third, three laps back of th eleaders. third, three laps back of the leaders. crashed into the rail. Lands went down in nearly the same spot, but was back riding within a few minutes.

COHEN IS NOW LEADER IN STATE BASKETBALL

WATERBURY, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Individual scoring honors for the first half season of the Connecticut State Basketball league, which ended today went to Cohen, New Haven Atlas forward, who has a total of 91 points for nine games that he played for the Atlas club. Jack Carroll, of Meriden and Solomon, of New Britain finished in a tie for second place honors with 77 points each.

The New Haven club went down to defeat at the hands of Bristol Saturday night but the Atlas team had the first half championship clinched two weeks ago. The victory for Bristol gave the Endees second place while Hartford missed a chance to tie New Britain for third position today when Waterbury, tail enders, defeated the Yankees in an overtime period game.

"Sea Sled" Wins Outboard Race

AVALON, SANTA CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., Jan. 15.—(AP)—The "sea sled," pointed by Kneeland Jenkins of San Diego, won the outboard motor marathon here today over a course of 32 miles, in 2 hours, 8 minutes. The island circling course was abandoned because of rough seas and two round trips from this port of the isthmus substituted

THREE CHAMPIONS ORDERED TO SIGN FOR BOUTS WITHIN A MONTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Boxing champions in three divisions—Mickey Walker, of the middleweights, Joe Dundee, welterweight titleholder, and Sammy Mandell, lightweight king, today were ordered by the National Boxing association to sign for defense of their titles within 30 days or suffer suspension in 25 member states.

Furthermore, the trio of champions "must agree to decision bouts against qualified contenders acceptable to the N. B. A. or risk vacation of their respective titles," President Thomas E. Donahue of the association declared in an ultimatum that has the approval of all states enrolled in the organization. California and New York state alone among the leading boxing centers are not members of the association.

"Existent conditions regarding certain boxing champions" were brought to the attention of individual states by the association, President Donohue said, and the edict was decided upon unanimously. Contracts must be signed by Feb. 16.

"The members of the association feel, with me, that a period of six months is sufficient for any champion to engage in whatever non-title matches he desires, and that the public demands action from him, as far as the defense of his crown is concerned, at the expiration of that time," President Donohue said.

It is of no consequence to the association in what city, or state, Walker, Dundee and Mandell defend their respective titles, so long as they sign for their defense within the next 30 days, in bouts to decisions. None of the three titleholders against whom the association is taking action has offered for competition within the last six months the title he wears.

"Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., world's middleweight champion, has not fought at the weight limit since he knocked out Tommy Milligan, in London, England, on June 30, 1927. Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, Md., world's welterweight titleholder, has not risked his crown since winning it from Pete Latzo in New York on June 3, 1927. Sammy Mandell, of Rockford, Ill., has not defended his crown since he met Phil McGraw at Detroit, on July 12, 1927.

"Significant of this action is that Newton A. K. Bugbee, chairman of the New Jersey State Athletic commission; Latrobe Cogswell, chairman of the Maryland State Athletic commission; and Paul Prehn, chairman of the Illinois State Athletic commission, were among those members of the N. B. A., who announced their hearty approval of my plan, Walker, Dundee and Mandell are residents of the respective states.

"I have on file at my office at Hartford, Conn., challenges from qualified contenders for each of the three champions named and regret exceedingly that the titleholders have failed to keep up with the progress of boxing in recent years. Inactive titleholders are no longer given cognizance, and are looked upon with disfavor throughout the world."

ACADEMY NOSES OUT TOURTELLOTTE IN OVERTIME

The Academy won from Tourtellotte high Saturday night at the Y gym after five minutes of overtime work by a 26 to 24 count. Although the game was one of the most thrilling seen here this season still it was also a very loose game. Both teams were way off in their passing, which detracted considerably from the smoothness of the tilt, although the score was always close.

Tourtellotte looked her part, state champions in Class D. The North Grosvenordale quintet looked like a good little club but they should never have been able to force the Red and White the way they did. Outweighed and also short on height, the visitors playeda close guarding game all the way, never giving the locals much of a chance to take their time on shots.

The Academy jumped ahead soon after the opening whistle and for the first few minutes threatened to play good basketball. Joe Viau threw in a few baskets and put the locals fairly safe until Tourtellotte found there bearings and a few minutes before the half they were holding the locals even. Twice they tied the score and two brief times they were head. The half, however, found the Red and White with a five point lead, 14 to 9.

Tourtellotte gained three points at the opening tapoff when Canty was fouled in shooting but the ball went through and he also sank one of his two free tries. The teams kept going at this pace until near the end of the third quarter Tourttellotte again took the lead.

She held it well and seemed sure of victory until with two minutes to play the Academy started to fight with three points difference in the score. Buck LaCroix was fouled and sank his shot making it 23-21. For another minutes and a half or so the teams grappled about until Les Pingree secured the ball, came about half the length of the hall, let fly one from a few feet out just as the whistle ending the game sounded. The ball hit the rim, rolled around for a brief second and then dropped down through, knotting the count at 23 all.

In the overtime St. Marie scored on a foul after 2 minutes and Les Pingree tied it up a minute later. Pingree then completed his work with a field basket after another sixty seconds and the rest of the time found little eventful happening.

Les Pingree again was practically the whole offense for the Academy, again scoring 13 points. Les is sure carrying his share of the Red and White burden. Cany was best for the plucky little losers.

In the preliminary the Y won from the U. S. S. Pequot 37 to 15. The locals looked mighty good for their opener.

REP. BRITTON SAYS ARMY CANNOT PLAY BIG TEN TEAMS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15—(AP)—Representative Britton of Illinois predicted today that if West Point does not play the Navy next year, it will be unable to schedule games with western conference teams "because the Army insists on playing under its own rules instead of those in use by every class "A" college in America."

He said he intended to continue efforts to effect a compromise between West Point and Annapolis.

"The break between the two service institutions is to my mind but a forerunner of what will happen in many other directions if West Point does not agree to meet its competitors on an equality," Britton declared.

"For West Point to have played four football stars this year who were ineligible to play for any other first class university in the country," Britton added, "is a distinction a winning team cannot very well be proud of."

The Illinois representative declared that western conference teams have consistently refused to play other teams which did not have the same eligibility rules.

ARMY'S ATTITUDE NOT BAR TO CONFERENCE GAMES

CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—(AP)—The attitude of West Point Athletic authorities in insisting upon the use of its football players regardless of the number of years they have played in varsity competition, is not a bar to competition with Western conference teams because of the Big Ten's three year rule, it was learned tonight.

The Big Ten's three-year rule says that their teams shall not engage institutions of equal rank "in the middle west" who do not likewise observe the three-year rule. The Army, an eastern team, would not be barred under this ruling. The West Pointers however have not encountered a Big Ten team since 25 years ago when Chicago was played.

The principal reason why the Western conference coaches have not sought games with the Army was the Cadets refusal to play home-andhome games. If the West Point attitude on games played in Big Ten territory should change, conference teams, it was said, doubtless would sign up the Army fro home-and-home competition, regardless of Army's peculiar eligibility views.

Commenting on the statement tonight of Representative Britten of Illinois, who said the Army would be unable to schedule games with Western conference teams because of its refusal to adopt the three-year eligibility rule, Big Ten leaders said it would have no bearing on the conference attitude. Conference schedules for 1928 are now complete and more than two-thirds complete for 1929 and 1930, the remaining years of a four year schedule plan.

Abell to Be Colgate Coach

HAMILTON, N. Y., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Earl Abell, director of freshman activities at Colgate university, today accepted the position as head football coach to succeed George W. Hauser, who recently resigned to pursue his study of medicine.

Abell's decision was announced after a lengthy conference with the special committee of the Colgate university athletic council, appointed at Friday's meeting in New York.

AGGIES TACKLE MIDDLETOWN ON TOMORROW EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Conn., Jan. 15.—The Connecticut Aggies got away to an auspicious start for 1928 in defeating Tufts, 37 to 22, here Saturday night, but it looks like rough going ahead for Tuesday of this week when the crack Wesleyan University five must be met at Middletown. Later in the week the Aggie varsity will play Providence at Storr on Saturday, following a rpeliminary contest between the freshman fives of Connecticut and Springfield college.

PRINCETON AND CORNELL TOP COLLEGE BASKETBALL

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—With all six members of the Intercollegiate Basketball league in action, Princeton and Cornell have started to whoop up the race with triumphs in their initial stands of the season.

Cornell, twice defeated by Yale in the last campaign, stopped the rush of the Elis at Ithaca by 29 to 24 and went into a first place tie with Princeton which overwhelmed Columbia by 41 to 22.

This was the first setback for the New Haven hoopsters in the current struggle. They had taken the measure of the Penn and Dartmouth quintets previously. The Hanoverians have chalked up a victory against Columbia, leaving the New Yorkers and Penn as the only contestants yet to come out on the long end of an engagement this season.

BANNER ATTRACTION AT PLAINFIELD WEDNESDAY NIGHT

That basketball fans in Eastern Connecticut are receiving some of the best basketball that this section of the state is evidenced by the booking of the World's Famous Indians, by the Plainfield team for the attraction at the Community house Wednesday evening. Jim Thorpe, former Olympic champion and considered one of the world's greatest all-around athletes, is coach of the Redmen. Every man appearing on the Indian is a full-blooded American Indian and a member of some tribe. Among them is Deak Peters the center who stands six feet six inches tall and Raymond West (Light Foot) who is six feet, two inches tall. Another star is Chief Long Time Sleep who gives an exhibition of war dancing before the game and between the halves. All members of the team are graduates of Haskell university, and have played on the college team.

CRESCENTS HAVE TOUGH GAME TUESDAY NIGHT

The Taftville Crescents anticipate plenty of trouble in the Lawrence Felting team of Millville, Mass., tomorrow evening at Parish hall! Although little has been known hereabouts of this team it is reported that it has met the best in central Massachusetts and held its own and it comes to Taftville with a good "rep".

HORNSBY NOT FOR SALE SAYS PRES. FUCHS

NEW YORK Jan. 15.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, newly acquired second baseman of the Boston Braves, is not for sale, President Emil E. Fuchs, of the Boston club, declared here tonight, putting to rest reports that the famous player might eventually turn up with the Chicago Cubs.

Even Hazen Cuyler and other stars of the Cubs would not be tempting in any exchange for Hornsby, Presidet Fuchs said. And as far as money is concerned, no amount would be considered.

They would like to hear from some teams of their calibre in this state. They would like to hear from Noank for a game in Noank some Saturday evening.

Arrangements can be made by answering through this paper or writing to Stanley Franaski, Taftville, Conn., Box 627 or phone 1297-2.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The C. F. C. plays the Mystic Crescents Saturday evening at Mystic.

Windham is playing good basketball right now. The Willimantic's school stock was boosted greatly by winning from Hartford Bulkeley for although the Insurance City team is not the best in the state by any means, still they are a Class A school and that means something for Windham in her drive towards a chance at the Yale tournament.

Windham, so far, is the shining light of the eastern Connecticut teams. The rest of the schools hereabouts have done little of a spectacular nature.

Naugatuck High now begins to look more than ever like the class of Nutmeg state high schools. Her latest achievement was trimming the famous Rogers High of Newport, R. I. quintet. Naugy recently trounced Torrington.

Sam Heller, of Willimantic, seems to be the main offensive for the Brown university quintet. He scored 15 points in their 42 to 36 win over Amherst Saturday night. Harry, his brother, threw in two points from a guard.

Connecticut Aggies started impressively in beating Tufts, but the frosh at the state college can't seem to win like that of other years.

Chubbuck, who, incidentally, is, on the Aggies freshman team, didn't seem to be missed by Tourtellotte Saturday night. The North Grosvenordale team looks again like a strong one among the "little fellows".

Taftville Tuesday and Plainfield Wednesday.

The Plainfield game is the real feature for the next few days, bringing as it does such a colorful attraction to the Community house. Although Gabby Hartnett's team will not be able to come here Tuesday night to battle the Crescents still reports have it that a good substitute has been lined up in the Lawrence Felting team.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Capital Theatre

A continuous and popular feature of the winter programs at the Capitol Theatre in Willimantic is Country Store Night held every Tuesday night in conjunction with a double feature motion picture program. Manager George A. Bartlett conducted 35 Country Store Nights last season and each proved a great lobby magnet. There are $75 in prizes given away and all of these prizes are really worthwhile. Some of them are beautiful pieces of furniture including chairs, mirrors, etc., while others consist of traveling cases, umbrellas, bric-a-brac and well-filled shopping baskets. The presentation of the prizes is the occasion of considerable fun-making and serve as an added attraction.

DIEGEL AND MEHLHORN TIED FOR FIRST

LONG BEACH, Calif., Jan. 15.—(AP)—Leo Diegel, New York, and "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn of Wilkinsburg, Pa., today tied for first place in the $2,500 Long Beach open golf tournament with scores of 282 each. First and second money, aggregating $1,250 will be split between them.

George Von Elm, of Los Angeles, former national open champion, won the low gross trophy for amateurs with 288.

Mehlhorn was leading Diegel two strokes at the start of the final nine holes. They were all even when "Wild Bill" drove out of bounds but came back and sank a 30-foot putt for a par five. Diegel, with a six foot downhill putt for a birdie four missed by an inch and was forced to take a tie for first place.

MacDonald Smith, Long Island, New York, and Tommy Armour of Washington, D. C., placed second in the money with 286. Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., was third with 287 and Billie Burke of Rochester, N. Y., and Von Elm tied for fourth with 288 each.

Hutt Martin, Reno, Nev., Vic Owens of San Pedro and Ed Dudley of Hollywood split fifth money with 289 while the purse for sixth place went four ways among Larry Nabholtz, Cleveland, Ohio, Al Espinosa, of Chicago, Jack Tarrant of Los Angeles and Willard Hutchinson of Pasadena, Cal., with 290 each.

Seventh place went to Frank Walsh, Appleton, Wis., and John Black, Oakland veteran with 291 and eighth was divided three ways between Bobby Cruickshank, New York, Joe Turnesa, New York, and Abe Espinosa of Chicago with 292 each.

Second low gross trophy for amateurs went to Charles Seaver, 16-year old golfer of Los Angeles, with 292; third to E. G. Martin, San Diego, with 302, minus a handicap of 20, and fourth to Harry Eichelberger of Los Angeles, with 309, mius a handicap of 24.

Smokers:

You certainly picked a "comer" this time!

YOU MEN who chose Granger—much obliged! Its growth so far beats anything in our experience.

Of course we thought we knew what pipe smokers wanted—and in making Granger we certainly gave them the "works." It's differently aged, made, cut, packed and priced—with a solid reason for each difference. And apparently smokers understood those reasons as well as we did.

At that, though, one pipe-load is all the reason a man needs!

GRANGER ROUGH CUT

AN IMPROVEMENT LAST WEEK IN SOME OF THE SO-CALLED HEAVY INDUSTRIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—(AP)—Industry displayed continued signs of expansion last week, while other lines of trade were just beginning to recover from the post-holiday lull. The general trend of the country's commerce as a whole was favorable.

Improvement was most marked in some of the so-called heavy industries. The steel trade reflected increased buying by stepping up of operations and moderate stiffening of finished steel prices. The United States Steel corporation reported its unfilled orders at the close of December increased 518,000 tons, over the preceding month, the largest increase since December, 1924. The total, 3,972,374 tons, was the best showing since March, 1926.

Buying by railroads and automobile manufacturers was prominant among factors contributing to the increase in steel tonnage. The motor trade was stimulated by the New York automobile show and similar large exhibitions in other centers. Recent new models and price reductions also had their bearing on the demand for cars.

Although the weather for the week was much warmer than was experienced in the first week of the year, the demand for coal continued briskly, both in the bituminous and anthracite trade. Copper prices again tended upward, but quotations on tin were slightly off. The lumber industry continued quiet in its usual seasonal lull, with considerable curtailment reported along the Pacific coast. Inquiry for furniture lumber, however, broadened, with prospects of early expansion of buying therein.

The textile branch was reported quiet. Print cloth mills have been operating on a reduced scale since late in 1927 ,and some wage cuts have been ordered. Special sales in some sections have brought in a little wholesale buying of extra materials and the demand picked up a bit in the spring garment business. There also was some improvement in silks.

Crops have been somewhat damaged, it is believed by zero weather, unaccompanied by an adequate blanket of snow. Wheat in Kansas and Oklahoma has been particularly hard hit by this climatic condition. Speculative trading in grains was light, and prices moved in a narrow range. Wheat and corn exports gained over the preceding week and the corresponding period of last year. Prices of corn, oats and spring wheat stiffened slightly, but barely wa sa shade lower.

The money market continued to attract attention, with a marked variance of opinion among observers. In some quarters it was expected that a material tightening of credit rates was in prospect, and there was a little talk of a "surprise move" by the federal reserve bank to raise its rediscount rate. This action failed to materialize, however, but there was a moderate hardening of time mo ennbdn yaakresWhcliy ing of time money and bankers acceptance rates.

Bank clearings showed a small decrease from the week before, a holiday week, but gained about 29 per cent over the related week of last year. The trend of bank debits was similar.

The security markets were less active than in the preceding week, largely because of the unsettlement in the money situation.

TWO MEN ARE KILLED WHEN GAS TRAIN STRIKES CAR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Jan. 15—Emile King, 43, and his father-in-law, Frank Scott were killed in a grade crossing accident on West street near the Rhode Island Worsted mill in Stafford Springs Saturday morning when a Ford touring car in which they were riding was struck by the 10:10 a. m. southbound gasoline train on the Central Vermont railroad. The automobile was caught squarely on the track and struck broadside. Both men were hurled from the machine which was carried several feet by the train before it rolled over an embankment. King was probably killed instantly as he was dead when picked up. Scott was hurried to the Johnson Memorial hospital where he lived but a few minutes after his arrival.

Just how the driver happened to get caught on the track is a mystery. He was familiar with this crossing as he passed over it twice each day on his way to and from work. Mr. King lived on Charter Heights and his father-in-law Mr. Scott made his home with Mr. and Mrs. King. Besides his wife Mr. King is survived by a brother and sister. Mr. Scott leaves a number of sons and daughters. Both King and Scott were well known in Stafford Springs where they had lived practically all their lives and for years were employed in local factories. The bodies of the two men were removed to a local undertaker's, to await investigation by the medical examiner and coroner.

MARION BROUGHT TO NEW LONDON SUNDAY AFTER NEW YORK RELEASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—Robert Marion, arrested in New York several days ago, charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Mrs. Susan Miller, 118 Blinman street, was brought back to New London for trial this afternoon by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith and will be in the police court Monday morning. In default of bail Marion was locked up. He is 18 and resides on West Colt street. Marion was dishonorably discharged from the United States Coast Guard a few weeks ago. Marion went to the Miller garage, 105 Truman street, a week ago Sunday morning at 1 o'clock and stole a Chrysler automobile, forcing entrance to the garage by smashing the lock. He drove to New York and there was arrested by the New York police. He has since been held a prisoner pending the issuance of extradition papers that would cause his being brought back to New London. Marion has been suspected several times of perpetrating burglaries in this city, but has never been arrested before as the offense he was suspected of having committed as it could not be proved against him.

STOLEN MONTVILLE AUTO FOUND ABANDONED SUNDAY

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—An automobile owned by the Robertson Paper Mill company, of Montville, and in charge of Edward J. Bonville, an employe, residing at 180 Ledyard street, this city, was stolen Saturday night, but was recovered by the state police, Groton barracks. Bonville drove the car, an Essex coach, 1926 model to Meridian street early in the evening and when he returned there about 11 o'clock to go to his home the auto was missing. He reported the theft to the police and the state police Sunday morning found the auto abandoned on the outskirts of the city.

SLIP ON PIECE OF CANDY THROWS OAKDALE WOMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—Mrs. Mary McDonald, of Oakdale, in walking along Main street Saturday afternoon fell in front of the premises No. 26 and would not accept the suggestion of Patrolman Frank Linehan that she go to the office of a physician and be examined that it might be determined whether she had sustained injury. Mrs. McDonald slipped and fell on a piece of candy that had been dropped on the walk.

MRS. LIEBLER FOUND COAST GUARD CUSTOMER FRESH

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15—Leonard N. Lee, married and residing at 20 Reed street, a physician's clerk at the United States Coast Guard academy, was arrested Saturday night charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, by Mrs. Rudolph H. Siebler, wife of the proprietor of a tobacco store, 215 Bank street. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $50 and will be in the police court Monday. Lee went to the store of the tobacconist and his conduct was such that Mrs. Siebler was forced to request his arrest, which was made by Patrolmen George Cockell and William Riordan.

The funeral of Horace Beebe, of 14 Lee avenue, was held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. Arthur Wagner, pastor of the Huntington street Baptist church. The body was placed in the receiving vault in Cedar Grove cemetery, where it will remain until such time as Mr. Beebe's son can return to this city, after which it will be taken to Greenport, N. Y., for burial.

The funeral of Miss Alice T. Farrell, Ocean avenue, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church and was attended by a large gathering of mourners. The high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. William C. Fitzsimmons. The choir of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church sang. The bearers were James T. Sexton, Edward M. Sweeney, John Gleason, David P. Condon, Thomas Sweeney and Thomas Cummings, the last named from Norwich. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Henry Goetsen and daughter, Arline, 19 Neptune avenue and Thomas McNamara, Niantic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Saturday.

The continued case of Henry Marcus, proprietor of a store, 46 Bank street, opposite police headquarters charged with violation of the liquor law, was disposed of in the police court when Marcus pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs on each of two counts, actual sale and keeping wth intent to sell. The continued case of Mrs. Nora McClue, 112 Howard street, charged with violation of the liquor law, was further continued, this time for a month. Marcus and Mrs. McClue were among the 11 arrests made by the police last Tuesday. It is possible that Monday when court convenes, a twelfth case of violation of the liquor law will come up for hearing, for one of the warrants issued by Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin when the raids were conducted, could not be served, the accused not being found, he having left the city. He has remained away since and as he has knowledge of the warrant out for his arrest, he has consented to return to New London and abide by the decision of the court, which will be the imposition of a fine the same as has been meted out to the other violators.

Dennis McCarthy, 270 Hudson street, Hartford, was in court on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor, being presented on continuance. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs. McCarthy, who is a Hartford merchant was in New London last Sunday and during the evening went to the home of John Murphy, 47 Pacific street. There he became intoxicated. During the night he left the house and going to the street, entered the auto of Murphy that was parked in front of the latter's home and rove away. McCarthy drove the car through Ocean avenue an at Perry street, drove to Montauk avenue. When he attempted to make the turn he was unable to do so, drove over the sidewalk on the east side of the avenue and upon the lawn at Dr. Charles Kaufman's, ripping a wheel from the car. He was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin. The car owner furnished bail for McCarthy's presentation in court Saturday.

Georgs Wesley, colored, 14 John street, was charged with conducting a house of ill fame and George Carter, colored, 22, married, of 729 Bank street; Erma McRae, 23, colored, of 81 Hempstead street; Rock Zekas, white, of Winthrop street, Stanley Yemopil, a plumber of 140 Howard street, Joseph F. Lundregan and Edward W. Pyhleenski leaving Wesley's house. States coast guard, state pier, were charged with frequenting. Because of the lack of a material witness the court was forced to ask for a nolle in all cases and it was granted by Acting Judge Lewis Crandall. Patrolman George Cockell was making his rounds through John street early Saturday morning and observed Lundregan and Phleenski leaving Wesley's house, which has long been reputed to be a related what had occurred in the house of immorality. Patrolman Cockell questioned the sailors and they house, their statements being such that the sailors were arrested and taken to police headquarters. When the story was related to Acting Lieutenant Frank Howard a squad composed of Patrolman Cockell, Frank Philopena, William Riordan, and Lawrence Purdy and Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin was formed and instructed to raid the house. When the raidng force went to the John street resort, Wesley, the Carter and McRae women, Zekas and Yemopil were found there and arrested, but the woman by whom the sailors said they had been entertained was missing, she having left just before the officers arrived. However, all found in the house were arrested and taken to police headquarters. In court all of the accused denied that the sailors had been in the house and in the absence of the girl who had hastily left the house there was no evidence at hand to corroborate the statements of Lundregan and Pyhleenski, so Prosecuting attorney asked for the nolle which was granted.

Besides these cases there were cases of intoxication presented, all the accused being discharged.

The New Haven police Saturday requested the New London police to be on the lookout for an automobile carrying Connecticut registration, N-4195. The New Haven police stated that the driver of the car was guilty of evasion of responsibility for he had struck two women and driven away without stopping to ascertain the injuries sustained by the women. The New London police did not observe the auto on the streets of this city, but they did discover that it is registered in the name of Francis J. Reilly of Waterbury and the Bay View house, Niantic. The fact of the ownership was furnished the state police, Groton barracks.

Lieut. Gleaves B. Kinney, submarine base, reported to the police Saturday night that in driving along Ocean avenue when near Perry street, the car struck a puppy. He did not know how badly the dog had been injured for it was taken away by a man, who said that he owned the animal and who was highly excited.

The Norwich authorities Saturday night requested the New London police to be on the lookout for George MacCallum, who had escaped from Norwich state hospital, Preston, but he was not located in this city. MacCallum is described as being about 16 years of age, about five feet eight inches in height and weighs about 146 pounds. He has light brown hair, ruddy complexion and two front upper teeth are missing. MacCallum when he escaped had a light gray overcoat and cap and wore black shoes.

Charles Gordon was in the police court Saturday on continuance, charged with bigamy. The case was continued three months. Gordon was arrested several weeks ago when his first wife, a resident of Barre, Vt., made complaint to the authorities in which she asked that she be provided with support by her husband. Gordon was arrested and since then the case has been continued from time to time. Gordon is employed as an upholsterer repairer.

A meeting of the Boys' work committee of New London Y. M. C. A. was held Wednesday afternoon in the older boys' room at 5 o'clock. It was decided that the committee should meet each month. The first Tuesday in each month, at 5 p. m. was chosen.

Last year six boys from the boys' division competed in obtaining subscriptions for the national magazine. It was voted that this be again carried out this year, and the dates for the local campaign were set at February 18-25, as that is a vacation week for the boys. Six boys will be selected and each two boys will have an adult coach. The winning boys in the country will be given an auto trip covering many of the Y. M. C. A. camps, and lasting about a month. This will be under the supervision of picked boys' work secretaries.

Ralph W. Matteson, chairman of the committee and Herbert W. Hicks, associate secretary, in charge of boys' work, were appointed the adult members representing the Central Branch Y. M. C. A. on the state boys' work council. The appointment of the two boy members, one from secondary schools and the other from the employed boys in membership, were left to these two for selection.

A committee, Wm. D. Harris, R. W. Matteson and Secretary Hicks, was appointed to inventory the games at present in the social rooms and add to them from time to time.

TWO MISSING BOYS SOUGHT BY EXECUTIVE BURDICK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 15.—Two boys are missing from home and today Boy Scout Executive F. A. Burdick, of this city, requested the police to assist him in locating the strayed-away youths. One of the boys is Louis F. Reed, 17, missing from Rhode Island. The other is Francis Smith, 15, weighs about 105, has brown eyes, dark hat, about five feet, four inches in height, medium complexion and wore a brown coat, gray suit and gray cap. Scoutmaster Burdick has requested that any information regarding the missing boys be forwarded to him without delay.

The New London Coach Line, whose garage was put out of business because of a fire last Friday night, has secured the services of a Providence bus line to take care of the transportation between New London and the submarine base and Norwich and the suburban districts. Buses were brought to New London from Providence Saturday and have since been put into operation so that the service will not be interrupted.

Gerald Dineen, formerly of New London, now of Wallingford, spent Sunday renewing acquaintances in this city.

The Bronstein building on Pearl street, which was condemned by the city several weeks ago, has almost been rased and by tomorrow the structure will be down. The dismantling of the building has resulted in several families being provided with fuel for ever since the tearing down of the building started, the timbers have been carted away and destitute families will be furnished fuel during the winter.

During the week at least 12 submarines will leave this port for southern zones and will remain there until April. The boats departing will mean that between $30,000 and $35,000 will be spent somewhere other than New London.

The regular meeting of the city council will be held in the municipal building Monday night and it is probable that Mayor May will bring up the matter of the submarine base not furnishing an escort for the funeral of Chief Petty Officer Arthur F. Hodges, together with an absence of city officials at the fire of the City Coach Line, Water street, Saturday morning, when six buses of the coach line were destroyed. The bus line is partially covered by insurance, but it will have to suffer a heavy loss, nevertheless. It has not been determined just what the loss will be, but it will entail an amount much larger than at first anticipated.

Mrs. Charles A. Pinney, wife of Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney, will probably return to her home next week, from Lawrence-Memorial hospital where she underwent an operation several weeks ago. Her condition is such that her physician is of the opinion that Mrs. Pinney will make as much progress at home as she is making at the hospital and because of that fact, Mrs. Pinney will undoubtedly be at home during the coming week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater.

If you enjoy love and romance, adventure and bright, sparkling comedy, don't fail to mark down "Naughty But Nice" on your calendar for today and Tuesday.

It is Colleen Moore's newest—and to date brightest First National picture. Last night's audiences at the Breed theater gave it an enthusiastic reception.

As modern as tomorrow, as full of life as a college freshman, as funny as a flint-souled landlord stepping on a banana peel, and as entertaining as a gossip about the folks next door, "Naughty But Nice" takes its place among the very best of this popular star's successes.

From the moment Colleen introduces Hallam Cooley, a total stranger, as her husband she gets into hot water that makes the laughs heartier as the water grows hotter.

Donald Reed, new screen leading man, plays the role of the man whose love Colleen almost loses as the result of her risky escapade. Other supporting players are Claude Gillingwater, Kathryn McGuire, Edythe Chapman and Clarissa Selwynne.

Palace Theater.

Clara Bow has annexed another title. The redhead of the screen who personified "IT" in the picture of that name, established herself as the typical American flapper in "Rough House Rosie" and gained the name of a heart smashed in "Hula" is now a great comedienne.

"Get Your Man" which opened yesterday at the Palace theater puts her opportunities. The comedy which is packed in the scenes where Miss Bow and Charles Rogers, her leading man, are locked all night in a Parisian waxworks museum bubbles over with laughs. There seems no end to the situations in which a youthful couple can involve themselves at night among figures which walk, roll their eyes, wave their arms, fall in one's arms and all but talk.

Charles Rogers is coming fast. The handsome leading man who scored so heavily in "Wings" proves himself a real actor in this picture. Josephine Dunn, whose former work has been an the "naughty little girl" is clever as the demure, chaste French miss.

Strand Theater.

Pirates! The Java Sea! A beautiful exotic island girl! A dying minister! A brutal scheming trader! Out of these elements is woven a drama of the South Seas that is powerful in situation, gripping in action, delightful in romance and abounding in humor. The picture "Breed of the Sea," showing for the first time tonight at the Strand is unquestionably the finest piece of screen entertainment seen here in many months. Dominated by the compelling influence of Ralph Ince, who in addition to directing the production, plays the dual role of the twin brothers, one a missionary and the other a pirate, the picture is a marvel of characterization. Margaret Livingston plays the leading feminine role, that of the exotic island girl, to perfection, and others in the cast are Dorothy Dunbar, Pat Harmon and Shannon Day, the former Follies beauty. This film is much finer than the ordinary and is a tribute to Peter B. Kyne, America's most popular author, from whose story of Blue Blood and Pirates, the production was made.

Gold Struck is a complete story of our weekly series, which by the way, is nearing completion.

Broadway Theater.

The strangest demand yet made on a director became manifest during the filming of Marion Davies' "Quality Street," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture now showing at the Broadway theater, when Director Sidney Franklin was forced to don roller skates and act as cameraman.

This was in order to photograph the star as she hurried hither and thither on the set, making her toilette in anticipation of a visit from her admirer. The script called for the camera to follow the star all over the set.

The trick called for expert gyrations on the rollers, backward, forward and sidewise. It was the first time the director had been on skates since he was a youngster taking prizes as a roller skater.

"Quality Street" is one of the most lavish films of the year and is based on the Sir James Barrie stage play which Maude Adams made famous on the American stage. Conrad Nagel plays the leading male role and the cast includes Helen Jerome Eddy, Kate Price, Flora Finch, Marcelle Corday and Margaret Seddon.

Included in the five acts of vaudeville are the Donna Darling Revue, with Sammy Clark in "The Princess and the King." Holden and Graham in a clever comedy routine, Henry J. Kelly, the great story teller, Mlle. Rhea and the Santora Company and Fay and Rogers in a comedy skit.

2,000,000 Mark Hit By Eureka.

President Fred Wardell, of the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company, announces that the two millionth Eureka cleaner was produced at the factory yesterday, and to celebrate the achievment the company will hold a diamond jubilee.

The two millionth cleaner will be diamond-studded and offered as a prize among the 21 major branch Eureka stores. It will be formally presented to the branch manager with the greatest number of sales during November and December at the Statler hotel in February.

Eureka cleaner No. 1,000,000 was made by the company in August, 1924, 14 years after the organization of the company. Production schedules have been constantly "stepped" up in the past few years, the second million cleaners being produced in three years and four months. From one man and a girl, the organization has been built up until there are now branch stores in most of the important cities, with 4,000 dealers spread over the world.

While there are over 70 different makes of vacuum cleaners, more than 80 per cent. of the world's output is produced by Eureka, President Wardell says. The company is now on a schedule of 1,500 machines daily, compared with 1,000 earlier in the year.

The headquarters of the Eureka company for Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts are at 20 Haynes street, Hartford, with stores in all the leading cities of this territory, and branch manager, Leland M. Baum, states that his branch is closing the most successful year in its history and will have sold 12,000 Eurekas by December 31st as against 8770 for 1926. Last year the Hartford branch won the Vive President Improvement Cup for the greatest improvement shown over the preceding year and this year they expect to win the president's cup for the best all-around job, and they are also strong contenders for the ownership of the highly sought-after Two Millionth Eureka.

Poultry Meeting.

A poultry meeting is to be held at the farm bureau office on Thursday evening Jan. 17th at 7.30 to which all interested are invited. This is the first poultry meeting of the year and the subjects discussed will call attention to the coming breeding season. The subject which should be of keen interest to poultrymen is that of chicken pox control and winter management. This disease has been very prevalent among flocks this year and has caused no end of worry and loss. This will be handled by Prof. R. E. Jones, poultry specialist of the extension service at Storrs.

County Agent W. T. Clark will give a summary of the "Grow Poultry Chix" program of 1927. Some interesting figures have been pompiled from the surveys obtained.

Prof. Jones will also discuss some of the changes in the 1928 program.

TRINITY METHODIST SCHOOL PAYS HONOR TO RETIRING SUPERINTENDENT

John B. Stanton, who has given almost 20 years in service as assistant superintendent, acting superintendent, and general superintendent of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Sunday school was presentedthe gift of a beuatiful fireside chair before the school Sunday.

In presenting the gift on behalf of the officers and members of the school, Guy B. Dolbeare, said, in part, "By your devotion and loyalty through many years you have won the deep admiration and the lasting gratitude of us all. You have not been discouraged by difficulties. You have wrought intelligently and persistently. Now you are turning the school over to your successor in as prosperous condition and with as efficient and modern organization as it has ever had in its history."

In responding to the remarks by Mr. Dolbeare, Mr. Stanton spoke interestingly and feelingly. He mentioned the ties which had been formed and strengthened during the years of his incumbenccy of the various offices of the school. He paid tribute to the loyalty and industry of teachers and workers. He spoke his pleasure in the growth of the school. He referred to the election of Ernest M. Newbury as his successor as "the realization of his own wish and as "a well-earned promotion."

Mr. Stanton had some time ago informed the school board of the necessity for his release from the duties of the office of superintendent. Whereupon the board elected him to life membership in their body, in recognition of faithful efficient service and in order to secure the benefit of his counsels on policies and problems.

HOLY FAIMLY ACADEMY HAS BUILDING IMPROVED

When the pupils of the Holy Family Academy at Baltic returned from the Christmas recess, they had not anticipated the great surprise in store for them. The new addition with its various improvements and commodities was completed. Into bright and cheery class-rooms and dormitories pupils were ushered only to find it was theirs to enjoy. The purpose of this change in the building is to enlarge the teaching capacity by which school activities may expand. Reverend Mother Alphonse is fostering the gratitude and respect due to the religious schools of the diocese and furthering the varied interests of Catholic education.

Little Flower hall and the new departments in St. Joseph's hall place the Academy's equipment in no inferior rank. In such comfortable surroundings a new enthusiasm seems to have seized the pupils for they are poring over their books with fresh zest.

However, the proximity of the mid-year examinations may be exerting its beneficial influence also. Satisfaction was recently evinced by the Alumnae association at the air of progress in their Alma Mater and a very generous willingness to support Reverend Mother's plans was expressed.

PARK CHURCH PASTOR SPOKE UPON THE TRANSFIGURATION

In a sermon at Park Congregational church this month, Rev. Dr. S. H. Howe presented inspiring thoughts to his congregation when his theme was The Transfiguration, speaking from the text Mark 9.2: And was transfigured before them. He spoke as follows:

A clergyman of exceptional ability and of surpassing success recently remarked in my hearing that he had never preached a sermon on the Transfiguration. A great and crisal event in the career of Jesus awaits his treatment. For the transfiguration is the event to which all previous events led up and from which all that followed takes its departure. It stands as a distinct line of demarcation in the ministration of our Lord.

The time and place are significant. It seemed outside the Jewish frontier that it might be given a world frontage. It was not colored by racial tradition. It cannot be attributed to provincial superstition. The time was significant, at the close of a ministry of teaching and miracle working thus opening a new page for an unenoted history. From hence His face is set toward Jerusalem where He would enact the tragedy in which His career terminated. Hitherto He has laid the foundation of the faith on which He would build His church. The Apostle Peter had voiced that faith in response to the question, "Whom say ye that I am?" in the words "Thou art the Son of God."

It was fitting that He should give the full confirmation of that faith. That He should release that imprisoned glory which mortal eyes had not gazed upon. Hitherto that hidden splendor had been veiled by the thick folds of flesh and blood. It here bursts out from its hidden reserve and guarded secrecy and flashes a dazzling splendor upon beholders.

He had laid the winning spells of His personality on His beneficiaries but He had other reserves of power by which He would win the followings of a far greater constituency. If I be lifted up, I will draw all men unto me. But after the great confession of Peter He could reveal an unexpected opulence of power. Jesus here revealed to His awed disciples not a newly acquired glory. He manifested an existent splendor. He had been all that was disclosed on the Transfiguration mount, but the curtain of the flesh concealed the essential attributes of His person. He had spoken guardedly of the tragedy which now awaits Him. But now the hour was striking for the open self-disclosure.

Moses and Elijah, the two great prophets, glide to His side and their high discourse was of the exodus in which His career ended. They spoke of His decease only as the palmary event from which all else would fall away into subordinate moment. From hence the cross was on His horizon line and he could now declare it. These great visitants were not on the mount to pass verdicts on what seems to engross much of modern thinking. They were not to pass judgments or press emphasis on His teaching or example, not to utter felicitations on His humanity in all of which there is not the faintest suggestion of His Saviorhood. These prophets broke into history to hold high discourse on His decease which He was to accomplish at Jerusalem. It was this that supremely concerned their own and the whole world's redemption. His exodus, His death on the cross on which depended the destiny of themselves and all men. Great teaching and fine conduct are no basis for the faith of sinful men then or now or always. But would He die for the sins of the world was the crucial question for them and for us and for all men. Of this they held high discourse and bore supreme concern that it was to this supreme determinative fact His disciples were to bear witness. To this fact His teaching and His mighty works led up. To this all His after stepe led up and to that fact the faith of all true believers has led up. For this all the resources of divine power and love were demanded. The outflashing of that hidden glory was what the three apostles saw for the first time. To confirm their faith made in Peter's great confession they were given vision of the divine majesty on the Holy Mount.

We should be sorely bereaved by the exclusion of this scene. We might be wholly engrossed with the manward side of His nature, but he here is a corrective of merely humanitarian thoughts. Here the divine breaks out upon us so that we cannot put Him in any human classification. No human figure had ever flashed out into such overpowering splendor.

Hints of this may be given when Christ comes to live with and in us. He reproduces Himself in His Followers. If we are God-dwelt we are not common clay. Your life is hid with Christ in God — enwrapt, enveloped in God and something of the inner glory flashes out through face and form. His life is hidden in His church which is His body. There is an imprisoned glory in the humblest believer and the veils become transparent and the hidden Christ is revealed. Moses' face shone when he came down from the mountain commission; and Stephen's face shone like an angels when the stones were rattling about his head. We shall be like Him when we see Him as He is. They that turn many to righteousness shall shine with the brightness of the firmament and as the stars forever and anon. But this vision on the mount is the glory at which we all light our torches.

It was when He prayed that He was transfigured, and Christian faith and prayer take this illuminating function for us. St. Francis' face shone when he prayed. St. Teresa's face shone with a supernatural light and beauty. Our modern saints may not wear the Aureole of the Mediavalists but they are radiant when they live the life divine. A great company of Christian people assembled for worship or for conference bear on their faces a light not seen on land or sea. They bear scant resemblance to the faces you see at the prize rings or in the man on the street.

This subject and event are not incredible. We are in spite of ourselves believers in and witnesses of transfiguration—Luther Burbank could take a rundown flower and make it fit to be planted in the garden of the Hesperides. A sculptor can take a bit of Carrara marble and carve it into the Apollo Belvedere or the Venus de Milo Phidias can take the unhewn stone and with it build the Parthenon. Millet can take a bit of canvas and turn it into the Angelus. And God can take the mortal clay we offer Him and shape it into the image of the divine. He can build a life into forms of beauty and efficiency and make it friend and fellow workman in the building of the Church of God.

Let us learn from this great subject:

1. What is central in the career of Jesus for it is a prophecy of what is redeeming in His Great career. It is His decease, his exodus, His death. His cross and passion by which He takes away the sins of the world and opens the Kingdom of heaven to all believers.

2. Let us learn what a mighty mass of personality Christ had to reveal that was not revealed in His ministry of teaching and healing. Let us learn what a wealth of personality in ourselves which this life does not unfold.

3. Let us learn what a medium for the expression of personality a human form may furnish. It was a human body which Jesus Christ assures from which the divine glory broke in dazzling effulence from which we turn averted faces.

4. And let us learn the doctrine of the persistence of personality. These two mighty spirits, Moses and Elias, who had shaken the world with the tread reappear with unshattered personality—and deeply engrossed with the outcome of the redemptive agency on which they themselves had wrought and their persistent interest in the redemption of the world. These glorified saints were watching with bated breath and uninterrupted interest the unfolding drama; and the final tragedy on which the world's salvation hinged.

5. Let us learn the place the cross held in the interest of Jesus Christ Himself and which he was now openly to proclaim. It was to Him the supreme event for which He came. And it is the one point of centrality for us to fix our eyes upon. The decease, the exodus, the death. He was to accomplish at Jerusalem.

EASTERN CONN. RIFLE LEAGUE IS PROPOSED

Plans are underway for the forming of an Eastern Connecticut rifle league. Word has been sent to the various clubs in the eastern part of the state, namely; Norwich Rifle club, Mystic Rifle club, New London Rifle club, Colchester Rifle club, Danielson Rod and Gun club, Willimantic Rifle club. If any other clubs are interested, they are expected to communicate at once with E. D. Morrill, Division street, Norwich, president of the Norwich Rifle club, or Charles B. Palmer, R. F. D. No. 3, Norwich. The idea of the formation of a league is not new, as the Nutmeg Rifle league a live wire organization, has several successful seasons to its credit. The Nutmeg league has clubs in Middlefield, Cromwell, Meriden, Bristol, Bridgeport, Middle Haddam, New Britain, Waterbury, Hartford and New Haven. Teams in this league engage in shoulder to shoulder competition every two weeks during the indoor season with the 22 cal. rifle. Due to the distance that it would be necessary for any club in eastern Connecticut to travel to participate in matches of the Nutmeg league, it was decided to sound the various clubs in eastern Connecticut on the formation of such a league to be known as the Eastern Connecticut rifle league at the annual meeting of the Connecticut State Rifle Association in Middlefield town on Jan. 7th. Much credit is due to the Norwich Rifle club and the Mystic Rifle club for their activity in putting this idea forward. As soon as word is received from the various clubs in eastern Connecticut, a meeting will be called at some central point, for the purpose of forming the league. The Eastern Connecticut league if formed will have the backing of the Connecticut State Rifle association, which is affiliated with the National Rifle Association of America.

MOTHER!

A Child Doesn't Laugh and Play if Constipated

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

COOLIDGE CONCILIATORY IN PLEA FOR GOOD WILL ON WESTERN HEMISPHERE

At Opening of Pan-American Conference President Coolidge Urged the Delegates of the 21 Central and South American Countries to Adjust Their Differences by the Application of the Principles of Justice and Equality—Emphasized the Fact That the United States is Merely One Country Among Many Seeking the Way Toward a Closer and More Complete Inter-Continental Harmony.

HAVANA, Jan. 16.—(AP)—With all the prestige that the American presidency conveys to the nations of the new world, President Coolidge made an appeal at the opening session of Pan-American conference today for peace and good will in the western hemisphere.

Going outside of his homeland for the first time since he entered the White house, Mr. Coolidge lifted his hand in a sign of admonition and urged the delegates of 21 Central and South American countries to adopt the doctrine of adjusting their differences, not by resort to force, but by the application of the principles of justice and equality.

He was acclaimed as the head of the most powerful nation of the new world, but his speech was filled with terms of conciliation and helpfulness, in which he placed the United States as merely one country among many seeking the way toward a closer and more complete inter-continental harmony.

Although the audience which jammed the Cuban National theatre was predominantly Spanish speaking, President Coolidge was frequently interrupted with bursts of enthusiastic applause. This was taken up spontaneously by the vast crowd, which, owing to its unfamiliarity with the English language, had come more to see, than to hear the tumult rose first among the few who understood and was carried back in waves to their neighbors on the main floor, to the boxes and the balcony and finally to the far distant seats in the gallery.

It was in this atmosphere of almost frenzied happiness that Mr. Coolidge spent his second day in the capital city of Cuba. Long before he came out of the national palace with President Machado to start the procession to the theatre, great crowds thronged the plaza in front of the Cuban executive's home. As many as could obtain places in the narrow streets along the line of march jostled one another for positions of vantage. The more fortunate Cubans of high station had found places in the theatre, but they behaved little differently in their excitement from the masses who fought in the streets for a glimpse of President Coolidge.

Thousands leaded over their balconies, garlanded with roses and ivy, while hundreds, turned back by the police, scrambled to the tops of office buildings, even though they knew they would be rewarded only with a view of the president's auburn hair.

At last President Coolidge, clad in a high silk hat and frock coat, appeared in the doorway of the Cuban palace. The crowd in the plaza had started cheering the moment they saw his aides come out. But when they saw the president himself, their cries leaped in a mighty crescendo, that swept itself along the line to the theatre. "Viva el presidentel," they cried, when Mr. Coolidge passed, the men grabbed their hats from their heads and waved them enthusiastically. They had not spent themselves in yesterday's tumultuous welcome, and again produced flags and flowers as if by magic, to wave and toss as the procession went by.

To those who have watched President Coolidge respond to applause in his own country, it seemed as if he were inordinately touched by this unusual display of enthusiasm. He bowed and smiled continually, keeping his hat off, to lift frequently in acknowledgment. President Machado, riding by his side, nodded his head occasionally, but was punctilious in keeping in the background.

In the second car Mrs. Coolidge rode with Senora Machado, and she too, received her share of acclamation, and waved her hand cheerily. When the party reached the theatre Mrs. Coolidge was almost separated from the president by a policeman zealous for Mr. Coolidge's safety, and she appeared to enjoy the momentary confusion while her aide remonstrated, and Senora Machado rushed up to her side.

The spectacle of cheering Cubans was repeated when the president returned to the palace, and again when he set out shortly afterward for a 20 mile drive into the country for luncheon at President Machado's hacienda.

At the theatre Mr. Coolidge sat on a flag-draped stage behind a long table with the Cuban executives and Secretary of State Kellogg and Rafael Martinez Ortiz, Cuban secretary of state.

President Machado spoke first, laying stress on the significance of the Pan-American conference. Friendliness and cooperation, he said, were necessary to the advancement of the western hemisphere. He paid homage to President Coolidge as the head of the great people whom Cuba had the honor of seeing at her side in her struggle for independence.

The president of the United States then arose amid a wive of applause to deliver his speech. Spot lights were trained upon him from all sides as photographers recorded the event. The first applause came when he specifically mentioned the advancement of Cuba, both politically and economically, since the republic attained its independence, and he held Cuba up as an example to her sister republics of the new world.

The president advised the delegates that the existence of the conference involved no antagonism toward any other section of the world, or any other organization. The conference, he added, was merely a means to afford the American republics an opportunity of having the freedom and the responsibility of working out their own destiny in their own way.

Emphasizing the spiritual equality of all the American states, he declared that in the conference the smallest and the weakest could speak here with the same authority as the largest and the most powerful.

President Coolidge noted the new world tendency to stress the arts of peace and declared that the American republics had never come under the delusion of military grandeur. Neither among these republics had the great military establishment ever been maintained for the purpose over-awing or subjugating other nations.

Seeking refreshment in rural Cuba the president and Mrs. Coolidge spent the afternoon at the Machado hacienda and in visiting neighboring points of interest. Tonight they were the guests of honor at a state dinner given by President Machado to all visiting delegations.

NO DEFINITE TRACE OF MISS FRANCES SMITH

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 16—(AP)—A day spent in running down various clues in three states failed to reveal any definite trace of Miss Frances St. John Smith, Smith college student who disappeared last Friday. State Detective Joseph Daly co-operated with President William Allan Neilson of the college in directing the search.

The young woman's father, St. John Smith, a New York broker, has offered a reward of $1,000 for information which will lead to finding his daughter. He and Mrs. Smith, who formerly lived in the adjoining town of Amherst, were here today.

While the possibility of suicide was considered, no motive could be found. Mrs. Smith and others called the attention of the authorities to the fact that a peculiar chemical odor had been noticed in the girl's room in Dewey house, a college dormitory.

The whole countryside about Northampton and Amherst was searched today. Detective Daly centered his investigation particularly along the banks of the Connecticut river.

REGULATION OF MOTOR VEHICLE TRANSPORTATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Motor vehicle operations for transport of passengers and property over public highways should be regulated by cooperation of the federal and state governments under supervision of the interstate commerce commission, it was held today in a special report terminating a nationwide investigation.

Leo J. Flynn, attorney examiner for the commission, who heard the evidence recommended the regulatory system, and suggested legislation necessary to make it effective.

Transportation by motor vehicles operating as common carriers is "a well established, useful and permanent factor in the nation's transportation system," Flynn's report said while railroads, it added have suffered from competition "they have no more economic right to any traffic than had the canals and stage coaches which once opposed railroad construction."

SUSPECT IDENTIFIED BY HER FINGERPRINTS

CHICAGO, Jan. 16 (AP)—Fingerprints on the adhesive tape which bound the body of Betty Landsiedel, slain in her apartment last week, tonight were identified by the police as those of Mrs. Marion Kirk, a suspect arrested with her husband, James Kirk, today.

Kirk, when led into the presence of his wife after police questioning, cried out to her "If you want to save yourself from the chair, tell the truth."

The name "Marion" was mentioned loudly during a violent argument in the Landsiedel girl's apartment the day she was slain.

An attorney who said he appeared for Gordon Chamber the slain girl's husband, promised the police that he would produce Chambers and the three other men wanted if warrants were presented, or if the police would agree not to put them through "third degree" interrogation.

WIDESPREAD SEARCH FOR MISSING AIR PILOT

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 16—(AP)—Airplanes and scores of ranchers searched southwestern Idaho today for Fred Hoyt, missing air pilot who was caught in a snow storm yesterday and forced them to land, but no trace of the missing airman had been found tonight.

Four planes flew over the region south of the Idaho border, while a fifth searched the raft river valley section of Idaho.

Posses of ranchers battled almost impassable roads in combing the raft river country in the vicinity of Stewell, where Hoyt was last reported seen, flying west in the snowstorm. If he continued on a westerly course from Stewell, he probably was forced down ni the wild, practically uninhabited region along the Idaho-Nevada line. He had only five hours fuel supply when he left Salt Lake city.

WHOLESALE PRICES WERE STATIONARY IN DECEMBER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16 (AP)—A virtually stationary level of wholesale prices from November into December was indicated today by a labor department report on commodity prices. The index number indicating the collective average of wholesale commodity prices for December was 96.8, compared with 96.7 for November, 100 representing average price levels of 1926.

Comparing the index figures for various classes of commodities as they were ni December 1926, the department said, farm products, hides and leather were considerably higher, and textile products slightly higher. Coal and Petroleum price declines for the year brought the whole fuel commodity index 17 per cent. lower in December, than in December, 1926, while there also were declines of a lesser degree in metals, furniture, building materials and chemicals.

"JAZZLESS RADIO" IS PRONOUNCED A SUCCESS

URBANA, Ills., Jan. 16—(AP)—"Jazzless radio" was pronounced a complete success today by directors of the University of Illinois broadcasting studio, WRM, after a "jazzless" year on the air.

Complimentary letters from listeners from listeners throughout the continent during the first year of full operation without jazz attested the popularity of the classical program, said the WRM directors. From Canada, the West Indies, New England, the south and the far west came the same refrain: "We are tired of jazz all over the dial."

Ice on Plane Forced Chamberlin Down

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The third attempt of Clarence D. Chamberlin and Roger Q. Williams to wrest the world's duration flying record from Germany failed today when they were forced down by ice forming on their monoplane after being in the air about three and a half hours.

Chamberlin said he was willing to start a fourth attempt with Williams in two weeks and if necessary he said he would change the dates of his national lecture tour, which is to start this week at Philadelphia.

The fliers dumped 330 galons of gasoline, landed at Mitchel field at 4.25 p. m., notified their backer, A. R. Martine, of the sudden termination of their attempt, then flew their plane to a Curtiss field hangar a mile and a half away to be berthed.

Twice before in the past week they went aloft to try to beat the German record of 52 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds, but both times they failed. On the first try a fuel pump jammed after four hours. The second attempt lasted almost 52 hours, a leaking gasoline tank alone preventing success.

Today's hop started at 12:54:22 p. m. and they would have to stay up until 6:16:53 p. m. Wednesday to bring the record back to this country, as an existing record has to be bested by a full hour to be officially broken.

Chamberlin, who is holder of the long distance air record for his trans-Atlantic flight, was holder with Bert Acosta of the endurance record before it wane to Germany.

When the fliers went up today they had an official forecast telling them that they might expect a falling barometer with snow or rain or both.

SAW IN MIRROR REFLECTION OF WIFE SHOOTING HERSELF

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—In a shaving mirror that imaged his own lather-smeared face, Dr. Shepherd Povlin saw his wife shoot herself to death today, he told police.

Mrs. Povlin, who was employed by the Harrison Detective agency of Chicago, left a note which broke off with the incompleted scrawl, "I shot my—." Dr. Povlin, an interne at the Long Coney Island hospital, told police he had asked her to write the note so as to clear himself of all suspicion.

The assistant medical examiner said that he believed the woman had committed suicide because it would have been impossible for another person to fire the bullet through her body at the angle at which it penetrated her breast.

Dr. Povlin said that when he awoke this morning, his wife was seated on the edge of her bed writing. The note, which he turned over to police later, read:

"I am tired of living this way. I cannot go on without my husband and I am afraid to go alone. My husband has enough money to take care of himself. I shot my—."

Dr. Povlin said their marriage, performed at Little Rock, Ark., a year and a half ago, was a secret one. It had been performed by a man named Menrich for a fee of $2. Although he did not believe the marriage was legal, he said, they had lived as man and wife.

Povlin said his duties in the ambulance service of the Coney Island hospital prevented him from seeing her more than once in two weeks. He said she was first married when she was 15 but he did not know if she had divorced her first husband or whether he had died. Mrs. Povlin had a ten-year-old daughter.

CHICAGO Jan. 16—(AP)—The $1,000,000 beer conspiracy case which named a railroad company as defendant, opened in federal court today with testimony of seizure of five freight car loads of beer at Morton Grove, a town on the outskirts of Chicago.

In ddition to th Boston and Maine railroad being named in an indictment several employes of other roads, three prohibition agents, a former Chicago police lieutenant and several politicians were accused.

The government contends the beer seized was shipped from Lawrence, Mass., and that officials of the Boston and Maine, and employes of other roads conspired with the bootleg syndicate to bring it here.

The railroad was granted a severance.

Joseph Prendergast, former prohibition department employe, told of seizing the beer at Morton Grove and arresting three men. Albert K. Winge is the former Chicago police lieutenant involved. Three prohibitions agents were granted a separate trial.

Confessed Slaying Dorothy Schneider

Adolph Hotaling Gives Details of Murder of Five-Year Old School Girl.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 16—(AP)—Adolph Hotelling, elder of an Owosso, Mich., church and a contractor, arrested in Owosso today confessed to the kidnaping and murder of 5-year-old Dorothy Schneider, at Mt. Morris, near here, last Thursday.

Hotelling confessed to sheriff's officials after he had been positively identified by Archie Bacon, a farmer who unwittingly had assisted him to escape after the killing, by removing Hotelling's machine from a mud hole. The knife with which the man told officials he had dissected the child's body was found in his clothing and an old sedan car in which he drove to the Mt. Morris woods with with the little victim prior to carrying out the deed, was found in a garage where attempts had been made to change its appearance by repainting.

The man was rushed to the local jail by officials and according to police immediately went into hysterics, raving about his cell and tearing his hair.

In his confession according to police, Hotelling declared he was in Flint last Thursday looking for work.

"I don't know what came over me," he was quoted by police as stating. "I was driving along and saw Dorothy. I got her in the car, thinking I would take her home. She cried, I drove to Snyder road (the muddy road in which his car became mired) and carried her part way across the field. She still cried and wanted to go home."

The slayer, according to police, said when they reached the creek bank, with Dorothy walking the last part of her death march across the field, she continued to cry and said she would tell her father, so he pulled out his two bladed clasp knife and stabbed her twice. The wounds were mortal. Then he proceeded with the task of mutilating the body.

"I don't know what came over me," he kept repeating.

Dorothy was kidnaped when on her way home from kindergarten. An alarm spread by her mother and school officials started a search which resulted in discovery of the mutilated body partially submerged in the waters of a creek in seldom frequented section near here. The alarm broadcast started the most intensive man hunt in the history of this state with every available member of the state police, Flint city police force, and the county officers working night and day to apprehend the slayer.

The confession today followed the funeral and burial of the child on the slope of a hill not far from the spot where she was killed.

Hotelling, formerly a deacon of a local church, was installed as an elder Sunday night. He had presided at a communion in the morning.

MOB CLAMORING TO LYNCH SLAYER OF THE GIRL

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 16 (AP)—A company of national guard troops was ordered out tonight to stem a menacing mob gathered about the county jail here clamoring to lynch Adolph Hotelling, alleged slayer of 5 year old Dorothy Schneider.

Although officials declared Hotelling had been spirited out of the city, the mob was unconvinced, even after a committee appointed by them had inspected the jail without finding trace of the alleged slayer.

The order calling out the militia, followed unsuccessful attempts by police and sheriff's officers to quell the mob with tear gas. Hand-to-hand fighting betweenthe officers and members of the crowd resulted in the arrest of three men. As the doors of the jail were opened to receive the prisoners, some one threw a tear bomb through and filled the jail with tear gas.

A local newspaper resorted to the expedient of circulating a special issue with flare heads, setting out that the man had been spirited out of town, in an effort to pacify the mob. By 9.30 p. m., the mob had swelled to several thousand persons, and the newspaper information apparently had failed to placate them.

TEACHER SUES FOR $600 BACK PAY AND $25,000 FOR SLANDER

INDIANAOLA, Iowa, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Another chapter in the hostilities between Miss Florence Cochrane and the school board of Broadhorn district of this county, pricipals in the now famous "Naughty Stories" case, was written today when Miss Cochrane filed suit in district court to collect $600 in back pay. In addition she has a $25,000 suit for slander pending.

Miss Cochrane, who was discharged by the board on grounds of incompetence and because she was accused of telling stories to her pupils which the board considered risque and offensive, carried the case to the state superintendent of public instruction who exonerated her of all allegations.

FAILURE OF THE SECOND ATTEMPT TO BLACKMAIL BANKER IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—George Woodruff, internationally known banker, for the second time has been the target of blackmailers who threaten his life in a demand for a delivery of cash, it became known today, and for the second time the effort failed.

The latest effort, which involved a demand for $2,000 occurred last Saturday, when two youths in a dilapidated flivver seized a decoy package and escaped after exchanging shots with six private detectives who tried to seize them.

Six years ago Mr. Woodruff was threatened with death unless he handed over $50,000 but he disregarded the demand.

He is the chairman of the board of the First National Bank of Joliet and of the Woodruff Securities company of that city and vice chairman of the board of the National Bank of the Republic of Chile.

Last Friday the death threat demand for $2,000 was mailed to him at the Joliet bank.

The family employed a half dozen private detectives from a Chicago agency and, without notifying the Joliet or Will county authorities, a trap was laid.

Within a few minutes after the expiration of the time limit the writer of the death threat had fixed, two youths drove to the indicated spot. One of them leaped out and seized the decoy package while the six detectives rushed the machine. One of the youths fired a pistol, leaped into the automobile and he and his companion sped away after a fusillade from the detectives.

The detectives failed to get either a description of the boys or the license number of the automobile.

Mr. Woodruff did not learn of the demand until today, just before the afternoon mail brought him a second letter which he said obviously had been been typed by the writer of the death threat.

It was an apology.

"Please forgive me for what happened Saturday night" it said. "I never did anything like that before and never will again.

"I got the scare of my life."

SENATE FAVORS DOWNWARD REVISION OF TARIFF RATES

Without Power to Initiate Tariff Legislation the Senate, by a Vote of 54 to 34, Transmitted to the House Its Record in Favor of Immediate Revision Downward of the "Excessive" Tariff Rates—The Administration Group Voted Almost Solidly Against the Proposal—In the House Representative Garner Charged Secretary Mellon With Attempting to Block Action on Tax Reduction Bill in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—By a vote of 54 to 34 the senate today went on record in favor of immediate downward revision of "excessive" tariff rates.

Without power to initiate tariff legislation, the senate formally transmitted a record of its action to the house which is in somewhat perplexed mood on this question. Some farm republicans there are prepared to ask for higher tariff rates on agriculture but administration leaders apparently are heeding the opposition of President Coolidge to any tariff legislation at this session.

The senate acted on a resolution by Senator McMaster, republican, South Dakota, modified to provide for downward revision only of "excessive" rates, which were not specified, the resolution was supported by 13 republicans, one farmer-labor and 41 democrats.

The administration group voted almost solidly against the proposal, but it was supported by only two democrats—Broussard, of Louisiana, and Kendrick of Wyoming. Broussard announced that Senator Ransdell, democrat, Louisiana, also would have voted against the resolution had he been present.

Republicans supporting McMaster in his week's fight for the resolution generally complained of agricultural conditions but opponents of the proposal insisted that downward revision of tariff rates, even though other than those on agricultural products, could not assist the farmers.

The six days of debate found republicans and democrats generally again fighting the old issues of tariff with the former arguing that it principally was responsible for prosperity. This brought a sharp retort today from Senator Robinson, the democratic leader who demanded to know where the "prosperity" was. Citing a list of bank failures, he declared there was no such thing as "prosperity."

Under the constitution, the house has the exclusive right to initiate tariff legislation. There have been some indications, however, that some senators might attempt to attach a rider to the tax bill to change certain tariff schedules.

FIGHT ON TAX REDUCTION IS LOOMING IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—(AP)—Secretary Mellon was accused on the house floor today with deliberately attempting to block senate action on the $290,000,000 tax reduction bill because it had been discovered the measure would increase by approximately $50,000,000 the total tax assessment on about 1,000 large corporations.

The charge was brought against the treasury head by Representative Garner, of Texas, democratic leader on the house ways and means committee which drafted the tax measure. He said he referred specifically to Mellon as in matters of finance as the secretary spoke for the administration.

Garner declared that he was advised that the bill would increase by more than $1,000,000 the tax on corporations in which Mellon was interested, and added: "And that doesn't look like tax reduction to Uncle Andy."

About the time Garner was stamping around in the well of the house pouring out a verbal broadside against the treasury secretary, a decision was reached by democrats at the other end of the capitol to demand immediate consideration by the senate of the tax bill.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, minority leader on the finance committee, announced that the democrats would unite in an effort to prevent republicans from carrying out their announced plans to postpone action on the measure until after March 15, when the first tax returns of the year are made.

Simmons is expected to initiate a move for action on the bill at a meeting tomorow of the finance committee on which there are 11 republicans to 9 democrats. In the senate itself the democrats face but slim prospects of mustering support from the republican independents as that group generally is opposed to any tax reduction at this session.

In the house, Garner charged Mellon with attempting to camouflage the tax reduction issue. He said that the secretary opposed two provisions in the bill; one requiring parent and subsidiary corporations to file separate tax returns instead of affiliated returns as permitted at present, and the other providing a graduated tax for corporations with net incomes of $15,000 or less.

The Texas democrat declared that Mellon objected to the first because it would increase instead of decrease taxes for large corporations and opposed the second because he did not wish congress to establish a precedent for a graduated tax rate on corporation incomes.

Garner predicted that if these two provisions were eliminated that Secretary Mellon would approve and President Coolidge sign a bill proposing a tax cut as high as $300,000,000. It's not the amount of the proposed tax cut, he added, but the two provisions regarding corporation levies to which the administration is opposed.

CALLED UPON AGED MOTHER TO PROVE HIS ILLEGITIMACY

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 16.—(AP)—A wealthy Pelham real estate operator called his 73-year-old mother to the witness stand today to confirm his testimony that he was her illegitimate son in an effort to disprove that he is Peter Brenner, alleged international embezzler. A Pelham real estate concern charges that the operator, Capt. Philip Le Del Fungo Giera, gave $30,000 in worthless stock in payment for property and is attempting to prove that he had lived by fraud here and abroad under the name of Peter Brenner.

The mother, Mrs. Peter Brenner, testified that Giera was born in 1874, and that Peter Brenner was born after her marriage and disappeared several years ago.

An hour after the mother had testified, her husband, Peter Brenner, Sr., testified that Giera was the Peter Brenner born to his wife after their marriage and the only Peter Brenner of which he knows.

CONTEST FOR OIL TRADE SUPREMACY IN FAR EAST

NEW YORK, Jan. 16—(AP)—The oil war between the Standard Oil company of New York and the Royal Dutch Shell company of Europe may be but the opening gun in a general trade war for supremacy in the Far East, a war with countless wealth as the victor's prize.

The latest department of commerce figures show that so rich is this field that the United States sold $106,000,000 worth of petroleum alone in the Far East in 1926. Buying power is steadily increasing and oil is but one item for consideration by competing export nations.

In 1926 this country sold about $10,000,000 worth of petroleum to British India alone, some 90,000,000 gallons, and it is in India that the Standard of New York charges the Royal Dutch Shell with using deperate price cutting methods to get a grip on the eastern market.

PREDICTED HOOVER WILL BE NEXT PRESIDENT OF THE U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The movement to secure the republican presidential nomination for Secretary Hoover was given added impetus today by a statement from Assistant Secretary Robinson of the navy that he favored the commerce department head, and a prediction on the floor of the senate by Senator Shortridge, republican, California, that Mr. Hoover would be the next president of the United States. At the same time, Secretary Mellon declared that published reports that he favored Mr. Hoover did not originate with him. Mr. Mellon said he had neither indicated his position on the question nor intimated "to anyone what I plan to do in the convention."

Secretary Hoover, in the opinion of Senator Shortridge, will make himself clear to the American people on every issue and will continue the policies of the administration."

SKIRMISH IN SENATE ON STATUS OF PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The eighth anniversary of prohibition under the eighteenth amendment was made the occasion today of a brief skirmish between Senator Sheppard, democrat, Texas, one of the amendment's original sponsors and Senator Bruce, democrat, Maryland, who has been prominently identified with the "wets" of congress.

To the absence of the noon time beer bucket, Senator Sheppard attributed better production and more prosperity.

"This condition of prosperity," reported Senator Bruce, "cannot be due to prohibition because there is no such thing."

Senator Sheppard, he asserted, because of his personal convictions as to prohibition, has the same faith in the eighteenth amendment that a small unsophisticated child has in its father.

As an example of how the liquor question should be treated, Senator Bruce cited Canadian laws and declared that he is advocating a bill that he has introduced, the establishment of the Quebec plan in the United States.

MINE MEN ENTOMBED IN MINE NEAR HAZLETON, PA.

HAZLETON, Pa., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Nine men were entombed tonight in the No. 8 mine of Lehigh Valley Coal company at Sheppton, about ten miles west of this city. They were caught behind a fall of earth. No details as to the condition or safety of the men could be obtained.

Officials said tonight that it is almost impossible to reach the mine because all roads in the region are heavily coated with ice. The expressed belief either that a breast of coal had caved in and imprisoned the men or that two pillars of coal had collapsed and brought down the top of earth and rock. On the latter case it might require several days to reach the men, they said.

HARTFORD YOUNG PEOPLE FINED FOR USING COTTAGE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 16.—Five Hartford young men and three New Britain girls were found guilty of breach of the peace charges in the Coventry town court this afternoon with charges resulting in the temporary occupancy by the young people of a cottage on the northwest shore of Lake Wangumbaug in South Coventry, where they had planned to stage a party. The arrests of the group was made about 2 o'clock Sunday morning when the party was discovered and the state police notified.

Charles Ellison, 19, of Hartford, was listed as the ring leader of the party when he admitted that he had told the young men and girls that the cottage belonged to his father and displayed a key with which to open the place. Ellison pleaded guilty to charged of damaging private property and breach of the peace. Justice of the Peace Albert M. Gilman imposed a fine of $5 and costs on each count.

Roy Bruce was arrested on the same warrant with Ellison and was ined $5 on a breach of peace charge. The total fine and costs in these cases was $46.52, which was paid. A blanket warrant had been issued on the remaining six members of the party charging them with breach of the peace to which all of them pleaded guilty. The three young men were Frank Farrell, 21, John Stone, 17, Scott Tracey, 18, all of Hartford, were given a fine of $5 and costs and a 30 days' jail sentence suspended.

The girls, Betty Wilkel, 17, Sophie Cooke, 18, and Alice Loudes, 17, all of New Britain, were given 30 days' suspended sentence. Fines and costs as these blanket charges amounted to $47.32 which was paid.

The accused also agreed to settle for damage to the cottage. Justice Gilman severely reprimanded the party, especially Ellison, who had misrepresented ownership of the cottage and received assurance of the parents who were present there would be no recurrence of the act. The trial was private and was held in the town clerk's office in South Coventry. Prosecution was by Officer K. W. Stevens, of the Stafford Springs State Police barracks and Grand Juror Robert Brooks.

When the party was interrupted, Ellison and Bruce and two young women had just left in their automobile. They were arrested in Hartford today by Officers Stevens and Hulbert. It was evident that a wild party was already under way at the cottage and it was said that liquor had been indulged in.

Eddie Morgan is spending a week's vacation in Edgartown, Mass. Saturday night as the radio sharps were tuning in, a voice came over the air from a nearby radio station and it was Eddie Morgan telling about the fishing business in that town. He spoke about the flat fish—never saw such large fish as those Massachusetts fisherman bring in. Then about oysters, he told what month to eat them in, one with a letter R. However, he said, any time an oyster stew is good—without or without the R. For over ten minutes his talk was heard by many village fishermen then in his pleasing tenor he sang "She is My Baby Now." It was good to see a Noank fellow make a hit. Many claimed that hearing him was better than going over to New London to see a show.

Mrs. Joe Smith is a patient at Home Memorial hospital, New London.

Arthur DeBlois went to Hope Valley, R. I., on a visit over the week end.

Sunday was like a July day. The warm sun made the young fellows leave off their overcoats while the girls put away their racooon coats and were enjoying the Florida weather. The first time in the history of the Indian Town chat overcoats and fur coats were put aside in winter time. That mosquito killed last week on Riverside avenue dock did not tell a lie. Having lightning at night looks as though something was going to happen, but George Stearns, an old-timer, who has studied the moon and the stars and watched the weather vane turn for the last 40 years, also has predicted the weather long before it came, says every day shortens the winter and you can put down in your note-book that every one will see a mild winter clear.

John Tourjee has returned from New York.

Noank Boy Scouts' basketball team is keeping on the winning sheet. The Speed Boys from Stonington came over Saturday night to pin a defeat on the fast going Scouts' five, so Referee Cummings told the fans when the Scouts picked the west side, while the Speed Boys were shooting on the east goal. Timer G. Patterson waved his hand to let the battle go on. Speed Boys were heavy and kept working the ball up the hall for short shots, but Smiley Buddington and his side-kick, Cannonball Marks were taking the ball from the back board and passing it to their forwards. When the quarter was over the Scouts held a slight lead, 8 to 2. In the second quarter Capt. Buddington tried out a new man at center, his second time to play the indoor game. He was Giant Sweet, a little over 6 feet. He was getting the tap from MacDuerr. It made a good change, as the team seemed to work well with him. The Speed Boys' eye for the hoop was a shade off. The first half ended Scouts 17, Stonington 7.

In the third quarter the captain of the Speed Boys told his men to shake the dust from their feet. Giant Sweet led the whole team, the way he was shooting them with one hand the length of the hall. The fans cheered him like our Lindy in Panama. Still the Scouts were in front by the score of 26 to 16. With the last quarter in sight, Stonington had to step on the gas if the winning streak of the Scouts would be broken; so the Speed Boys fought every inch of the way, to overcome the lead of the young soldiers. But it was no use for the fighting Scouts put away another victory. The final score was Scouts 31, Speed Boys 23. The stars for Noank were Giant Sweet with 8 field goals and 2 fouls, making 18 points. Midget D. Roberston was next with 4 field goals for Stonington. MacDuerr was the whole show with 17 points. Timer, G. Patterson; scorer, L. Harris. Attendance 50, 10-minute quarters.

A flat car was put on the side track at the railroad station Saturday morning. Its tag read "Noank Shipyard" and it was 8 dory boats for the new fishing boat. The yard truck spent all day taking them away to be put in the boat before it slid into the water.

During the year they have refinished the church floor at a cost of over $100, bought additional runners for the aisles, put five tons of coal in the parsonage, paid telephone and electric light bills for same, thus proving an aid in actual fact as well as name. DANIELSON

PARENTS OF MRS. KEITH CLAIM HER BODY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16—Mr. and Mrs. Alban Leonard of Raynham Center, Mass., have claimed the body of their daughter, Marlene Keith, taken from the river above North Grosvenordale Sunday afternoon and today it was taken to Raynham Center for burial. The parents were profoundly griefstricken over the tragic fate of their daughter, though in a measure prepared for the blow that has befallen them. The girl's long absence from home, with no word from her, and the fact that she was friendly with Jerome Sheldon, who also lost his life in the accident, and the inquiries that were made of the parents by officials in checking up the accident after it occurred left them with little hope that she escaped taking the plunge into the river. It is understood that the young woman had been twice married.

The actual taking of the body from the river was accomplished by Sergeant George L. Gardner and State Officer Emil Castagne of the Danielson barracks and Sergeant George Laird of the Putnam police department.

It is believed that the body during the more than two months it remained in the river had been held to the bottom by some object becoming entangled in Marlene's clothing.

A group of six girls from the commercial department at Killingly high school were getting practical experience in the field of official business today through doing the task of preparing 447 admonitions to be mailed out to delinquent personal taxpayers. These notices went into the mails tonight. They give notice to the men and women who had not paid the personal tax assessments when the time for so doing expired last Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock that they must do so within five days or summary action will be taken against them. This means that any further delay beyond the limit set in the notices will result in their being brought into court. As the situation now is they will pay $1.00 more than the $2.00 that would have squared their account with the town last week. If they go to court, the expense will be still heavier.

Officers of Killingly grange were installed this evening by J. D. Hollowell of Preston City, and the occasion was one to bring out a good attendance. The officers installed were: Master, Walter G. Bruce; overseer, Frank J. G. Bailey; secretary, Mrs. Walter G. Bruce; treasurer, Rev. Charles A. Downs; lecturer, Mrs. Harriet Wood; chaplain, Mrs. N. A. Jordan; steward, Howard Wood; assistant steward, Stanley Barstow; lady asistant steward, Helen Grover; Ceres, Miss Florence Converse; Pomona, Miss Vivian Converse; Flora, Miss Helen Grover.

Following the installation there was a social hour. Refreshments were served.

A new survey of the property acquired some months ago at the corner of Main and Academy streets by the Brooklyn Savings bank has been made by W. K. Pike, C. E., and will be the basis of certain decisions to be made in preparing the architects' plans for the new bank building. These plans are now being made ready in their final form with all the detail worked in, and will be ready, with specifications, for contractors to consider prior to making bids for the work of constructing the building. It is now indicated that bids will be submitted during February, and work on the building will be started as soon after March 1 as possible. Tenants in the property are to vacate at the end of February, and the buildings now standing there likely will be torn down. In any event, all of them are to be removed.

Persons who have had ocasion to do any excavating the past few days say there is very little frost in the ground. In this connection and when there was the promise of snow late this afternoon, one who has tilled the soil for many years remarked that a good snow storm would pay dividends in the spring, for it does improve the land.

One wonders what is to be done with Danielson school children, on their way home from classes, who march deliberately down the center of a street, three or four abreast, and pretending they do not see motor vehicles coming toward them force drivers to stop their cars. In the old days the very probable remedy would be a spanking from their parents, but that doesn't seem to be fashionable any more, however effective it used to be. There is in the situation as things now are a chance for teachers who have these youngsters in charge at least part of the day to lecture them a bit about a very dangerous, as well as a very irritating practice. And the kiddies laugh with glee every time they play the trick.

This, the eight anniversary of national prohibition, passed without any special reference to the fact in Danielson. It has come about that prohibition isn't even discussed hereabouts in anywhere near the degree that it formerly held place in conversation. Those who practice it consistently find little need to talk about it. Those who do not find no nourishment in such discussions.

Mrs. Nancy Spears Munyan, 82, a life long resident of Foster Center, is dead at her home in that place. Mrs. Munyan, the widow of Rufus P. Munyan, was born in Foster Center, July 22, 1845, a daughter of William and Rachel Shippee Spears and was of a family that has been identified with the community for generations. She was the oldest member of the Foster Center Christian church. She leaves no near relatives.

A late afternoon mail this day brought in to the office of the collector of personal taxes, Arthur A. Dean, some checks to pay such taxes that were dated back to Jan. 13, but bear postmarks showing they were mailed today. The checks will be returned, as they weren of received in time to protect the senders to pay the penalty for which they are now liable.

FIVE ABSENT AS EMERGENCY CALL BRINGS OUT GUARDSMEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16—Ten blasts on the fire alarm—the military call—sent Danielson's national guardsmen scurrying to the state armory at 7:30 tonight, for the preannounced mobilization test of units of the 43rd division scattered through New England. After the roll call Captain F. O. Armington said that the four officers and 53 of the 58 enlisted men of the service battery answered the call. The five absentees are in each instance night workers and would have reported in a real emergency, making a perfect record. Of the headquarters detachment special troops under command of E. L. Darbie also stationed at the state armory response to the call was 100 percent.

Deputy Game Warden Gurdon E. Withey probably established a record when he brought in a woodchuck this afternoon. The woodchuck which substitutes for the ground hog in this particular region is supposed by tradition to make his mid-winter appearance on Candelmas day, Feb. 2, but this particular one was roaming around a field today, while the game warden was covering his territory. Spring can not be far away!

The broadcast of the proceedings at the National theater in Havana this morning when President Coolidge and President Machada made addresses were heard by large number of radio fans in this territory.

A pure bred Holstein bull calf from W. S. Brown's Shepard Hill farm near Wauregan recently was sold by Mr. Brown for the herd at the State Infirmary at Duxbury, Mass., where there is a large herd of fine cattle.

Frank O. Plummer has a helpful suggestion for lessening the danger of accidents at the Reynolds street-Broad street crossover. This involves the painting of a heavy white line across Broad street at the approaches to Reynolds street and the word Stop. This plan is in use in various cities at similar places and works out well.

The annual meeting of the Westfield Congregational church is to be held this year in conjunction with the January Church Family night, on a date late in the month.

Ice that was cut at Dayville following the cold period of a fortnight ago is now being used for supplying many of the families and business places in Danielson.

On Franklin street, near the bridge, a quarantine has bene established on a home because a case of chicken-pox has developed.

Excepting that a man was arrested for having been intoxicated, and this case was continued until next month, there was no business for the town court today, maintaining the fine record of the year to date.

A warning is given that such ice as is left on small ponds hereabouts is so thin as to be dangerous for anyone to venture upon.

This spring lists of taxable property in the borough will have to be filed, but probably for the last time, as the plan is to use the lists submitted to the town on such properties for fixing the tax rate.

Miner Ives of South Meriden, master of the state grange, is to come to Brooklyn grange.

A TAX OF EIGHT MILLS VOTED AT BOROUGH MEETING

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 16—At the meeting of the voters of the borough of Jewett City at 8 p. m. Monday Edmond Jodoin, acting for the late warden, Matthew J. Geary, occupied the chair. E. M. Gray was clerk. Reports of the treasurer, E. M. Gray and that of the board of electrical commissioners, George J. Moeller, Lloyd G. Buckingham and Daniel F. Finn, were accepted by unanimous vote. A tax of 8 mills was laid to meet current expenses. The treasurer's report, which will be distributed at the polls next Monday, will show the running expenses for the year ending Dec. 31, 1927:

Streets $6,258.55; police $1,929.40; fire department $1,467.58; miscellaneous $750.51; insurance $413.82; street lights $3,301.40; interest $5,400; water $2,422; park $97.99; election expenses $99.45; printing $172.75; clerk and treasurer $601.73; new construction $437.14; electric light plant $20,154.71; total $44,168.06.

The report of the electric light commission for the fiscal year ending July 31, 1927, shows a net gain during the year of $6,441.26. The earnings from street lights during that period was $3,277.40 and from commercial lights $24,268.85, total $27,546.25. The operating expenses were, including depreciation, $21,104.99. The reports of Dr. George H. Jennings, health officer and George H. Prior, fire marshal, were accepted.

Next Monday will be voting day in the borough. The tickets in the field are unique, in that, barring the offices of clerk and treasurer and borough bailiff, the result of the election can be declared today as conclusively as after the votes are counted at the closing of the polls next Monday evening. Edmond Jodoin, dem., will be warden for two years, as his name was ratified by the republican committee, and he appears on both tickets. By virtue of nomination, Ernest L. French, rep., and Henry E. Olson, dem., will be elected burgesses. They will serve with Thomas McBroome, rep., and John McDermott, dem., whose terms have not expired. E. M. Gray, the present democratic clerk and treasurer, is on the republican ticket to run against John F. Barnett, dem. V. E. Jodoin, dem., tax collector, like his brother Edmond Jodoin, was ratified by the republicans, which certainly manifests the boroughs confidence in their efficiency. Hector Sibelland, rep., and Frank Cominski, dem., as nominee for bailiff, will need a count of votes. Herbert E. Gray and John H. Tracy will be the assessors and George H. Prior and Joseph Stafford, will be auditors.

In the story of the calendar collection in Monday's Bulletin, the title of the Mazda lamp calendar is "Contentment," and the Colonial issue, "The Peace Ball," was the gift of the Wauregan store.

Home town people listened in on President Coolidge's speech from Havana Monday morning, with no interference from local industries, some of whom expressed their willingness beforehand, to throw out their motor switches. Some talk on the street afterwards served to show the remarkable increase in the number of radio sets during the year just closed, which is getting still another boost, by the new no-battery set, now being demonstrated. Two years ago there were less than 50 radios in Griswold; today there are around 300.

Patrons of the Finn theater are pleased to learn that Manager J. F. Barnett has bought the great screen masterpiece Seventh Heaven, and will show it later.

Thought it came from Shaving

"For many months," writes a man in New York, "I was bothered with an extremely cloudy complexion. I always seemed to have pimples or blackheads. Often large blotches would appear, and I thought it came from shaving. Then someone recommended Resinol. I put it on at night, and within a few days was surprised to find that my face had completely cleared up." Resinol brings quick relief. You try it. At all druggists.

THE PRESIDENT IN CUBA

To be addressed by a president of the United States on soil where other than the American flag flies was an unusual experience for the Pan-American congress. Likewise it was a new experience for this country to hear its chief executive speaking from a foreign shore, but it was all possible because of the desire to further the policy of good will among the nations of the western hemisphere, and if the reception that he received before, while and after speaking, can be accepted as a criterion he was most successful in his object.

Reference was made to the progress which the nations have made and the help which the Pan-American union has been to them all. With full regard for its significance the president directed attention to the fact that the nations subscribe to the principle that they are "better fitted to govern themselves than any one else is to govern them."

The president was fully aware of the fact that he was speaking to delegates some of whom may represent the sentiment that the nations of the two continents do not stand on the same level, but he must have furnished food for thought when he declared "All nations here represented stand on an exact footing of equality. The smallest and the weakest speaks here with the same authority as the largest and most powerful. You come together under the present condition, and future expectation of profound peace. You are continuing to strike a new note in international gatherings by maintaining a forum in which not the selfish interests of the few, but the general welfare of all, will be considered." It was fitting that he should urge the meeting of facts squarely, the maintenance of the open mind and an effort for closer friendship.

In advocating cooperation he declared the obligation of the nations was to maintain the ideals of our western world and to so do it that conditions will prevail whereby the republics will have the freedom and responsibility of working out their own destiny in their own way.

When the president called attention to the desirability of furthering inter-American understanding he unquestionably hit the nail on the head when he referred to the responsibility resting upon the press and the fact that what occurs in the two continents is of more vital importance than what goes on across the water. Conditions are shaping themselves for the still greater improvement of new service, shipping, air transportation, mail service and highways, and that statement to the effect that the president was asking the authority of congress to send engineers to those countries asking for them, the same as we have sent instructors in army and navy development could not have gone unnoticed.

There exists the best of reasons for the reference that the president made to the development in commercial relations between the nations of this hemisphere for the trade between them has greatly expanded. Likewise was there good ground for the manner in which the differences between the nations have been adjusted. Not all have been disposed of but most of them have. But while there has been a good beginning the president cautioned the countries to see that the good work was continued.

Holding up the importance of peaceful relations and the need of standing firmly for its continuance the president fittingly said: "It is a high example we have set for the world in solving international differences without resort to force. If these conferences mean anything, they mean the bringing of all our people more definitely and more completely under the reign of law. After all it is in that direction we must look with the greatest assurance for human progress. We can make no advance in the realm of economics, we can do nothing for education, we can accomplish but little in the sphere of religion, until human affairs are brought within the orderly rule of law. The surest refuge of the oppressed and weak is in the law. It is preeminently the shield of small nations. * * In the international system which you represent the rights of each nation carry with them corresponding obligations, defined by laws. It is through the careful observance of those laws which define our rights and impose our duties that international cooperation is possible."

The calm, thought provoking, friendly and peace-seeking words of the president furnished a most auspicious opening for a conference from which much lasting good and a better understanding is expected.

NAVAL CONSTRUCTION

In connection with the plan that has been put forth by the navy department for the construction of new ships, there are those who profess that they cannot understand why there should be such a sudden demand for a big addition of this kind to our fleet when only a few months ago the plea was being made to halt action on the building of three cruisers.

It should be realized, and would be if there was a bit of reflection, that conditions have changed. When there was desire to hold up the cruiser construction the country was about to participate in an international conference from which it was hoped a limitation of auxiliary warships would at least result. Instead of going before the conference to support such a move with new warship construction just ordered the United States sought to wait until the outcome of the conference at Geneva. If favorable action was taken construction might not be required. If nothing developed it would still allow plenty of time in which to build.

It was thus apparent before the conference that our navy stood in the same relative position before the other countries that it does today. We have been pursuing a policy that was hoped would give encouragement to other nations to continue the policy of naval limitation. It did not succeed and the conference failed to accomplish what was desired and we now must return to the problem of putting our navy in condition to serve its purpose as a first class defense.

Other nations know full well that we have not been building naval vessels as fast as we were entitled to. Thus it cannot be figured that we are setting a pace for naval competition. If, on the other hand, there is a realization by other nations that such construction for us and similar construction for them in due time, might be avoided, and the large sums made available for other purposes it is entirely possible that a better understanding of the desirability of naval limitation may be gained. It is not the purpose of the navy department to force any such recognition. It isn't asking for the authority and funds to build for that purpose. The aim is adequate protection under existing conditions and it figures the building programme necessary to accomplish it.

PROPER WARNINGS

Inquiries haven't as yet been completed but steps have already been taken for the prevention of any repetition of the S-4 disaster. No one knows just what was the situation aboard the submarine, and it probably never will be known, unless some record is later found, but it has been recognized that had the coast guard vessel known that there were submarines operating at a point where the S-4 was struck that locality would have been given a wide berth.

In order that coast guard vessels may have such information in the future orders have been issued requiring that they be told of such operations, and it is not improbable that commercial vessels may likewise be provided with similar information for a like purpose.

The sinking of two submarines in the last two years have served to place emphasis upon the danger involved even in times of peace. The circumstances were not at all alike, but whether running above water and showing lights, or running submerged and showing only the periscope, the menace to all concerned would be greatly relieved if there was knowledge in advance that they might be expected in certain localities. That would mean the keeping of a closer watch for them and a better understanding of what is seen when unusual conditions as to lights or the sudden appearance of a "stick" in the water are encountered.

It is most unfortunate that it was necessary for those aboard the S-4 to lose their lives in order to have this situation brought to attention but inasmuch as the disaster occurred it is well that early steps have been taken to see that adequate warnings are furnished in the future.

ONCE IS ENOUGH

From Pennsylvania comes the information that ex-Governor Pinchot is ready to run for United States senator again provided enough of his friends urge him. It can hardly be pleasing information to the people of the Keystone state, for, able as he may be, they are not unmindful of the fact that it is through his last candidacy and that alone that the state is today being forced to get along with only one representative in the United States senate, where it is entitled to have two.

Senator-elect Vare has been denied his seat in the senate pending an investigation of his election. Senator-elect Vare was able to get the election in Pennsylvania because of the part which Mr. Pinchot played in the primary campaign. The former governor is not and was not a friend of Mr. Vare. They belong to the same party but are men of decidedly different views, so much so that the choice of either one meant that the other would be greatly displeased. Because Mr. Pinchot insisted upon running for senator against Senator Pepper he opened the way for Mr. Vare to get the nomination by taking away the voters that would have kept Senator Pepper in office. He was told of the inevitable outcome but he insisted on going through with it. He was displeased, but his attitude must have been so displeasing to the republicans of Pennsylvania that they will not hesitate to tell him far in advance that he has no chance and it would please them most if he would keep out of the primary. He has caused enough trouble without standing ready to cause more. Mr. Pinchot may be willing but we doubt very much if Pennsylvania is.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16—There have been specific New England matters aplenty this week in Washington and congressional official circles.

One of the most prominent, may seem merely of local value until the details are known, then it swells into New England, and even national importance. That is the matter of preserving as a historical spot, the site where the present post office building in Hartford, Conn., now stands.

Hartford is to have a new public building, under appropriations already sanctioned, but unless further action is taken it would shut out, as does the one now in use, the splendid old "statehouse," which was one of the first public buildings erected in colonial days. The plan, as submitted by Connecticut men, is to have the present post office razed, and the lot on which it stands turned into a public park, thus affording a suitable setting for the historic building used and constructed for a state house, in 1793. This can be done if added appropriations provide for a new site, and the land, now owned by the United States, through gift of the city of Hartford, is, by legislative act, reconveyed to Hartford for a public park.

The building, begun in 1792 was completed in 1796 and in it Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence was inaugurated governor of Connecticut. From that time, distinguished visitors and great events took place or were commemorated in this building, but its beauty and splendid park setting has been destroyed by the erection of the present government public building which has been in use since 1873, or thereabout.

Connecticut citizens and patriotic societies, like the Colonial Dames and D. A. R.'s have contributed so liberally to the restoration and up keep of the old state house, that all that is now needed to complete restoration, is the removal of the present post office building which is likely to come about through the efforts of Hartford citizens, as they appeal to the U. S. government to give back the site to Hartford for a public park, and erect the proposed new public building on another site.

The hearing before the treasury and post office officials here this week was attended by a delegation from Hartford, which included prominent members of the chamber of commerce and others interested, including Connecticut senators and representatives. Strong arguments were put forth, and congress will be asked to restore the original site to the city for public park purposes, and thus leave the city free to make the restoration of this historical building complete.

It has been a busy week for the Connecticut delegation, both in senate and house. The diversion of water from Connecticut tributaries took the attention of members, senators, and visiting attorneys from that state. Hearings on the recent New England flood also drew much attention, even though Connecticut does not intend to ask for flood relief. The question of a possible new line of steamships making the crossing to Europe in four days, with New London prominently mentioned as the American port, has been told of in these columns but nearly every day something new cropped up regarding it, or some Connecticut waterway measure.

Senator Bingham has been especially active this week in the matter of making the oath as governor of the Philippines easier for General Stimson than General Wood found it. Senator Bingham believes the United States should provide some means, through measures to be introduced this session, of lightening the actual duties of inspection, that now fall on the shoulders of the governor of the islands. This can be done only through providing him with authority to secure such needed assistance, an authority now lacking, and that made a thorny and difficult path for General Wood to travel. Senator Bingham visited the islands last summer, and said today that he could so visualize the conditions there that he was very hopeful the government would be authorized to provide certain assistance that he believes it wise and necessary. Senator Bingham is on the committee on insular affairs and is working in the committee on a measure which he believes will accomplish the desired end.

Republican Floor Leader John Q. Tilson of Connecticut has recently made an eloquent plea for forest conservation in the United States and forcefully shown what he found in recent travels on Europe, China, Korea and Japan to be the results of a conservation or non-conservation policies of those countries.

Col. Tilson draws a vivid picture of existing conditions abroad, and urges conservation of the forests of the United States, as a safe guard to water power, navigation, irrigation, other national and state necessities.

Colonel Tilson was born in the Tennessee mountains, and recalls distinctly how his father cleared the slopes of timber in order to raise food for his family. "As I look back on the cutting down of the fine forests of pine and hardwood, it seems almost a criminal waste from the modern viewpoint, but I also realize that the lands were denuded to support life, although, under modern methods probably careful tillage of half the acreage on my father's lands would have served the purpose. That farm, covered now with the primeval forest would be worth a small fortune."

After describing the injury to land by the indiscriminate felling of lumber, Col. Tilson gave some exceedingly interesting information regarding existing conditions in foreign countries, under their method, or lack of method in forest conservation.

"No one can visit China," said the colonel, "without having the tragic lesson of forest destruction brought home to him." He states that the mouths of rivers are choked with sand bars, so vessels of any considerable size cannot reach the docks of many important ports. In Korea the same conditions exist. Japan has done much better and is to be congratulated on the policy it has inaugurated along the line of conservation. Col. Tilson says he is not unaware of the many difficulties that confront conservation, including tax problems, national or state ownership and restrictions, and the question of reforestation. But he believes all this can be overcome and urges that the forest lands in the United States be preserved and protected in such a way that this country will never find itself in the unhappy lumber condition that confronts China.

DO YOU KNOW

Daniel D. Tompkins and Thomas R. Marshall each served eight full years as Vice-President of the United States. John Adams, although serving two terms as Vice-President, was not sworn in until April 30, 1789, and he therefore lacked 48 days of eight years.

MIXED SINGLES

Dale Gordon bestowed a vicious kick upon one of the new wicker chairs adorning the veranda of the Brookside Country club. Of all the triple-cursed luck to be forced to sit on the veranda at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon when he should have been on one of the courts getting his final practice for the county tennis tournament, which was scheduled for 10 o'clock Thursday morning! Of course, Fred had been unavoidably detained at the office, but Fred was supposed to be out there with him right now, shooting drive after drive to Dale's backhand in a last-minute effort to eradicate a weakness. That confounded backhand of his had already cost him one tournament this year, and it hadn't improved any since that inglorious occasion.

Well, the best he could do was to drive a few on the practice court. With a sigh he picked up his rackets and trotted down the steps. A few minutes later he was driving against the high board wall, carefully getting into position and taking every shot on his backhand.

"Would you pardon me if I made a suggestion?"

Dale stopped a stroke half-made, caught the ball that came bounding to him and turned. A girl was looking at him with a half-smile on her firm, tanned face.

If there was one thing Dale held in contempt, it was a girl who tried to play tennis! He forced a feeble grin and managed—

"A suggestion? Go ahead."

"I've been watching you practice," observed the girl, "and while I'm no expert, it seems to me your backhand is weak." Dale glared at her. Weak! Didn't he know it?

"And it seems to me," the girl was continuing, "that your trouble is in your footwork. You stroke all right, but you are off balance when you hit." Dale gulped.

"Thanks!" he growled, turning his back deliberately upon her and sending a wicked drive toward the wall. The ball returned on his backhand, he brought his racket up over his left shoulder and, with all the force of his anger, drove it savagely from him.

"Fine!" cried the girl. "See—you shifted your weight as you stroked so that you got your whole body into it. That's the stuff!" Dale saw red.

"Would you mind," he began.

"I should say not!" the girl broke in. "I was just going to suggest it myself. If you are playing in the tournament tomorrow I know you need practice, and while I can't be of much help, I can at least play the ball where you want it. There's a vacant court and we can go right on."

Dale was speechless. She had already started across the lawn toward the courts. Suddenly he felt a bit ashamed. She was a pest, but she meant well, and was trying to help him. And—she was undeniably pretty. He might as well follow her and then break away in a few minutes on the plea of some engagement.

But Dale did not break away. Two hours later he was still hovering about the base line, waiting for the sizzling shots from the other side of the net.

"Watch the high bound!" she would call. "Play back—take it at the top—that's it—beauty! All right, try a low one now. Watch how you shift this time and don't cramp your arm!"

Dale's resentment had passed long since and now he was completely absorbed in this strange lesson. That girl certainly knew her tennis! And his backhand was stronger right now than it had ever been. She had diagnosed his trouble exactly.

Their practice completed, Dale vaulted over the net and ran up to her.

"Say," he cried warmly, "you've got the best brand of tennis I've seen on these courts in many a day. And I certainly thank you for the practice. If it's not being impudent, where do they teach girls to play like that?"

The girl smiled. "Perhaps you'll know when I tell you that my name is Viola Bowen."

Dale whistled. The state champion in women's singles! Well, no wonder. The girl laughed. "I came up to play an exhibition match on the last day of the tournament—that will probably be Monday. I also have to find a partner to play a mixed doubles match."

Dale glanced away self-consciously.

"They told me," said the girl mischievously, "that Dale Gordon was the cream of the local talent, but since he hasn't introduced himself to me I guess I'll have to find somebody else."

Dale took an exultant swing with his racket. "It's a bargain," he cried, "provided that you let me serve doubles for dinner tonight."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Every now and then a so-called soldier-of-fortune springs up to amaze the world with his romantic adventures and achievements. One of these is General Frank Sutton, an Englishman whose exploits in China have rivaled the most thrilling of tales told in novel or film. A one-time officer in the Royal Engineers, Sutton pulled up stakes in his home land and departed for the far east in search of adventure and fortune. He found both. For six years he kept the Chinese civil war going by organizing the armies of Chang Tso-Lin, the northern war-lord. "One-armed Sutton," as he was known to his friends, made $2,500,000 in five years by supplying the northern forces with munitions. Chang gave him $50,000 as a parting present. Lady Luck continued with him. He went to Shanghai, saw an announcement of a sweepstake, bought a ticket, and won $125,000. Now the romantic adventurer has returned to England with his bulging purse.

YOUR HEALTH

Children Not Simply Small Adults.

By Samuel Walter Kelley, M. D., Cleveland, Member Gorgas Memorial.

"You cannot clothe a boy becomingly in a suit of his father's merely by shortening the sleeves and the trousers legs."

These are the words of the late Dr. Alfred C. Cotton, by which he illustrated that a doctor cannot treat a child properly merely by cutting down adult doses.

For Dr. Cotton knew that there are numerous peculiarities not only in the child's anatomy and physiology, but equally great differences in his reactions to disease, to injury, and to medicines, and that these conditions and reactions, so different from those of the adult, must be recognized and treated accordingly.

The effects of heredity and of prenatal care first come to light in the infant. It may have disease before it is born; and, normal or abnormal, it must at once establish its own breathing, its own separate circulation and nutrition, and regulate its own body-temperature. Then it must meet the attacks of numerous varieties of harmful germs and parasites. Measles, whooping cough, scarlet fever, diphtheria, pneumonia, meningitis, and infantile paralysis are so familiar as hardly to need mentioning, but they are serious enemies. Besides, there are smallpox, tuberculosis, and a host of others. Diseases and disorders of nutrition are a numerous class.

Among the surgical conditions are congenital dislocations of joints, most often of the hip, harelip and cleft palate, encephalocele and meningocele, in which the brain or its membranes project through a gap in the skull, a similar condition of the spinal cord known as spinabifica, analagous gaps in the abdomen or chest, club-foot, certain forms of ruptures, malformations of the rectum and of the genital organs, and a long list more, besides the accidents incident to birth itself.

Dislocations, fractures, and separations of the joint-ends in children present peculiarities all their own. Rickety deformities, hip-joint disease and certain other bone and joint diseases, and intussusception—telescoping of intestines—practically belong to the surgery of infancy and childhood.

There has been done a vast amount of study upon the peculiarities of the surgical and medical conditions of early life, and there are surgeons and physicians who have spent long years in becoming learned and expert in these special lines. There is now no need to have a baby or a child treated as if he were merely a small adult. That will not succeed any better than putting his father's clothes on the boy will make a bit, even if you cut shorter the sleeves and trousers legs.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Let the Assassins Begin

Mr. Editor: In the first part of your excellent article in today's Bulletin, the article entitled "Saving Human Life," you repeat the idea of the celebrated French writer Alphonse Karr. "I too," said he, "am in favor of the abolition of capital punishment, but I want the assassins to begin."

You show that the simple way for people to keep from being executed in the electric chair is not to commit the crimes that lead to it. It is refreshing to hear the statement of a few common-sense truths of this kind, for it is getting to be by no means common. The super-sentimentalists lavish their sympathy and attentions upon the criminal and are accustomed to quite ignore the heart-breaking agonies surrounding the fate of the victim. They allege that society is trying to revenge itself on the criminal, and hold that he must be kept where he can be wrought upon and improved and finally turned loose, with an imminent chance of his repeating the same line of conduct. Society does not try nor mean to revenge itself. The honest, God-fearing part of the community simply wants to be protected from the desperate criminal as it would from some other baleful danger. It must do what it can to ensure its own safety. If incidentally something can be done for the improvement of the mental and moral state of the criminal, so much the better, that is all to the good, but it is only incidental; it is not and never can be the main object of our criminal legislation which is designed to safeguard the lives and property of the community. We are all in favor of the abolition of capital punishment if only the assassins will begin it.

Fair Play

Mr. Editor: Marinda C. Robinson who writes usually a good letter on morals and on the right side, comes out recently with a defense in behalf of the English Rev. Miss Boyden, who at present is in this country and is a user of tobacco in the form of smoking.

The offence to Mrs. Robinson is that the distinguished female has been excluded from some pulpits here because of her habit and she claims for her what she calls equal rights with preachers of the male sex.

If Mrs. Robinson is to be understood as giving the negative to all reverend smokers and that all should be excluded from the pulpit, we go in with her. It is hard for us to see what affinity exists between preaching and tobacco smoking any way, or indeed, what entitles them to combination, especially in the person of a distinguished English lady preacher, who is making herself our guest and seeking approbation.

There is an authorized dictate that runs: "Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord" that might be well for male and female preachers to commit to memory and practice. A distinguished English dramatist of the seventeenth century who puts the female refinement where it properly belongs in the following lines:

"Oh woman! Lovely woman!
"Nature hath made thee to temper man;
"We had been brutes without you!
"Angels are painted to look like you!
"There is in you all that we believe of Heaven!
"Amazing brightness, purity and truth
"Eternal joy and everlasting love!"

This sentiment expresses more than elsewhere the respect in which woman is held in this country, and we trust it will continue.

OBITUARY
Mrs. James E. Tracy

Mrs. James E. (Fannie S. Woodcock) Tracy, who was born in South Williamstown in 1846, died at the age of eighty-one, Dec. 29, at Kodaikanal, Madura, India, after fifty years of service as a missionary under the American Board of Foreign Missions. Mrs. Tracy attended Greylock institute, South Williamstown and Maplewood seminary, Pittsfield. In 1877 she met and married James E. Tracy who was a Williams college man, class of 1874. That same year the Tracys left for foreign work in India and continued in active service until the death of Mr. Tracy in 1923. Mrs. Tracy was placed on the roll of honor of the American Board in 1927.

Mr. Tracy was born in Pasumalai, India, the son of Rev. William Tracy, one of the early missionaries of the American Board and the founder of the Union Theological seminary at Pasumalai. Like his father, a man of powerful personality, Mr. Tracy did far-reaching evangelistic work and was in closest contact with the people of Tamil because of the fact that he could speak the language like a native. Tamil is considered one of the most difficult of the many Indian dialects because of its literary nature, its extensive vocabulary and its peculiar idioms.

Mr. Tracy, when a schoolboy, lived with Norwich relatives, graduating from the Broadway grammar school and the Free Academy.

Mrs. Tracy, although a quiet and home-loving type of woman, did an extensive work among Indian women and girls, forming King's Daughters societies and sewing circles and aiding them in the churches. She was possessed of a very real love for the Indian people and even when she became confined more or less to her home in Kodaikanal, was the center of a very real influence not only among her native neighbors but among the other missionaries.

Mrs. Tracy had endeared herself to all the young workers who have gone to India and spent their first year in language study at Kodaikanal. Most of these lived with her in her little home and received from her priceless help in the way of encouragement and a homey atmosphere. Mrs. Tracy was active up to the very last and never wholly gave over the direction of her home. She is survived by one son, Royal Dana Tracy of New York city.

The other child, Miss Christine Tracy, lies buried on a lonely Tennessee mountain amidst the highland people with whom she had spent her life as a home-missionary. Both Dr. and Mrs. Tracy were members of the United Congregational church.

William H. McChesney.

William Hayes McChesnew, who died Saturday in Preston, was a son of Thomas and Ann Dunn Hayes, of Worcester. When very young he came to Norwich to visit his aunt, Mrs. Isabel McChesney, wife of Charles McChesney, then owner of the present city barn, well known horseman and for sereval terms a county commissioner in Norwich. The McChesney home was a sightly residence on School street and there the young nephew remained, being brought up as a son by Mr. and Mrs. McCresney, who had no children.

In early manhood William McChesney married Miss Delia St. George, of Putnam, a musician and church organist in Norwich. Her death occurred about 15 years ago and with the death of Mr. and Mrs. McChesney their home was broken up, following which William McChesney went west for a time.

He leaves a daughter, Mrs. Beatrice Buteau, of Providence and a son, Charles, in Bridgeport. A sister, Miss Isabel Hayes resided in Worcester and his only surviving brother, Joseph Hayes made his home in Boston.

Mr. McChesney was well known about Norwich, and attended the local schols and was employed here for a time. He was a member of the Elks and that organization in Norwich is taking charge of his funeral.

JAMES BURKE, HACKDRIVER HERE FOR 52 YEARS, DIED MONDAY AFTERNOON

James Burke, veteran hack driver of this city, who retired in 1919 from 52 active years in that occupation, died at 5:30 Monday afternon at his home, No. 95 Roath street, following an illness of some time due to his advanced age.

Mr. Burke was born in this city, the son of the late Michael and Mary Cassidy Burke, and spent his entire life here. Before the advent of the automobile, he was a familiar figure in the city for many years with his hack with which he served the public early and late. Even after the livery service with horses began to be replaced by automobile service, Mr. Burke continued to drive his hack, having a stand on Union square until he eventually gave up active life, the last of th old-time hackmen.

Mr. Burke's wife died several years ago, but he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. William T. Barry, of 95 Roath street, Mrs. J. T. McNamara, of Portland, Me., two sons, James T. and Joseph D. Burke, both of this city; one brother, Joseph Burke, and two sistrs, Miss Margart Burke and Mrs. Mary Connor, all of this city. He also leaves several grandchildren.

He was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church.

"EARLY BIRD" BREAKFAST WILL OPEN CAMPAIGN

The opening of the active drive for the Merchants bureau this (Tuesday) morning will find the teams assembled at the Wauregan hotel for an "Early Bird" breakfast. The teams are to be marshalled by Herbert B. Cary at 8:15 in the private dining room where an interesting program will be presented including a stirring address by Ernest O. Rodier and last minute instructions by Chairman Cary. The teams assemble again for a report luncheon at the Wauregan at 12:15 when it is anticipated they will show the campaign has already progressed far on its way toward its goal.

This being the season when the great auto sales campaigns of the country get under way, the Norwich merchants are going to stage their own sales contest along similar lines. Chairman Cary has therefore become sales manager with the following agencies under his command: Fords, Agent Abner Schwartz; Hudsons, Agent Ernest L. Latimer; Packards, Agent John P. Lyston; Cadillacs, Agent Earl Taggart; Dodges, Agent A. Curland; Chevrolets, Agent J. B. Caron; Whippets, Agent C. I. Smith; Studebakers, Agent C. E. Smith; Chryslers, Agent Burton Young; Buicks, Agent J. F. Fleming. A quota of $120 for each of the three days has been set against each agency, but it is expected that if the saturation point can be as elusive as it has been in the full of actual auto sales the final report will show the agents have pushed far over the top.

The campaign will continue for three days. The schedule of the meetings for the teams has been laid out to concentrate all the work in the mornings, with assemblies of the teams at an early hour when prospect cards will be given out, and report lunchons at 12:15 to close the work. On Thursday the luncheon will give way to an evening dinner, however, to close the campaign. Shortly after the campaign it is expected that the annual election of the bureau will be held, with all the new members thereby having an opportunity to participate in the selection of the new officers.

The following is the schedule of meetings for the teams:

Tuesday, Jan. 17, 8:15 a. m.—"Early Bird" breakfast, Wauregan hotel; 12:15 p. m.—Report luncheon, Wauregan hotel.

Wednesday, Jan. 48, 9:30 a. m.—Team assembly, chamber of commerce; 12:15 p. m.—Report luncheon, Wauregan hotel.

Thursday, Jan. 19, 9:30 a. m.—Team assembly, chamber of commerce; 6:15 p. m.—Report dinner, Wauregan hotel.

LESTER & WASLEY CO. MAKES QUICK FOREIGN SHIPMENT

Stockholders of the Lester & Wasley company held their annual meeting at the company's office Monday morning, at which time the reports were approved and Harry W. Cardwell was reelected a director. Charles I. Smith was also re-elected as auditor.

At the subsequent meeting of directors the officers were reelected as follows: President, William A. Cruickshank; vice president, Harvey M. Briggs; secretary, treasurer and general manager, Percival W. Chapman.

This company, whose envelope making, paper drinking cup and deckling machines carry the name of Norwich to all parts of the country and world, has recently received a letter of appreciation from T. Hele, factory manager of the Apsley mill of John Dickinson & Company, Ltd., Hemel Hempstead, Herts, England, for the efforts made in shipping one of the Leader deckling machines to that country.

This order for John Dickinson, Ltd., one of the largest manufacturing stationers in England, was received by the the local firm December 10 by cable. The machine was immediately shipped and was received in the Dickinson plant December 28, just 13 days from receipt of order.

Considering that this shipment had to be transferred at New York from the Thames River line steamer, landed at Southampton, Eng., passed through customs, railed to London and then trucked to Apsley mills, some 15 miles from London, it is believed that this record will stand unbeaten for some time by any American firm.

The most gratifying thing about the transaction to the local concern is that a cable order for a second machine was immediately sent after the first one was set up.

MAKES PREDICTION OF ANOTHER WORLD WAR

Mrs. George H. Strouse spoke at the Quakertown hall Sunday, on the imminence of another world war and the necessity of the life being grounded on Jesus Christ to withstand the moral flood and winds that will beat on everyone to shake his faith in God. She drew a distinction between those who called themselves Christians, and those who have really built their life on the foundation of Christ. The nominal Christian will be shaken from the faith by the unprecedented time of trouble but the true Christian will never be shaken from his trust in God, which trust will procure an entrance into the heavenly home. She told the audience the secret of being built on Christ was to surrender daily one's will to God's will, and he will find Jesus Christ to be the rock of his salvation. Her text was from St. Matthew's gospel, seventh chapter, 24th to 27th verses.

STATE PLUMBERS HONOR JOHN TROLAND'S BIRTHDAY

It must have been an open secret among the master plumbers of Conneciteut that John Troland's 85th birthday was to occur January 15th, evidenced by the number of letters and telegrams sent to him from members all over the state. One in Hartford especially perferring, as he wrote, to say it with Cake—contributed an elaborate and beautifully decorated birthday cake. Another in Central Village turned to the muses for expression and gave a poem of twelve stanzas in metrical order all highly flattering to the receiver.

A formal executive letter from Albert B. Dibble, of New Haven, president of the Master Plumbers of Connecticut, also a member of the board of directors of the National association, gives the keynote of the other twenty-five or more received by Mr. Troland, all of which must be highly gratifying to him who has been a fellow laborer with these men in many official capacities.

Mr. Dibble's letter reads:

New Haven, Jan. 13th, 1928.

My dear Mr. Troland:

It is with a great deal of pleasure that I am writing to you and offering the congratulations and best wishes of The Master Plumbers of Connecticut and the National Association of Master Plumbers, on your eighty-fifth birthday.

We in Connecticut feel honored that we have had you for so many years and have enjoyed your wise counsel and good fellowship.

I want to extend my personal congratulations to you, and hope and pray that you will continue in good health for a great many years to come.

With kindest personal regards, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT B. DIBBLE.
Pres. Master Plumbers' Ass'n of Conn. Member board of directors The National Ass'n of Master Plumbers.

Mr. Troland had thought this pleasing and unexpected attention from the head of the state organization was all —and quite flattering enough; but to his surprise Saturday afternoon a box of beautiful roses and other choice flowers arrived by parcel post from the Hartford Master Plumbers. On the accompanying decorative card was the sentiment: "Very best wishes for a happy, prosperous year. Association of Master Plumbers of the City of Hartford, Inc." The card bore a stanza of cordial felicitation.

But there was more to follow.

Sunday morning Mr. Troland was given another unexpected evidence of the good will of the craft in the shape of a box of beautiful carnations from the New Haven Master Plumbers' Association. He received the hearty good wishes of local friends who chanced to remember the significance of the date to him; but he was most touched by the evidences of comradeship and friendliness on the part of these important bodies in the state organization, for the reason that the Connecticut plumbers made him an honorary member a number of years ago and his name appears on the association letter-heads, in the list of state officers.

DISCHARGED IN COURT ON LIQUOR LAW ACCUSATION

Failure by the state to prove intent to sell liquor, resulted in the discharge of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deschens Monday morning in the city court. The man and woman were charged with violation of the liquor law. On December 15th the local police found a quantity of liquor in the rooming house at No. 30 Shetucket street, conducted by Mr. and Mrs. Deschens. Deschens could not be located at that time. Saturday night he was arrested by the local police and with his wife was presented in the city court Monday morning.

On December 15th Willimantic officers came to this city to search the rooming house for clothing which it was thought was stored there. Sergt. Myron O. Morgan and Officer Patrick Murphy were detailed to assist the Willimantic officers in the search.

Sergt. Morgan remained outside the building. He saw a woman come out of the house with two cans and then Mrs. Deschens appeared with a glass jug containing liquor which she was about to throw away but Sergt. Morgan took charge of the jug. Another can containing liquor was found in the house.

RAILROAD OFFICIAL FINDS TRAIN CREW BLAMELESS

Investigation by Supt. E. J. Guthrie of the accident at Stafford on Saturday in which Emil King and Frank Scott were killed when the former drove his automobile directly in the path of a Central Vermont railroad train, discloses that Engineer C. E. Perry and Conductor William Geer, in charge of the train, were entirely blameless. It was found that both the locomotive and crossing bells were ringing at the time that King, at the wheel of the Ford touring car, drove upon the crossing in the path of the train and that an accident was unavoidable.

Blame for the crash, according to evidence disclosed, was chargeable to King, who was instantly killed. Scott, his father-in-law, died 10 minutes later after being removed to a Stafford hospital. The coroner's investigation into responsibility for the crash is set for Wednesday at Stafford.

Record Audience at Y. M. C. A.

The largest audience of the season attended the Sunday afternoon service at the Y. M. C. A. The meeting was opened with the singing of hymns and prayer. Hugh Kinder furnished the music for the service. The last half of the impressive moving picture "The Fool" was shown and its splendid lesson of consecration to Christ was vividly portrayed on the screen.

Rev. H. H. Conklin gave an appropriate brief address between the reels and his words were listened to with real interest. In the absence of th general secretary who was attending the State Y. M. C. A. convention at Hartford, E. H. Davis had charge of the service. Wm. C. McKean and P. Leslie Conklin assisted in the service by ushering. The audience was evidently deeply impressed by the service.

SUFFERS BROKEN ANKLE IN AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

While cleaning the windshield of his sedan near the city line in the Thamesville section of the city, about 8:30 o'clock Monday evening, Joseph Ladyka, No. 48 Second street, was knocked to the highway by an automobile driven by John G. Andrews of No. 191 Laurel Hill avenue. Mr. Andrews, driving a Packard sedan, was blinded by the lights of an approaching machine and did not see Mr. Ladyka's machine until it suddenly loomed in front of him. Rain, freezing on the windshield, was also responsible for the accident. Mr. Ladyka was attended by Dr. John W. Callahan and taken to the W. W. Backus hospital. His left ankle was fractured when he was knocked to the highway. An X-ray picture is to be taken of the fractured ankle at the hospital. Both machines were slightly damaged. The accident was purely accidental and due largely to the poor driving conditions and stormy night.

ACADEMY BASEBALL TEAM HAS SCHEDULE OF TWENTY-TWO GAMES

Twenty-two games comprise what is without doubt the hardest schedule that an Academy team has ever faced in the 1928 baseball schedule announced Monday noon by Coach Earle E. Brigham of the state champions. One game is pending but the remainder of the schedule is complete, bringing sixteen home games and six on foreign diamonds, all in eastern Connecticut.

Torrington is the only team missing from the 1927 slate while Crosby of Waterbury returns after a year's interim, and Bulkeley of Hartford appears on the diamond slate for the first time.

The season opens a week later than usual, Saturday, April 14, with the Alumni at the campus and after a few preliminary tilts, finally swings into May with three games weekly. The final game is with New Haven Hillhouse at the campus Saturday, June 9.

The games with Bulkeley of New London come Saturday, May 26, at New London, and Saturday, June 2 at Norwich. This is a week later than usual. It was also given out that these games will be played off in case of postponement.

Warren Harding of Bridgeport again comes here Memorial Day, according to the schedule.

With such a schedule, the enlarged seating capacity and the presence of such dependables as Goldblatt, Jarvis, Greene, Hamil, Gibbs, Tirrell, Arico, LaCroix, Mish and others as candidates this season now less than three months away looks to be the greatest ever for Academy athletics. The schedule:

Saturday, April 14, Alumni at home.
Wednesday, April 18, All-Stars at home.
Saturday, April 21, Plainfield at home.
Wednesday, April 25, Stonington at home.

PAULINO STOPS KEELEY IN SECOND ROUND

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Paulino Uzcudun, the basque woodchopper and one of the contenders in the heavyweight division, knocked out Ed Keeley of Boston in the second round of a ten round feature bout at the New Broadway arena in Brooklyn tonight. The referee stopped the bout.

The bout was halted after two minutes and 15 seconds in the second round by the referee to save Keeley from a terrific body punishment.

Paulino landed a solid right to the chin at the opening of the second stanza which knocked Keeley down but the Boston fighter was up instantly without taking a count.

The basque followed up with a savage assortment of rights and lefts to the head but Keeley countered with hard rights to the body. Keeley forced Paulino to retreat before a bruising body attack but the Spaniard came back with a rush and had Keeley reeling and groggy from hard body punches and right hand smashes to the jaw when the bout terminated.

In the first round, Paulino and Keeley traded punches freely, the Spaniard ripping hard rights to the Hub boxer's jaw and in turn received hard blows to the body.

In another six-rounder, Harry Wallach, New York welterweight, won on a foul from Jerry Kline, also of this city, in the fourth round.

LAWSON WILL BE LINE COACH AT BROWN

PROVIDENCE, R. I. Jan. 16.—(AP)—Douglas Lawson, former Harvard, Williams and Columbia coach, and Harvard varsity tackle in 1915, was named line coach at Brown today, according to announcement of the Brown Athletic council through its chairman, Norman S. Taber. Edgar J. Staff, head freshman coach for the past two years, was re-appointed yearling mentor.

Lawson was a player on Captain Percy Wendell's team at Harvard in 1912, became second team coach at Harvard in 1913, played and coached on an amateur team in Oregon in 1914, and 1915, entered the army during the World war and became a coach and player on the second division grid team in 1919 and 1920.

He became head coach at Williams college in 1921, remained there through 1922, then went to Columbia with Percy Haughton in 1923, and remained with his former tutor until 1924 when he returned to Williams to take up the line coaching assignment. He became head coach at Williams in 1926 and continued as the head of the Purple grid institution until the end of this season, when he resigned.

Lawson will work under McLaughry as assistant in charge of the line. By the strange turn of fate, former head coach rivals at Williams and Amherst will work to a common aim—that of turning out a winning Bruin team. McLaughry was head coach at Amherst prior to his assignment at Brown.

FRANCHISE SHAKE-UP IN INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)— A three-cornered franchise shift in the International league, involving Rochester, Syracuse and Jersey City, was approved today at a special meeting of club owners.

The effect of the change will be to drop Syracuse from membership and put Jersey back into the fold for the 1928 season but it involves a complicated series of business maneuvers.

St. Louis National league interests, which controlled the Syracuse club, will acquire the Rochester franchise in the shake-up. In turn they will dispose of the Syracuse franchise to Frank Donnelly and his associates of Jersey City. As it works out, the new Rochester club, owned by the Cardinals, will be composed of the Rochester franchise and Syracuse players. The Jersey City club will have the Rochester players and Syracuse franchise.

All the ramifications of this deal have not yet been completed but the club owners approved the general out shortly. It is the culmination of outshortly. It is the culmination of financial difficulties encountered by former Rochester woners, including Walter Hagen, the golf star, who reinquished briefly held interests and, it is understood, also lost a preliminary investment of about $25,000.

Since the close of the 1927 season the international circuit has dealt with more franchise and club ownership changes than in many years, earlier in the winter, the league ratified the transfer of the old Jersey City club franchise to Montreal. The Newark club also changed hands, passing into the control of Paul Block, publisher, who signed Walter Johnson as manager.

As now lined up for the coming campaign, the league will have two Canadian entries, Toronto and Montreal, with the other club in Jersey City, Newark, Baltimore, Reading, Rochester and Buffalo.

LEADING TRACK STARS IN MILLROSE MEET SAT.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Leading track stars of the country will compete in the fourteenth annual games of Brooklyn college at the Thirteenth Regiment armory next Saturday night with Lloyd Hahn of the Boston A. A., America's premier middle distance runner, topping the entry list.

Running in a special half mile race in the Fordham games last night, Hahn won in the remarkable time of 1:56 2-5 which was within two seconds of the record set about a quarter of a century ago by Eli B. Parsons.

Hahn is entered in the feature event, the Brooklyn College Thousand which has been limited to half a dozen starters. The world's mark for the thousand is held jointly by Joie Ray and Harold Cutbill.

With Hahn in this contest will be Phil Edwards of New York university, national half mile champion, and Leo Larrivee of the Chicago A. A., winner of the thousand in the last Brooklyn college meet.

Roland Locke, Nebraska university, is expected to make his debut in the east in the Olympic sprint series of three races at 100 meters, 75 yards and 100 yards. Locke holds the world's record for the 220-yard sprint. Karl Wildermuth of Georgetown has entered in the Olympic sprint series and will find plenty of competition if Locke decides to start.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Georgie Day, New Haven, fought to a draw with Joe Currie, New Haven, in the feature bout of a professional card before 6,000 fans in the Arena here tonight.

Yankee Jack Smith, Eastern league baseball catcher, won the judges' decision over Petri Corri, Brooklyn heavyweight, who substituted for Emmanuel Joudis, of New York, Greek champion, in six rounds.

Bobb Mays, New London, won the decision over Pete Petrolle, Fargo, N. D., 135, in eight rounds.

Elmer Ciconne, Schenectady, and Pete Aguinaldo, Manila, P. I., fought to a draw in a six round encounter.

Mike Esposito, of Stamford, received the decision over Joe Currie, of New York, in six rounds. Currie substituted for Art De Champlain, of Wallingford, account of sickness.

Aggies-Wesleyan Game Off.

STORRSC, Jan. 16.—(AP)—President Charles L. Beach, of the Connecticut Agricultural college, acting on the advice of the college physician, tonight ordered the Aggies basketball game with Wesleyan postponed until the smallpox epidemic in Middletown is past. The game was scheduled for Middletown, Tuesday night.

DELANEY KAYOES SULLY IN 20 SECONDS

Montgomery crashed to the canvas in Delaney's corner, rolled over twice, and was counted out with his body half through the ropes.

Rushing from his corner, the former light heavyweight champion, who relinquished his crown to mingle with the weightier battlers, danced about Montgomery for ten seconds. Feigning an opening for his right, Delaney smashed his first fist to Sully's jaw and the bout was over.

Montgomery failed to land a single punch, although he threw both hands at Delaney's head once in an effort to locate his elusive target. The huge Chicago batter's head banged the floor as he went down. Handlers carried Montgomery bodily to the corner and a physician worked five minutes before Sully revived.

The smashing knockout, one of the fastest ever scored by a heavyweight, added immediate impetus to the Bridgeport warrior's new surge toward title contendership. Saturday Tex Rickard named him one of five to scramble in a final elimination tournament for the right to a match with Gene Tunney next September.

PINGREE'S WORK FEATURES HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Les Pingree's work featured last week's play among the four major high schools of eastern Connecticut. The Academy center jumped from sixth to fourth place in the scoring by tossing in 26 points during the week. He now has 43 points and stands a good chance of overhauling a few more before many weeks.

Bill Nield of Chapman Tech still is the leader among the scorers having 92 points on 39 field goals and 14 fouls. However, he lost ground during the week but still has a 38 point advantage over Scotty McKelvie, in second place, who has tossed in 24 field goals and 6 fouls for 54 points. Saba, of Windham, who has been doing some fine work for the Thread City quintet is a close third with 49 points on 23 field goals and 3 fouls while Les Pingree has 19 field goals and 4 fouls. Bobby Cragan, Stonington captain, spurted during the week and landed fifth place with a total of 27 points on 9 field goals and 9 fouls.

There are three others in the twenties, LeBlanc of Chapman Tech with 23 points and Heller and Lamson of Windham with 20 points each.

Windham has the lead among the teams, winning 3 and losing 1 game. Chapman has high scoring honors with 202 points while the Academy has the best defensive record, 82 points.

During the past week Tech provided the features for teams by winning its two starts. Windham also batted 1000, winning over Bulkeley of Hartford. Tech won from LaSalle academy of Providence and N. F. A. The Academy did not do so well, losing to Chapman and being forced into an overtime before winning from Tourtellotte. Stonington is in a real slump for she lost both starts, to Plainfield and South Kingstown Highs although both were by three-point margins.

CRESCENTS CLASH WITH LAWRENCE FIVE TONIGHT

Taftville	Lawrence
Normandin, lf	lf, Conway
Brown, rf	rf, Carroll
Harris, c	c, Ryan
Murphy, lg	lg, Mullaly
Eccleston, rg	rg, Buckley

Tonight at Parish hall the Taftville Crescents tackle the Lawrence Felting Co. team of Millville, Mass., a reputedly strong quintet that has been doing fine work around central Massachusetts. It promises to be a fast game as the Crescents themselves have been doing some good work of late.

The visitors come with bright advance notices. Included in their lineup are several former high school and prep school stars who are reported to have rounded into a fast team. They have Captain Tom Carroll and Charlie Conway at the forwards and these boys are slated to give Taftville's guards a busy evening. At center will be Joe Ryan while to hold the Taftville forwards they have Joe Mullaly and Vin Buckley at the guards. This team has played together for a considerable spell and none other than Gabby Hartnett recommended it as one capable of forcing the Crescents to the utmost.

Taftville will rely on its regular lineup that has done so well of late after losing two heart-breakers early in the season. Mondi Normandin and the youthful Aubrey Brown will run at forwards and this pair is rapidly resolving itself into a fine combination in all respects. Roland Harris, who of late has shown remarkable form will jump center and his work, is again tonight expected to be a big help to the locals. At the guards will be Jim Murphy, the former local boy, now of New London, and Capt. Eccleston. Murphy showed a good game last week under the circumstances and, tonight he is expected to be even better. Eccleston is having the best season of his career and tonight his wonderful play is expected to continue.

In the preliminary starting at 7.30 the Taftville Whirlwinds will meet the Norwich Shamrocks and dancing will follow the main game.

SHEIK LEONARD LOSES DECISION TO MARS

Skating was the favorite winter sport of President William McKinley, and he was especially fond of figure skating.

RICKARD PLANS TO HAVE TUNNEY MEET DEMPSEY EARLY IN SUMMER

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)— One word from Gene Tunney, signature on the dotted line, and the ballyhoo over two heavyweight championship fights in 1928 will be on in earnest.

That is all that is necessary, Tex Rickard revealed today, to start the "whoop-up" for Jack Dempsey's second attempt to regain the title and his third shot at the champion. But the picture is somewhat altered as compared with its original outlines for the promoter now plans to bring Dempsey and Tunney together first, at the Yankee stadium, in June or possibly July. The winner will figure in the second title bout, "somewhere in September," preferably against Jack Sharkey if the Boston Sailor can be re-built to challenging stature.

Tunney and Rickard already have come to virtual agreement on a program of two championship bouts. The promoter disclosed in confirming published reports that he got together with the titleholder and a corps of lawyers here January 7, the final draft of terms is expected to be signed at Miami, Florida, late this week. Rickard leaves Wednesday for the south.

The chief stumbling block in the way of the negotiations today appeared in Rickard's refusal to guarantee Tunney any such sum as the champion drew for his match with Dempsey in Chicago last fall.

"The racket will not stand two million-dollar purses' in one year, Tex said, explaining that Gene must sign a new contract agreeing to a straight percentage of the gate receipts. The option Rickard now holds on the champion's services calls for a guarantee of $525,000 and 50 per cent. of the receipts over $1,000,000 for one match in 1928.

While the winner of the promoter's "do or die" elimination tournament between five heavyweights—Jack Sharkey, Jack Delaney, Paulino Uzcudun, Tom Heeney, and Johnny Risko—will gain the nomination against Tunney or Dempsey next September, every effort will be made to build Sharkey to title calibre. The silent strong man from Boston, who was a distant disappointment in a mauling draw with Tom Heeney Friday night, will attempt to redeem himself in a 15 round go with a suitable opponent, probably Jack Delaney, on March 15. Heeney will tackle either Risko or Uzcudun March 1 over the same route.

Staging another Dempsey-Tunney battle in June or early July will allow the remainder of the summer for the "build-up" of a fall challenger, Rickard said. Dempsey, the promoter believes, needs no tune-up match.

Rickard, as yet, has no idea where Tunney will defend his title in the fall. He is considering Windsor and Toronto, Canada, Chicago, Baltimore and Boston as possible sites.

Tunney Is Agreeable

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Gene Tunney said here this afternoon that Tex Rickard's plan to have him meet Jack Dempsey in another title bout in June or July "suits me fine."

FAST PRELIMINARY FOR PLAINFIELD PROS GAME

The preliminary to the Plainfield Pros' game with Jim Thorpe's World Famous Indian team Wednesday night at the Plainfield Community house will be between the Plainfield Buddies and a strong South Manchester quintet, it was announced Monday evening. This game ought to be a fitting appetizer for the main go as it brings together two fast junior outfits.

Interest in the main attraction is fast mounting and right now it looks like a packed house. In addition to the colorful show put on by the visiting team there is also every indication of a close contest for both of these teams are now playing fine basketball.

Interscholastic Sports

That N. F. A. baseball schedule sure looks good this morning.

Fans will be able to get plenty of glimpses of the state champions this spring for Coach Earle E. Brignam has sure lined up a wonderful slate.

Chapman Tech will be out to avenge its defeat of a few weeks back from Pratt High of Essex. This game will be at New London, however, and that should help the Whalers.

Activity among eastern Connecticut high schools during the coming week lessens a bit. Here are the games: Tuesday, Pratt High at Chapman Tech; Friday, Windham at South Manchester, Chapman Tech at Stonington and Saturday, Wilby of Waterbury at N. F. A. Stonington also plays the Coast Guard Seconds Tuesday.

Of course the Chapman-Stonington clash will draw the most interest among followers of the schoolboys hereabouts, bringing as it does two of eastern Connecticut's four major schools together.

Things now look promising for a Class A football league in 1929 about the state. The schools are now banding together pretty rapidly and within a year or so there ought to be a strong set of leagues in the Nutmeg state.

While this Class A league is at the present time only for football it is pretty certain that once it gets a start, the teams will be willing to hook up in all sports.

Weaver of Hartford looks like a strong threat for the basketball state title although as yet she hasn't done as much of note as Naugatuck. New Haven Hillhouse might be named as another of whom much will be heard before the court season closes.

Windham is the only one of the teams in this section that looks like a Yale tournament entry so far.

Windham, eastern Connecticut's leading scholastic quintet to date plays away this week, meeting its old rival, South Manchester in the Silk Town. The Chapman Tech-Stonington game is an eastern Connecticut league tilt and ought to produce some hard-fought basketball.

Games in Norwich this week are on Tuesday and Saturday.

SPORTING NOTES

No fewer than 30 carnivals of winter sports are scheduled for New England during the next two months.

The ban against women betting at race tracks in Victoria, Australia, has been removed by legislative act.

The first international golf match between professionals of England and America was played 25 years ago.

Indications are that numerous changes will be made in the minor leagues before the opening of the 1928 baseball season.

The Boston Athletic Association, sponsor of the famous Boston marathon, has just celebrated the 40th anniversary of its organization.

Jack Daray, professional instructor at the Olympic fields golf club of Chicago, goes south each winter to fill a similar position at Biloxi, Miss.

Billy Petrolle, the Duluth battler, is so anxious for a chance at the light-weight crown, that he has offered to fight Champion Sammy Mandel for nothing.

A race horse galloping at full speed cleans from twenty to twenty-four feet at every bound.

Back in the middle '90s many New Yorkers experienced a craze for ice golfing. The most popular place for indulging in the sport was the Hudson river when it was frozen hard and covered with a thin layer of snow.

Maurice Daly of New York was the first of the prominent billiard experts to give the 18.2 balkline game a trial. In the spring of 1896 he promoted a series of 18.2 balkline tournaments in which Frank Ives, Jacob Schaefer and Albert Garnier took part.

For 22 years the Jackson Day run conducted by the New Orleans Y. M. C. A. has been one of the notable athletic fixtures in the Crescent City. The course followed by the runners, from Spanish Fort to Jackson Square, is the same as that taken by Lafitte's band of pirates when they hurried to notify Gen. Andrew Jackson of the plans of the attacking British. The race is run each year on January 8, the date of Jackson's victory in the battle of New Orleans.

THE ONLY CAR OF ITS KIND IN THE WORLD

For numberless puzzled motorists Dodge Brothers new Victory Six will simplify the problem of selection, for nowhere in the world is there a car like it. Greater expenditure will not duplicate it.

To possess this car's unique advantages you must possess this car.

A Radical Departure in Body Design

In The Victory, for the first time in history, the body sill is eliminated. Body and chassis are built as a single integral unit.

Thus, the wide, deep chassis frame of The Victory, now flush with the lines of the body, avoids the customary overhang of a wide body upon a narrow frame; and the chassis itself, rather than the body, supports all weight—body, floor, seats and passengers.

Amazing Results

The results of this construction are astonishing.

330 body parts are eliminated.

The all-important CENTER OF GRAVITY is materially lowered.

Without the slightest sacrifice of head-room or road-clearance, the over-all height of the car is also lowered—one of the secrets of The Victory's great beauty.

The amazing resources of the car's brilliant power plant are multiplied still further by perfect distribution and economy of weight.

21 valid miles per gallon at 25 miles per hour is made possible FOR A SIX! Incredible smoothness at high speed is another great gift of this new design!

Elimination of back-wheel "chatter" when the 4-wheel Lockheed-Hydraulic brakes are quickly applied is still another!

And thanks to The Victory's low center of gravity and wide chassis frame, swaying, skidding, tipping—each a factor of weight and its proper and improper placement—are reduced to a new and negligible minimum.

Another New Safety Feature

Yet Dodge Brothers have taken a further revolutionary step to insure the safest motor transportation it is possible to create.

For the first time in automobile history, they have applied the so-called battleship construction to closed car design.

In other words, the body has a double steel shell, locked together, with an air space intervening—is actually TWO bodies, one within the other—yet lighter by 175 pounds—and the safest body known.

Sour Stomach

"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"

Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

PERSISTENT SELLING CAUSED FALL OF QUOTED VALUES IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The stock market, having failed to respond to favorable business news developments last week, underwent a further downward readjustment of quoted values today. Selling was rather persistent throughout the session, a few rallies being of a rather feeble character. Net declines in a long list of active issues ranged from 1 to 3 points, with the breaks in a few specialties running as large as 8 points. Trading was normal in volume, the day's sales falling below 2 1-2 million shares.

Failure of U. S. Steel common and General Motors, recognised market leaders, to develop any pronounced recuperative power, undoubtedly led to heavy short-selling and profit-taking in those and other issues. Steel sold off 2 points to 144, the lowest price in about a month, and then rallied fractionally, and General Motors showed a net loss of 3-4 at 130 1-4 after selling a point below that figure. One block of 10,000 shares of General Motors changed hands at 131.

There was nothing in the day's news to explain the decline, which was therefore widely construed as a further correction of an obviously top-heavy speculative position. The widespread discussion of brokers' loans, the recent stiffening in time money and acceptance rates and the suggestions of the alleged need of a "house cleaning" in the market all have helped to dampen bullish enthusiasm. Meanwhile, the industrial situation shows signs of improvement, although it is generally believed to be too early to determine the probable trend of spring business.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent but advanced to 4 1-2 after banks had called about $25,000,000 in loans. There was no change in time money rates and the failure of commercial paper rates to follow the recent advance in time money and acceptances buoyed up the hopes of those who look for relatively easy money rates to continue.

As in last week's markets, the sharpest declines today were in high priced specialties which have been under pool sponsorship. Cushman's Sons broke 7 5-8 points to 140, on one sale. International Harvester collapsed 9 1-2 points and rallied 1 1-2. Midland Steel Products preferred broke 10 points and rallied 6. Sloss Sheffield dropped 5 points on one sale. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe broke 7 points to 210 and then rallied to 218, jumping from 215 to 218 between sales. Radio, one of the recent leaders in point of speculative activity, sold down to 96 1-8 and rallied to 98, off 2 3-4 points net.

Oils displayed a firm undertone on buying influenced by the reported improvement in trade conditions. Sun Oil advanced 3 points and Atlantic Refining advanced a point. Marine preferred, Pillsbury Flour and Youngstown Sheet & Tube also showed independent strength.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Heavy selling undermined prices on the curb market today and except for some specialties virtually every group joined the decline. The trend was in sympathy with that of the "big board," where the decline appeared to be influenced by continued interest in the brokers' loan situation and the possibilities of adverse congressional developments, for there were no news developments.

While the trend generally was downward, two stocks were featured by extreme advances. A. G. Spalding rose 15 points to 140, a new high, and New Mont Mines advanced 6 1-8 points, but without the company of other mining shares.

Industrials were irregular. General Baking A resisted pressure although the B issue dropped fractionally under heavy selling. American Rolling Mills, strong last week, slumped 5 points. U. S. L. Battery was off 4. Stern Bros. A 1 1-8 and Bancitaly 1. Sheaffer Pen dropped 20 points on sales of a few shares. Among the few industrials to show gains were Chesebrough Manufacturing and Swift International, the last named responding to reports of increased export business.

The rails sold off. Pittsburgh and Lake Erie declined 1 1-4 points, the St. Paul issues each were off 1 and others were down fractionally.

Royal Canadian Oil Syndicate, advancing 6 points to 26; Vacuum, with a gain of 1 points, and Ohio Oil, up slightly, were outstanding in their group, and the other standard issues, Creole Syndicate, Gulf, Humble, International Petroleum and others sold off slightly.

Utilities were mixed. American Gas & Electric lost 2 1-2 points and Southeastern Power and Light 1 point. While Middle West Utilities and General Public Service moved up.

Evans Auto, A and B, advanced in the motors, the A issue moving up 2 1-4 and the B 1 3-4 points. Auburn sold off 1 1-4 points. Durant and Stutz lost some ground.

The bond section set a new record for one days' sales, $7,000,000. Of this total $5,660,000 was in the St. Paul issues, the 5s A 2000 showing a gain of 713.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Expenditure of $17,500,000 for improvements and equipment in 1928, has been appropriated by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. Operating expenses incident to this improvement program are placed at $5,500,000.

Stockholders of Electric Refrigeration corporation voted to change its name to Kelvinator Corporation.

Preliminary figures of Erie Railroad earnings for 1927 indicate surplus of about $2,825,000 after charges, but before sinking fund, equal to 17 cents a share on the common, after allowing 4 per cent on $68,904,000 perferred stock.

Oil trade circles hear large fuel oil contracts with transatlantic steamship companies in New York harbor have been extended three years from 1929, on the same basis of $1.40 a barrel as in 1928 contracts, except the International Mercantile Marine Co. Standard Oil of New Jersey is reported to have closed on the extension for the Cunard, French Line and North German Lloyd.

A new annual production record of 250,000 cars was established by Buick Motor Car Co. in 1927.

Preliminary figures show that Lago Oil &Transport Co. produced 16,301,855 barrels of crude oil from its properties in Venezuela, in 1927, against 6,093,548 in 1926. This output was exceeded only by that the Venebuelan Oil Concessions, Ltd., controlled by Royal Dutch, which totaled 21,207,988 barrels.

Stockholders of Interstate Trust company and the Hamilton National bank have adopted a consolidation. Combined resources will exceed $50,000,000 with aggregate deposits of about $40,000,000 and surplus and undivided profits of about $7,000,000. The exchange basis is 5 1-2 shares of nterstate Trust for six of Hamilton.

Domestic film rentals by Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation the last quarter of 1927 were about 15 per cent greater than in the same period of 1926.

Net loss of $43,404 for the quarter ending No. 30, 1927, is reported by Martin Parry Corporation, in contrast to net profit of $139,520 in the corresponding 1926 period, or $1.11 a share.

New England Industries

Steam Fittings.

The products embraced in this New England industry are steam heating and hot water boilers, radiators, safety valves, pressure and vacuum guages, coils, thermostats, iron coils, brass and copper bends, unions and flanges, and similar fittings.

Census figures show that thirty-eight steam-fitting concerns in New England produced goods in 1923 valued at $26,500,000, about 12 per cent of the entire country's output. Massachusetts and Vermont together produced 94.5 per cent of the output of New England. The New England establishments employed a yearly average of 6,524 workers. There are eight concerns in Connecticut, twenty-three in Massachusetts, five in Rhode Island, and one each in New Hampshire and Vermont.

The principal market is outside New England, reports of a representative group of manufacturers to the United States department of commerce and the New England Council show, and the trend of sales since 1921 is reported as upward by 80 per cent of these producers, this increase being due principally to better selling methods.

Approximately 27 per cent of the companies reporting in this survey started operations within the last seven years, but the average age of all plants is twenty-two years, and the average period under present management twelve years. Among the reasons for locating in New England, the accessibility of raw materials (brass, copper, iron and steel) was the chief one, with labor conditions and nearness to market in second place. Brass and copper are bought in New England by 75 per cent of the concerns, and iron and steel by 80 per cent.

Incentive wage methods are used by 41 per cent of the reporting group, with from 90 to 100 per cent of workers in some facories on that basis, but with a general average for the entire group of 31 per cent. Variation between maximum and minimum periods of employment was only 4 per cent in 1923 and 1925.

Improvements are being made in various directions by the following number of companies:

Standardization of products, 13; production control, 11; accident prevention, 10; inspection, continuous maintenance, and standardization of materials, 7 each; uniform cost accounting and relations with workers, 5 each; methods of wage payment, 4.

The principal market is outside of New England, according to 90 per cent of the companies in this group. The trend of New England and total sales has been upward since 1921. Better selling methods have, for the most part, accounted for the improvement. A brand or trademark is in use by 64 per cent of the group for a part or all of their products.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S ADDRESS BEFORE PAN-AMERICAN CONFERENCE

Mr. President and Members of the Pan American Conference:

No citizen of any of the Americas could come to the Queen of the Islands of the West Indies without experiencing an emotion of gratitude and reverence. These are the outposts of the new civilization of the western hemisphere. It was among them that the three small ships of the heroic admiral came when, with the assistance and support of Spain, Columbus presented to Europe the first widespread, public and authoritative knowledge of the New world. Other points may have been previously visited, but for these was reserved the final revelation. The Great Discoverer brought with him the seed of more republics, the promise of greater human freedom, than ever crossed the seas on any other voyage. With him sailed immortal Declarations of Independence and Great Charters of self-government. He laid out a course that led from despotism to democracy. Edward Everett Hale, a seer of New England, tells us that this gallant seaman who rose above the storms to become the forerunner of an age of pioneers,

Left blood and guilt and tyranny behind,
Sailing still west the hidden shore to find;
For all mankind that unstained scroll unfurled,
Where God might write anew the story of the world.

In the spirit of Christopher Columbus all of the Americans have an eternal bond of unity, a common heritage bequeathed to us alone. Unless we together redeem the promise which his voyage held for humanity, it must remain forever void. This is the destiny which Pan America has been chosen to fulfill.

As we look back over the accomplishments of the past four centuries, we can see that we are warranted in asserting that the western hemisphere has not failed in the service that it seemed destined to render to humanity. Progress does not go forward in a straight line. It is a succession of waves. We cannot always ride on their crest, but among our republics the main tide of human advancement has been steadily rising. The people have taken charge of their own affairs. In spite of some temporary discouragements, they have on the whole been successful. The fertility of a virgin soil, a wealth of mineral deposits, an abundance of water power, a multitude of navigable rivers, all at the command of a resourceful people, have produced a material prosperity greater in amount and more widely distributed than ever before fell to the lot of the human race. The arts and sciences have flourished, the advantages of education are widespread, devotion to religion is marked by its sincerity. The spirit of liberty is universal. An attitude of peace and good will prevails among our nations. A determination to adjust differences among ourselves, not by a resort to force, but by the application of the principles of justice and equity, is one of our strongest characteristics. The sovereignty of small nations is respected. It is for the purpose of giving stronger guarantee to these principles, of increasing the amount and extending the breadth of these blessings, that this conference has been assembled.

Progress We Are Making

The very place where we are meeting is a complete demonstration of the progress we are making. Thirty years ago Cuba ranked as a foreign possession, torn by revolution and devastated by hostile forces. Such government as existed rested on military force. Today Cuba is her own sovereign. Her people are independent, free, prosperous, and enjoying the advantages of self-government. The last important area has taken her place among the republics of the New world. Our fair hostess has raised herself to a high and honorable position among the nations of the earth. The intellectual ualities of the Cuban people have won for them a permanent place in science, art and literature, and their production of staple commodities has made them an important factor in the economic structure of the world. They have reached a position in the stability of their government, in the genuine expression of their public opinion at the ballot box, and in the recognized soundness of their public credit that has commanded universal respect and admiration. What Cuba has done, others have done and are doing.

It is a heavy responsibility which rests upon the people and the governments represented at this conference. Unto them has been given a new land, free from the traditional jealousies and hatreds of the Old world, where the people might come into the fullest state of development. It is among the the republics of this hemisphere that the principle of human rights has had its broadest application; where political freedom and equality and economic opportunity have made their greatest advance. Our most sacred trust has been, and is, the establishment and expansion of the spirit of democracy. No doubt we shall make some false starts and experience some disappointing reactions. But we have put our confidence in the ultimate wisdom of th epeople. We believe we can rely on their intelligence, their honesty, and their character. We are thoroughly committed to the principle that they are better fitted to govern themselves than anyone else is to govern them. We do not claim immediate perfection. But we do expect continual progress. Our history reveals that in such expectation we have not been disappointed. It is better for the people to make their own mistakes than to have someone else make their mistakes for them.

Policy of Peace

Next to our attachment to the principle of self-government has been our attachment to the policy of peace. When the republics of the western hemisphere gained their independence, they were compelled to fight for it. They have always been a brave, resolute and determined people, willing to make any sacrifices to defend what they believed to be their rights. But when once their rights have been secured, they have been almost equally solicitous to respect the rights of others. Their chief efforts have been devoted to the arts of peace. They have never come under the delusion of military grandeur. Nowhere among these republics have great military establishments ever been maintained for the purpose of overawing or subjugating other nations. We have all nourished a commendable sentiment of moderate preparation for national defense, believing that for a nation to be unreasonably neglectful of the military art, even if it did not invite and cause such aggression as to result either in war or in abject humiliation, it must finally lead to a disastrous disintegration of the very moral fiber of the nation. But it is one thing to be prepared to defend our rights as a last extremity and quite another to rely on force where reason ought to prevail. The form of our governments guarantees us against the Old world dynastic wars. It is scarcely too much to say that the conflicts which have been waged by our republics for 150 years have been almost entirely for the purpose of securing independence and extending the domain of human freedom. When these have been accomplished, we have not failed to heed the admonition to beat our swords into plowshares.

Welfare of the People

We have kept the peace so largely among our republics because democracies are peace-loving: They are founded on the desire to promote the general welfare of the people, which is seldom accomplished by warfare. In addition to this we have adopted a spirit of accommodation, good will, confidence and mutual helpfulness. We have been slow to anger and plenteous in mercy. When this attitude prevails it is not difficult to find practical means of adjusting differences. The statesmanship of the southern American republics has shown a peculiar skill and aptitude in this field. It began with mutual consultation. The first Pan American congress assembled at Panama City about 100 years ago. The purpose of that gathering has never been forgotten and it may be said to have marked the beginning of a permanent institution. The republics south of the Rio Grande have produced a most impressive record of a resort to mediation, arbitration and other peaceful methods of the adjustment and adjudication of their international differences. A study of their treaties will disclose some of the finest examples of mutual covenants for the limitation of armaments and the avoidance of hostile conflict. In the discovery of the true principles of international relations, and in the practical ability of putting them into effect, they have demonstrated a moral power and strength of character for which the whole world should be profoundly grateful.

Object of Conference

The Pan American conferences meet for the purpose of maintaining and extending these important principles. It is impossible to conceive of a more inspiring motive which men could entertain in dealing with the affairs of this world. You have convened to take counsel together for increasing the domestic welfare of the free people of our independent republics and promoting international peace. No other part of the world could provide constituencies which all have such a unity of purpose. The whole atmosphere of the conference is animated with the spirit of democracy and good will. This is the fundamental concept of your organization. All nations here represented stand on an exact footing of equality. The smallest and the weakest speaks with the same authority as the largest and the most powerful. You come together under the present conditions, and the future expectation, of profound peace. You are continuing to strike a new note in international gatherings by maintaining a forum in which not the selfish interests of a few, but the general welfare of all, will be considered.

Must Be Guided by Patience

If you are to approximate your past successes, it will be because you do not hesitate to meet facts squarely. We must consider not only our strength but our weaknesses. We must give thought not only to our excellence but to our defects. The attitude of the open mind must prevail. Most of all, you must be guided by patience, tolerance and charity, judging your sister nations not only by their accomplishments, but also by their aspirations. A Divine Providence has made us a neighborhood of republics. It is impossible to suppose that it was for the purpose of making us hostile to each other, but from time to time to reveal to us the methods by which we might secure the advantages and blessings of enduring friendships.

Like the subjects which have occupied the attention of your predecessors, the topics contained in the agenda of the present conference call for co-operative international action. They belong to the class of inquiries that produce closer international relations, promoting the good of all in the political, economic, social and cultural spheres. Your predecessors have shown great wsidom in directing their attention to the matters that unite and strengthen us in friendly collaboration—subjects that can develop an inter-American unity of sentiment which alone can make our common endeavors fruitful.

The existence of this conference, held for the consideration of measures of purely American concern, involves no antagonism toward any other section of the world or any other organization. It means that the independent republics of the western hemisphere, animated by the same ideals, enjoying the common blessings of freedom and peace, realize that there are many matters of mutual interest and importance which can best be investigated and resolved through the medium of such friendly contact and negotiation as is necessary for co-operative action. We realize that one of the most important services which we can render to humanity, the one for wheih w eare peculiarly responsible, is to maintain the ideals of our western world. That is our obligation. No one else can discharge it for us. If it is to be met, we must meet it ourselves. We must join together in assuring conditions under which our republics will have the freedom and the responsibility of working out their own destiny in their own way.

The proceedings of the successive Pan American conferences reveal a record of achievement which, without attempting the spectacular, constantly builds on the solid foundation of the immediately attainable. With each succeeding conference the agreements for the orderly settlement of such differences as may arise between the American republics have been extended and strengthened, thus making their relationship more certain and more secure. Each conference has contributed its share toward developing more intimate cultural ties among the nations of this hemisphere, and establishing new currents of mutual understanding. Obstacles to closer economic relations have been removed, thus clearing the pathways of commercial intercourse.

Special Conferences

Of scarcely less importance have been the many special conferences which from time to time have assembled for the purpose of dealing with the more technical questions in the relations between the republics of America. The meetings of the international commission of jurists, the Pan American highway conferences, the child welfare conferences, the sanitary conferences, the conference on consular proceedure, the scientific congresses, the financial conferences, the Red Cross conferences, and the highly important and significant congress of journalists have all served to strengthen that spirit of Pan American solidarity which, in the last analysis, represents one of the greatest achievements of our American civilization and one which, in the future, is destined to play so important a part in the fulfillment of the high mission intrusted to the republics of this hemisphere.

It has been most gratifying to witness the increasing interchange of university professors and the constantly growing stream of student migration from one country to another. No other influence can be more potent and effective in promoting mutual comprehension of national aims and ideals. It is sincerely to be hoped that this cultural interchange will each year assume larger proportions.

It is not desirable that we should attempt to be all alike. Progress is not secured through uniformity and similarity but rather through multiplicity and diversity. We should all be intent on maintaining our own institutions and customs, preserving the purity of our own language and literature, fostering the ideals of our own culture and society. In a territory reaching from the north temperate zone through the tropics to the south pole, there is room enough for every worthy activity which is profitable and every ideal which is good. Our geographical location, as well as our political ideals, has endowed us with a self-contained unity and independence. Instead considering our variations as an obstacle, we ought to realize that they are a contribution to harmonious political and economic relations.

Inter-American Understanding

In this great work of furthering inter-American understanding, a large responsibility rests upon the press of all countries. In our present stage of civilization, knowledge of foreign people is almost wholly supplied from this source. By misinterpreting facts, or by carelessness in presenting them in their true light, much damage can be done. While great progress has been made toward the publication of fuller information and unbiased views, a better exchange of news service would do much to promote mutual knowledge and understanding. What happens in this hemisphere is of more vital interest to all of us than what happens across any of the oceans.

An increase of information depends largely on an increase in the means of communication. During the entire nineteenth century intercourse between the American republics was exceedingly difficult, and this isolation proved a serious obstacle to closer understanding. The twentieth century, however, and especially the last ten years, have witnessed astonishing changes in this respect. Transportation by water has become rapid, comfortable and relatively inexpensive. Shipping facilities from the United States have been largely improved. Our government is greatly interested in increasing their efficiency. Railway lines have been extended so that it will soon be possible to travel with practically no interruption from the northern border of the United States to the southern border of El Salvador, and in South America from Peru to Patagonia. During very recent years every government of this hemisphere has been giving special attention to the building of highways, partly with a view to establish feeders to the railway lines, but also to provide great arteries of inter-American communication for motor transport. On the wall of my office hangs a map showing proposed highways connecting the principal points of our two continents.

I am asking the United States congress to authorize sending engineering advisers, the same as we send military and naval advisers, when requested by other countries, to assist in road building. These gratifying changes are about to be supplemented by the establishment of aviation routes, primarily for the transportation of mails, which will afford to our republics a channel of interchange which will find its ultimate expression in closer cultural and commercial ties and in better mutual comprehension. Our congress also has under consideration proposals for supporting such air routes. Citizens of the United States are considering installing them.

Private organizations of a civic, cultural and educational character also have a great opportunity to help in the development of a closer understanding amongst the nations of America. The fine co-operation of the Red Cross societies of the American continents is an outstanding instance of the field for service open to the civic and philanthropic organizations of this hemisphere.

Commercial Relations

In the domain of commercial relations, the last few years have witnessed an extraordinary strengthening of the economic ties binding together our republics. In both agricultural and industrial production the countries of America are now complementing one another to an unusual degree, resulting in an increasing exchange of commodities. Furthermore, recent years have witnessed a most gratifying rise in the standards of living of the wage earners throughout the Americas. They enjoy a greater productive and earning capacity, with a consequent increase in their purchasing power which has been reflected in the growing volume of inter-American commerce, destined to become more and more important as it combines a scientific utilization of natural resources with an increasing economic power of the masses of the people. The greater a nation becomes in wealth and production, the more it has for the service of its neighbors, the larger its markets for the goods of others. The operation of natural forces, supplemented by the conscious purpose of the governments and peoples of the Americas, has increased their mutual interest in each other and strengthened the commercial ties among them.

In this work of inter-American co-operation, an important part has been played by the Pan American union. It stands as the permanent organ of these conferences. This international organization has labored unceasingly to give effect to the treaties and resolutions adopted by the successive conferences. Its scope of usefulness is constantly being enlarged and its ability to serve the American republics is strengthened with each year that passes.

Political Relations

In the area of political relations, the results have been no less gratifying and even more significant. It is almost impossible fully to appreciate the remarkable record achieved by the republics of America in the settlement of the differences that have arisen among them. Because of ill-defined boundaries of the sparsely settled political subdivisions of the old Spanish colonial empire, the independent states of America carved out of it fell heir to a large number of territorial disputes which, in many cases, were of an exceedingly delicate and difficult nature. It is a tribute to the spirit of good will and mutual accommodation which has dominated the relations among the nations of the western world that most of these disputes have been settled by the orderly process of negotiation, mediation and arbitration. The adjustment of international differences on the American continents has happily advanced to a stage at which but few questions remain unsolved. This extraordinary record of achievement places heavy responsibility upon the present generation to advance the great work that has been so auspiciously begun.

It is a high example that we have set for the world in resolving international differences without resort to force. If these conferences mean anything, they mean the bringing of all our people more definitely and more completely under the reign of law. After all, it is in that direction that we must look with the greatest assurance for human progress. We can make no advance in the realm of economics, we can do nothing for education, we can accomplish but little even in the sphere of religion, until human affairs are brought within the orderly rule of law. The surest refuge of the weak and the oppressed is in the law. It is pre-eminently the shield of small nations. This is necessarily a long, laborious process, which must broaden out from precedent to precedent, from the general acceptance of principle to principle. New activities require new laws. The rules for the governing of aviation are only beginning to be considered. We shall make more progress in the end if we proceed with deliberation. No doubt you will find in your discussions many principles that you are ready to announce as sound and settled rules of action. But there are certain to be other questions concerning which it is not possible at the present time to lay down a specific rule of law. This need not discourage anyone. It is rather the most conclusive evidence that the results which have been secured are not of a temporary and ill-considered nature, but a mature statement of sound and conclusive principles.

Continental Responsibility

The founders of our republics sought no peculiar preferment for themselves. That same disinterested spirit which has animated the conduct of our past conferences has given the American family of nations a high place in the opinion of the world. Our republics seek no special privileges for themselves, nor are they moved by any of those purposes of domination and restraints upon liberty of action which in other times and places have been fatal to peace and progress. In the international system which you represent the rights of each nation carry with them corresponding obligations, defined by laws which we recognize as binding upon all of us. It is through the careful observance of those laws which define our rights and impose our duties that international co-operation is possible. This lays on us all a continental responsibility which none of us wish to avoid and the fulfillment of which is one of the most important guaranties of international friendship.

While the law is necessary for the proper guidance of human action, and will always remain the source of freedom and liberty and the ultimate guaranty of all our rights, there is another element in our experience which must always be taken into consideration. We read that "The letter killeth but the spirit giveth life." Oftentimes in our international relationship we shall have to look to the spirit rather than to the letter of the law. We shall have to realize that the highest law is consideration, co-operation, friendship and charity. Without the application of these there can be no peace and no progress, no liberty, and no republic. These are the attributes that raise human relationships out of the realm of the mechanical, above the realm of animal existence, into the loftier sphere that borders on the divine. If we are to experience a new era in our affairs, it will be because the world recognizes and lives in accordance with this spirit. Its most complete expression is the Golden Rule.

The light which Columbus followed has not failed. The courage that carried him on still lives. They are the heritage of the people of Bolivar and of Washington. We must lay our voyage of exploration toward complete understanding and friendship. Having taken that course, we must not be turned aside by the fears of the timid, the counsels of the ignorant, or the designs of the malevolent. With law and charity as our guides, with that ancient faith which is only strengthened when it requires sacrifices, we shall anchor at last in the harbor of justice and truth. The same pilot which stood by the side of the Great Discoverer, and the same wisdom which instructed the founding fathers of our republics, will continue to abide with us.

RALPH H. MELCER MADE PRESIDENT OF PALMER BROS. CO. AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—At the directors' meeting today to elect a successor to George S. Palmer, who has retired after 55 years in business, Ralph H. Melcer was advanced to the presidency of Palmer Bros. The annual meeting was held at the main offices of the company on Broad street. William H. Reeves was named to succeed Mr. Melcer as treasurer; Miss Theodora Palmer was named vice president and Howard Palmer, son of Geo. L. Palmer was elected secretary. The meeting was held following adjournment of the stockholders' meeting, at which directors were chosen as follows: Misses Theodora and Virginia Palmer, Ralph H. Melcer, William H. Reeves, Howard Palmer.

The choice of Mr. Melcer has been rumored for some time. He came to the Montville company from California and for years did valuable service as purchasing agent for the quilt manufacturing company. There is interest in the election in Norwich and Fitchville, as well as in this city and Montville. The prosperity of this firm, widely known for its successful manufacture of comfortables, touches a large section of southeastern Connecticut.

BENSON IS DISCHARGED AFTER CITY COURT HEARING

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—Carl Benson, of Meridian street, employed as a baker, was in the police court this morning on charges of breach of the peace and intoxication. Because of the absence of corroborating testimony, or rather due to most conflicting testimony, Judge Victor Prince ordered the accused discharged and in so ruling Judge Prince made it known that Benson should never have been arrested. Benson was on Main street Saturday night and with two or three other men occupied a doorway. Patrolman George McCaskey was making his rounds on the opposite side of the street, trying store doors when he testified that he heard some one say, "There's a cop." The officer testified that then he heard some one say, "to h——— with the cop." McCaskey went to where the group was assembled and inquired who made the last remark. No one would admit making it and the officer ordered the gang to disperse. All but Benson left the doorway and he refused to do so. He and McCaskey had words and McCaskey threatened Benson with arrest. Benson was finally arrested and taken to police headquarters where the officer preferred the charges. Benson was later released upon furnishing bail. When Benson took the witness stand today he testified that when he was brought to police headquarters and the officer made a charge of intoxication against him, he told the officer that McCaskey lied if he said that he (Benson.) was drunk. Benson then declared that McCaskey dealt him a blow on the face. He displayed a much discolored optic to prove his statement. Judge Prince recalled McCaskey to the stand and made inquiry of the officer as to his conduct at police headquarters and particularly that part of Benson's testimony in reference to the latter being struck a blow on the eye. The officer denied striking Benson and said he had no knowledge as to how the man received his bruise. Judge Prince immediately ordered Benson discharged, with the remark that the prisoner should never have been arrested. Benson made the statement after court that he did not intend to let the matter end with today's court procedure, the inference being that he would prefer charges against McCaskey to City Manager William A. Holt.

Clinton Eldridge of Groton, is Lawrence-Memorial hospital ill with pneumonia. Mr. Eldridge was taken to the hospital Saturday after having been confined to his home several days with a severe cold.

The state police of Groton barracks have concluded their investigation of the circumstances attending the accident which resulted in the death Friday night at Margaret Edwards Anderson hospital, Westerly, of Simon P. Nichols, of Potter Hill, R. I. Mr. Nichols was struck by an automobile driven by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, of 27 Broad street, New London, earlier the same day. The report of the state police has been forwarded to Coroner J. J. Desmond of Norwich, who in due time will render his finding.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today ordered the return of the drivers' licenses of John Gentilella, 640 Bank street and Dennis Holoday, destroyer Cassin, United States coast guard. Both licenses were suspended recently for infractions of the motor vehicle law.

An automobile driven by Fred G. Maynard, 34 Raymond street, struck Gerald Ryan, 5, of 20 Pleasant street, this afternoon, the child sustaining bruises and scratches, which were dressed at the Lena hospital. The boy was on Connecticut avenue and started to run across the street just as the auto was about to pass and was hit and knocked down. Maynard placed the child in the auto and drove him to the hospital.

CHESHIRE REFORMATORY ROBERT MARION'S PENALTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—Robert Marion, 19, of West Colt street, was in the police court today charged with the theft of an automobile owned by Mrs. Susan Miller, 118 Bilnman street. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the reformatory at Cheshire. Marion apparently entertained the idea that he was to be sent to the reformatory for when he arrived in New London from New York yesterday in charge of Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, he sent a message to his father telling the latter not to go to police headquarters as it would be useless for the parent to do anything in behalf of the son. Marion, who was dishonorably discharged from the United States Coast Guard recently has been on the downward path for a long time. He went to the garage at 105 Truman street where Mrs. Miller keeps her auto, a Chrysler sedan, a week ago last Saturday morning at 1 o'clock and forcing the lock, drove the auto away, going to New York, where he was arrested. Extradition papers were issued and resulted in Marion being brought back to New London and punished.

George Lee, of 4 Douglass street, was charged with driving an automobile with 1927 markers and without having a license. He was arrested Saturday by Acting Sergeant William Graham. Today judgment was suspended.

Leonard N. Lee, 20 Reed street, a physician's clerk at the United States Coast Guard academy, was charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, but he was discharged. Lee was arrested Saturday night by Patrolmen George Cockell and William Riordan upon complaint of Mrs. Rudolph H. Biebler, wife of a tobacconist, 215 Bank street. Lee went to the store and created such a disturbance that his arrest was sought and obtained.

Tony and Josephine Klemberg, 61 Shaw street, charged with intoxication and breach of the peace, were sentenced to jail for 30 days, but execution of sentence was suspended. The pair was arrested by Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and William Riordan when complaint was received at police headquarters last night of a row being in progress.

Lieutenant of Police James C. Sullivan resumed his duties tonight after having been confined to his home on Steward street for several days by illness.

TWO MINORS IN COURT ADMIT SEVERAL BURGLARIES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 16—Two boys, both minors, one residing on Shapley street and the other on Congdon street, were arrested this morning by Patrolman Elwood Bailey charged with burglary. They were given a hearing in the juvenile court this afternoon and one of them was committed to the reformatory for he has been implicated in many thefts and petty burglaries the past few months. The boys were arrested when the father of one of them went to police headquarters and said that he had discovered a gun in his son's room and he believed that it had been stolen. Officer Bailey went to the house and on questioning the youth the latter admitted with his companion of having burglarized the store of the Aben Hardware company, Bank street, from which loot valued at about $100 was taken. The boys said that they went to the rear of the store and smashed the rear entrance, which admitted them to the cellar and made it possible for them to ascend to the store proper. The store has been the location of numerous breaks, most of them having been perpetrated by boys.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Gertrude J. Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, of Waterbury, to Attorney Nathan Harris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Harris, of 327 Ocean avenue, this city. Miss Johnson is a graduate of Connecticut College for Women. Mr. Harris is associated in the law business with Herbert W. Rathbun and John F. Gallagher, of Westerly.

Arthur F. Jodoin, Taftville, was in Groton town court today charged with violation of the state motor vehicle law in failing to grant right of way. The case was nolled upon Jodoin paying the costs of the court, $11.55. The automobile Jodoin was driving collided with a government truck on the military highway Saturday. Jodoin was driving in a southerly direction. The truck entered the main highway from a road to the left and had straightened out when the crash occurred.

The continued case of John and Lino Scussel, charged with taking property without the owner's permission, was nolled when it was proven to the court that the property taken by the brothers had been returned. The brothers removed a quantity of lumber from the former Poquonoc race track owned by the estate of Henry Gardiner. They were arrested by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh Jan. 9. In a nolle being allowed today the brothers paid the costs of the court, $2.55.

The continued case of Stephen T. Fallon, Providence, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, was continued one week upon request of counsel. He is being held in bail of $200. Fallon was arrested Jan. 11 by State Police Officer John Smith after the automobile he was driving overturned at Trail's corner.

Adam Dombroski, 45, of 80 Potter street, died Saturday afternoon at the Mitchell ward of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, after a lingering illness. He is survived by his wife and several children. The funeral was held this morning at 9 o'clock at the Polish National church. Burial was in the Polish National cemetery, Norwich.

Mrs. Lydia E. Wellington, 89, widow of Henry Wellington, died this morning at Odd Fellows' home, Groton, where she had been a resident for several years. When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Infant Care

Mothers, you can't start too early to establish a child's serene and tranquil disposition. Even an infant can have a happy, fretless state of uninterrupted health. What will help do this? A simple, purely vegetable product as old as you are: plain Castoria.

A few drops of Castoria will settle all uneasiness in a jiffy. Will dispel colic or ward off constipation, and just as surely check diarrhea.

In real sickness, call a physician. But many physicians urge only Castoria for those little childish disorders that need nothing more. You need never be afraid to give pure Castoria. It is safe and perfectly harmless, for it contains no paregoric, no opiates, no dope of any kind. At least, this is true of the genuine Fletcher's Castoria"—and that is the kind doctors tell you always to buy.

Fletcher's Castoria is fine for any child. All children love to take it. Delicious tasting, and as good as it tastes. Just look for the Fletcher signature on the package and you will know you have the genuine and pure Castoria.

"SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria, is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

TRYSTE NOEL

The Ox he openeth wide the deore
And from the snowe he calls her inne,
And he hath seen her Smile therefore,
Our Lady without sinne.
Now soone from sleepe
A starre shall leap,
And soon arrive both King and Hinde;
Amen, Amen:
But O, the place co'd I but find!

The Ox hath husht his voyce and bent
Trewe eyes of Pitty ore the Mow,
And on his lovelie Neck, forspent,
The Blessed lays her Browe.
Around her feet
Full Warme and Sweete
His bowerie Breath doth meeklie dwell;
Amen, Amen:
But sore am I with Vaine Travell!

The Ox is Host in Juda's stall,
And Host of more than onelie one,
For close she gatherethwithal
Our Lorde, her littel Sonne;
Glad Hinde and King
Their Gyfte may bring,
But wo'd tonight my Teares were there;
Amen, Amen:
Between her Bosom and His hayre!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Most of the Wide Awakes have probably heard of the American antelope called a pronghorn or a prongbuck. The horns of the antelope each have a prong and there is where the name came from. They are the only species of the family to which they belong and are different from the antelopes of the old world in that the horn sheaths are shed each year. Also the antelope has a short mane.

They are extremely affectionate when in captivity and desire attention. In the open, they are the fastest of animal runners. Their great curiosity leads them into all sorts of danger.

They are rovers after water, food, and shelter, gathering together in large herds in the autumn and in winter going to sheltered places where the snow is not deep. They do not try to hide when in danger but rely on their keen hearing, and speed and when necessary defend themselves from wolves and coyotes by striking with their horns. It is said that they are able to kill a rattlesnake before it can strike.

The antelope eat only grasses and other herbage, but are unable to live on the rich, green eastern grasses. They formerly ranged from Central Mexico to Alberta, canada, on the open plains and foothills but now are grouped in small herds chiefly in the Yellowstone and other national game reservations where they are in no danger of being exterminated.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE-AWAKES

Two Animal Friends

Uncle Jed: Tootsie and Tiny are about the best friends in the neighborhood. They can often be seen together lying in Tiny's home.

These two friends are Tootsie, an Angora cat, and Tiny, a full-grown German police dog. They formed their friendship a few weeks ago, when Tootsie, a tramp cat, arrived at our home and was caught by the dog in the act of eating from the dog's dish. The dog now defends the cat in cat fights. Sometimes the cat crawls under the dog and purrs his contentment. But there is one thing that friendship has never formed and that is the act of eating together.

BENNY KRZESICKI, Age 11.
Norwich.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the second time I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my pet cat. I have a cat. It is yellow and white. I give him milk every morning. One day he caught a rat. Another cat saw him and tried to get it away from him, but he could not.

WILFRED ALLARD, Age 7.
Plainfield, Box 195.

Johnny Dollar

Dear Uncle Jed: It has been a long time since I have written to you and I hope you and the Wide-Awakes Circle will like my story.

Once there was a nice clean crisp dollar bill in a big iron safe and its name was Johnny Dollar. He was sitting comfortable when a hand grabbed him roughly and placed him in another hand which put him in a big stuffy pocket. Johnny could hardly breathe, it was so black in there, and stuffy. When he began to give up all hope just then a hand took him out and he was placed in a box. He began to look dirty and torn, not at all like the first time when he had come into the world. He was once more taken out of the box and put into a safe, but not clean and crisp, but filthy and torn. So if you should meet one of Johnny's brothers or sisters, put him in the bank where they can rest peacefully.

BLANCHE GOULET, Age 13.
Danielson.

The Snow Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you, and I hope you and the Wide-Awakes will enjoy my story.

'Twas on a cold December morning when a flock of snow birds came down from the roof and began to look for food.

I saw them and went out and threw some crumbs at them and they began to eat them. Every morning the birds came to get the crumbs and when March came they went away and I didn't see them after that.

REGINA BOULET, Age 14.
Plainfield, Box 444.

Went Hunting

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to write to you about my hunt. One day I went hunting. I saw a rabbit. I aimed at it but I did not hit it. I went a little farther and saw a bird. I was going to shoot it, but I said to myself that I should not kill birds. So I let it alone and went home. I told my mother all about it. She said to me that I did right not to kill birds.

WALTER MISIOUK, Age 10.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 4.

My Pet Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to you and the Wide-Awakes.

I hope you will like my story. I will tell you about my pet dog.

One night we were all sitting still reading the papers and the dog was down the cellar. We heard the dog bark.

My father went down to see what was the matter. He was barking at the rabbit we had down the cellar.

BEATRICE MONROE, Age 10.
Plainfield.

Winter's Glory

Dear Uncle Jed: All the Wide-Awakes themselves see the glory of winter, but a composition may last for a long time in one's mind.

Whiteness covers our ground and crystalled pictures paint our windows. Icicles fall in heaps to the ground and shine like thousands of tiny sparklers before our eyes. A soft, thick sheet brings silenced peace unto the ease of one's eye. Piercing frost crackles the air and a gorgeous sun peeps out from the horizon, casting golden rays upon the whitened earth.

I smile and close my eyes in a deeper vision, imagining myself in the midst of it all.

In the midst of peace, glory and beauty, and still there outshines outside of all glory, glory of glory, winter's glory.

HELEN KOSTOWICH, Age 11.
Yantic, R. F. D. No. 1.

My Pet

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to write and tell you about my pet. One morning when I went to feed my guinea pigs I found a little black one.

Three days after the mother died and left me as the mother. I started to teach it to drink warm milk. But finally someone told me to give it some warm water and sugar with the milk, so I did it. Now when it is hungry it squeals for me to feed it. I am 10 years old and in the fifth grade. I like school very much.

BERTHA BILLINGS, Age 10.
Stonington, R. F. D. No. 1.

My Christmas Stocking

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my Christmas. When I woke up on Christmas I went to my stocking. I found some candy, apples and oranges. Then I went to the Christmas tree. I saw a sled, a puzzle of the United States and a box of handkerchiefs. When I opened them there was a jackknife inside, too. I got some books, too. I had a very happy Christmas.

ALLEN WHOLLEY, Age 8.
Norwich, R. F. D. No. 4.

A Winter Swim

To Uncle Jed: One afternoon my friends and I were skating on a large pond, playing hockey. We had a jolly time until one of my friends dared me to jump a waterhole cut in the ice. Dashing across the pond, I sprinted across the hole and landed on the thin ice beyond. With a crash the ice broke and I found myself in the water. Splashing around the hole, I grasped some firm ice and then I was pulled by my friends on the ice. Dripping, I came home without skates, for I had lost them in the water.

After supper I related the story to my father. He told me to take that incident as a lesson.

STANLEY KRZESISKI, Age 13.
Norwich.

The Cats' Fight

Dear Uncle Jed: I hope you will enjoy my story. One morning as I was going to school I saw three cats fighting. One was black and white, the other was brown and gray. The last one was a three-colored one. The last one won the battle.

O'LENA SIMONEAU, Age 9.
Baltic, Box 325.

My Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you. I want to tell you about my cat. Its name is Fin-Fin. It is yellow, gray and white. One day it had a cold. It couldn't meow, so my mother gave it some syrup three times a day and now it is all right.

EUGENIE ALLARD, Age 7.
Plainfield, Box 455.

Likes Wide-Awake Letters

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first letter to the Wide-Awake Circle. I like to read the letters very much. When Daddy took my brother and I to get our Christmas tree we walked down through the woods. We saw a large red fox. He didn't see us and was playing among some little fir trees. We got a pretty green hemlock tree and it was fun trimming it. Wishing you all a happy New Year,

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Exhibition of American Primitives

The Mattatuck Historical society of Waterbury is announcing an exhibition of American primitives, which consists for the most part of the work of itinerant painters of Connecticut. To these there is added for purposes of comparison a small but particularly fine group of examples by the best of the earlier painters. In this group are included Copley, Earle, Sully, Waldo, West, Turnbull, Peale, Tisdale and others. The exhibition dates are from Jan. 16 to 30.

Palace Theater.

Bewildering situations involving a young American girl and a French youth who are locked together all night in a Parisian wax-works museum, form a part of the comedy which makes up the story of "Get Your Man," Clara Bow's latest Paramount picture which will be shown for the last time at the Palace theater today.

These complications are only the beginning of the humorous plot according to the management. As a result of these adventures in the museum, Clara Bow, the girl, and Charles Rogers, the man, fall in love. But Rogers is engaged, having been betrothed when five years of age by his father and the father of his fiancee. Miss Bow plans an elaborate scheme to break this tradional engagement.

During the night in the museum, the boy and girl come in contact with wax figures which walk, eye them in their love scenes, stage mechanical murders and lynchings, brandish swords and fall into their arms.

The wax figures are portrayed by the Marion Morgan dancers, in what is said by B. P. Schulberg, associate Paramount producer, to be one of the most novel exhibitions ever presented of tableaux and character body movements.

The story, which gives Miss Bow a part similar to those she played in "It," "Hula," "Mantrap," and "Rough House Rosie," was adapted for the screen by Hope Loring from the Louis Verneuil play. Miss Loring did the script for "It" and for "Wings" in which Miss Bow last appeared with Charles Rogers.

Strand Theater.

Yo-Ho, a story of pirates, of loot and stolen treasure, of mysterious tropical islands, of twin brothers and a girl who meet after years of separation. This is briefly the essence of "Breed of the Sea," showing tonight at the Strand. The picture is filled with the zip and tang of the sea; with the old spirit of adventure when men lived romance and made history. The role of the daring pirate who terrorizes the southern seas is played with tremendous realism and effectiveness by Ralph Ince, who also plays the part of the other brother who chooses the ministry as his calling. The story is a screen picturization taken from Peter B. Kyne's story of Blue Blood and Pirates. The cast includes Pat Harmon, Shannon Day, Dorothy Dunbar and Margaret Livingston.

Gold Struck is a complete weekly series story. The program is completed with an amusing Krazy Kat Cartoon.

Rummage Sale Friday.

To raise money to furnish the Woman's room, the Women's League of the Central Baptist church are holding a rummage sale all day Friday in Utley and Jones' old store on Main street. Any one who cannot take articles to the store Thursday please notify the chairman, Mrs. Henry E. Church and she will see they are called for.

Olympic Roller Rink.

A large crowd witnessed the couple race last Thursday evening. It was hotly contested from start to finish, there being four couples entering. Gladys Huntley and John Savage won by half a lap. The winners were challenged by Ruth Huntley and M. Falcone to a race Saturday evening and Miss Huntley and Mr. Savage won again. Tonight there will take place a popular race and Thursday night Manager Hendrick will have a country store that will be very amusing.

Broadway Theater.

No wiser selection than that of Marion Davies could have been made to play the role of Phoebe Throssel in Sir James Barrie's "Quality Street," which Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has made into a film play and which opened yesterday at the Broadway theater.

"Quality Street," known throughout the world as one of the best whimsical vehicles ever written has been endeared to the American public by Maude Adams, and more recently by Helen Hayes, both of whom played the role upon the stage which Miss Davies plays so well upon the screen.

The role demands a certain portrayal of the whimsical which not one actress in a hundred could offer with any marked degree of success.

It is to be hoped that Marion will be given more roles like it for the sake of picture-goers who, though many would deny it, appreciate a good portrayal of a classic role.

The Barrie vehicle gives Miss Davies ample opportunity to exercise her talents as a comedienne but at the same time it demands the pathos and drama in which this star is so rich.

On the stage are five good acts, with Rhea, Santora and Company in their offering, "Divertisements of Vaudeville," headlining. Other acts include "Wives vs. Stenographers," a little play for the tired business man, Wilkins and Reilly in songs and tunes, Darling and Clark who uphold the comedy end of the program and Holden and Graham in a novel offering, "The Land of Shadows."

Breed Theatre

Bessie Love and William Haines head the imposing cast of "Lovey Mary," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture directed by King Baggot, which comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow for two days only.

The picture is from the famous story by Alice Hegan Rice, author of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and is really a sequel to "Mrs. Wiggs."

The cast includes Mary Alden, Vivia Ogden, Martha Mattox, Jackie Combs, Freddie Cox, Gloria Holt, Mary Jane Irving, Annabelle Magness, Eileen Percy, Russell Simpson, Rosa Gore, and Sunshine Hart.

"A Sailor's Sweetheart," co-staring Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook, and directed for Warner Bros. by Lloyd Bacon will be the added attraction. Myrna Loy, John Miljan, William Demarest and Tom Ricketts are prominently cast. "A Sailor's Sweetheart" details the excrutiatingly absurd adventures of a wistful old-maid school teacher who suddenly becomes rich. John Miljan plays the sheik who pretends marriage, Clyde Cook the sailor who after being handcuffed for some wild hours to the lady, finally succeeds in cutting loose only to be re-hitched by matrimony. This is the funniest film of the year. The screen-story de luxe. The last word in tomfoolery.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Brown Hunter and a White Hunter

Nature's law—the law of strife—
Is everywhere the law of life.
—Mother West Wind.

Over in the Green Forest a hunter clothed all in brown came nimbly down the Laughing Brook. Of course, the Laughing Brook was frozen, for it was winter. Against the white of the snow that brown coat seemed browner than ever. A nimble little fellow was this brown-coated hunter. Can you guess who it was? It was Billy Mink. Of course, it was Billy Mink.

Billy sat down on a big snow-covered rock to do a little thinking. "Let me see," said Billy. "I wonder what I would like to eat now. I'm tired of fish. Besides, fish are not so easy to get these days. I'd like a little fresh meat. Yes, sir, I'd like a little fresh meat. I think a little fresh meat would do me good. I'm quite sure it would. I need a change. Everybody needs a change once in a while. Too much of thing, no matter how good it is, is—well, it is too much. Now, I wonder where I could get a meal of good, fresh meat. I'd like a wood mouse. I mean I'd like two or three wood mice. One mouse isn't much. A young muskrat would be a lot better—that is, there would be a lot more of him. I wouldn't mind a rabbit. Of course, a grouse would taste good, too. I can't seem to make up my mind just what to go looking for. I guess I'll just take a little trot around in the woods and see if I can find some tracks."

Billy Mink doesn't sit long at a time. No sooner had he made up his mind what he would do than he was off, bounding along through the Green Forest and using those keen little eyes of his for all they were worth. There isn't much that Billy misses. He is one of the smartest, slyest, quickest-witted hunters of whom I know.

Presently Billy came to some tracks in the snow. He stopped and looked at them. He did more than look at them—he smelled of them. An expression of great satisfaction crossed Billy's face. "Aha!" said he. "Jumper the Hare passed along here not very long ago. And Jumper wasn't in much of a hurry. He didn't have much on his mind. Certainly he wasn't worrying about anything. If he had been these footprints of his would be a great deal further apart than they now are. He was just hopping along comfortably. When Jumper travels that way he never travels far. I ought to find him before very long. And if I do find him and have any luck at all, he won't travel any more. My, a dinner of hare certainly would taste good! My, my, it's a long time since I've had a dinner of hare!"

"Aha!" said he. "Jumper the Hare passed along here not very long ago."

So Billy Mink traveled along a little faster than he had been going. He was following the footprints of Jumper the Hare. He was so intent on what he was doing and thinking of what a good dinner Jumper the Hare would make that he didn't notice a slim, trim form bounding along over the snow just ahead of him. He didn't notice that little slim, trim white form until a familiar odor tickled his nose. It was familiar because it was very like the scent he himself leaves wherever he runs. It was the scent of the Weasel family, to which Billy belongs. Then he looked up and saw just ahead of him a black spot. That is, all he saw at first. But that was all he needed to see. That black spot was moving. He knew it instantly for just what it was—the tip of the tail of his little cousin—Shadow the Weasel. Billy snarled. Instantly there was an answering snarl, and Shadow the Weasel sat up on his hind legs, just as Happy Jack Squirrel sits up.

HEALED HIS VARICOSE VEINS NO OPERATION

"For many years I suffered from varicose veins and to such an extent that in order to keep on my feet at all I had to have my legs continually bandaged. Doctors advised an operation as the only relief. About a year ago I heard of Rabalm. Although without faith in it at that time or any hope of help from any such source, I tried it, and had used it only a short time when I was relieved of the intense pain, and the bunches of knotted veins were almost entirely reduced. Today, one year after use of Rabalm, there has been no recurrence of varicose veins, although I am on my feet continually about my store. I am pleased to offer this testimonial that others who are suffering from varicose veins may know of this wonderful Rabalm." Mr. Henry A. Mayer, Groton 274 Washington Street, Gloucester, Mass.

Two sizes, 50 cents and $1.00 containing 3 times as much. RABALM is for sale by all druggists.

Guyon-McNamara.

A pretty wedding took place in St. Mary's Memorial church at 8 o'clock Monday morning when the pastor, Rev. William A. Keefe, united in marriage Catherine Margaret McNamara, daughter of Mary and the late George McNamara, of 244 Hickory street, with Joseph William Guyon, son of Theodore and Natalie Guyon, of West Warren, Mass. The bride was beautifully attired in yellow crepe de chine with hat to correspond and carried an arm bouquet of white carnations and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Mrs. Allen Peacock, attended her as bridesmaid and wore a gown of blue crepe de chine trimmed with rhynestones with hat to match. Mrs. Peacock carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Attending Mr. Guyon as best man was Octave Guyon, a brother of the groom. After the wedding ceremonies a reception for the members of the immediate families was held at the home of the bride. Both Mr. Guyon, who is employed by the United States Finishing company, as a dyer, and his bride, a graduate of St. Mary's school, have a wide circle of friends in their respective places of residences, who extend them their wishes for a happy married life. They were recipients of many beautiful and useful gifts including cutglass, gold and silver, checks of substantial amounts and pieces of furniture. Mr. and Mrs. Guyon left late in the afternoon for a two weeks' honeymoon trip, which will include visits to Springfield, Boston and New Bedford. On their return they will occupy a newly furnished apartment at 259 North Main street.

Mrs. James Kiley has returned to Boston after spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Desmond, of Cliff street.

New Year services were held Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox church, on Convent avenue, with Archpriest Richloff officiating with a large number of parishioners present. After the church services, 150 Sunday school pupils with their parents retired to the Sunday school room of the church where a pageant was given by a number of the pupils under the personal direction of Valentine Richloff. The angels were Mary Laput, Anna Bugel, Elizabeth Butka, Mary Shakon, Margaret Shello, Valentine Richloff; shepherds, William Laput, John McCouledge, John Laput, John Ovdevich, John Guromski, John Barnchick. A short sketch, "Two Russian Ladies Go to Market," was given by Mary Katurka and Margaret Shello, William Laput was market keeper. Poems were recited by Anna McCouledge, Zena Grumowski. Christmas Tree, by Anna Chernuk. The entire congregation rendered "America" in a pleasing manner, followed by three Russian songs. During the singing, Santa Claus made his appearance, which brought merriment to the youngsters. Santa was accompanied by two angels, who escorted him to the center of the hall. He gave an interesting talk to the children and parents about Christmas and why the parents should send their children to the Russian Sunday school. He said that school made the children stronger in their belief of religion, also making them better citiezns. Santa then distributed candy to the children, after which he made the children form a line and the choir sang Russian airs. Santa and the children marched around the assembly hall. Short remarks from the church committee and school committee were heard concerning the work of the church and Sunday school in the past year which proved a very successful year. The choir rendered several fine Christmas carols. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion. At the entrance two huge Christmas trees adorned the doorway while bunting, American flags and Russian flags were prominent. Evergreens and laurel were artistically placed with streamers of the Christmas colors, red and green.

NORWICH MILITARY COMPANIES MEET MOBILIZATION TEST SUCCESSFULLY

As a part of the test mobilization of the 43rd Division, national guard, the officers and men of Battery B, and First Battalion Headquarters and Combat Train, 192nd Artillery, C .N. G, were mobilized at the armory on McKinley avenue Monday evening. While not a part of the 43rd division, the 192nd Artillery which includes the two local units are attached to the division for administrative purposes.

The roll call was set for 8 o'clock and shortly afterwards the mobilization reports of the local units were sent by telegraph to the division headquarters. At 6.35 o'clock Monday evening 15 strokes were sounded on the fire alarm, this being the national guard mobilization signal, calling on all officers and men of the local units to report at once in uniform at the armory. The roll call at 8 o'clock resulted in the following reports:

Battery B, Capt. Charles Colt, total strength, three officers and 64 men. Total reporting, three officers and 56 men.

GIRLS' PROTECTIVE COUNCIL HOLDING STATE MEETING

The Girls' Protective council of Connecticut will hold its first state meeting in New London county in the joint meeting with the Social Workers' council of New London and Windham counties. There will be a luncheon at the Mohican hotel, New London, on January 17, at 1 p. m. Mrs. Fanny McMaster, the speaker of the afternoon, will talk on "How to Study Community Conditions". Mrs. McMaster was in the Chicago Juvenile Protective association for eight years and is now doing protective work in Boston.

The Connecticut Girls' Protective council has been recently organized by a group of protective workers for the purpose of creating a better understanding and closer co-operation between agencies doing protective work with girls and with the idea of putting over a state-wide educational program concerning the needs and aims of preventive and protective work with girls especially the development of protective care in every part of the state. Mrs. Ruth Roberts Mix, executive secretary of the Civic Protective association in New Haven, is state chairman. Mrs. Mix has spent four years at protective work in New York city and later established protective work for unmarried mothers in Toronto and has made a survey of the problem of the aged in Connecticut.

The council hopes to attain their objectives through various county committees, and has organized with a local committee in every county. This will be the first meeting for the New London county committee. Miss Betsey Mitchell of this city, chairman of this local committee, is inviting interested representatives from every town in the county to assist in organizing and developing protective care not only in the cities but in the rural communities as well. It is hoped that these county representatives will help to create a better understanding and closer cooperation between agencies and individuals doing preventive and protective work with girls and to arouse public interest and sentiment toward more vigorous activities and discussions of this vital community responsibility.

AGRICULTURAL DEPRESSION OVER IN CONNECTICUT

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 16—The "agricultural depression" seems to be definitely a thing of the past as far as Connecticut farmers outside the tobacco regions are concerned, according to figures which were made public today by Albert E. Waugh, instructor in economics at Connecticut Agricultural college. A study of the data shows that the non-tobacco farmers of Connecticut are receiving better prices for their products, as compared with pre-war price levels, than are the manufacturers of the country as a whole. Or in other words, the factory is no longer bringing in higher prices for its products than is the Connecticut farm. Connecticut farm price levels varied for the last five months from 52 per cent to 64 per cent above their pre-war average, or between the years 1910 and 1914, says Mr. Waugh, while non-agricultural products in the country as a whole have run from 51 to 52 per cent above their pre-war average.

"When the Connecticut farmer compares his price position with that of farmers in the whole United States he finds that he has made a 14 per cent greater price advance since pre-war times than have the farmers of other states," Mr. Waugh declares. "That is to say, while the Connecticut farmer in 1927 received prices 51 per cent higher than his average prices of 1919-1914, the farmers of the entire country received prices only 36 1-2 per cent higher.

"Now at last the Connecticut farmer is back to his relative pre-war position. He is still far better off from the price stand-point than are farmers in other sections, but even more important, his relative price position is now better even than that of producers of non-agricultural products.

"The figures quoted refer to prices only. They do not measure total farm income. They show that Connecticut farmers outside the tobacco area have increased the prices of their products more since pre-war times than have either the farmers or the manufacturers of the country as a whole. We have no index of total production with which to compare these figures to find whether or not total farm income has increased. The so-called "agricultural depression," however, is usually referred to as price phenomenon, and from this standpoint there is no longer "agricultural depression' in Connecticut."

BUILDING LOAN WILL PAY OFF SECOND SERIES

One of the interesting features of the annual meeting of the Norwich Building & Loan association, which is to be held this (Tuesday) evening at chamber of commerce rooms in the Thayer building, will be the payment of the maturing shares in the second series. These will be paid on the basis of $204.51 per share, par value being $200. The fact that the shares will be matured at a premium will be pleasing news to the shareholders in the second series and indicates the careful management that prevails in the affairs of the association.

In addition to the payment of the maturing shares the annual election of officers will take place and a financial report will be presented which will be indicative of the progress made by the association during the past year. The year 1927 was a most successful period in the affairs of the association, showing a healthy increase in membership and earnings which will permit the payment of a dividend of 6 per cent to all shareholders. Final announcement of the opening of a new series will also be made at the meeting which is expected to have a large attendance.

EXPECT $20,000 TO BE OPERATORS OF AUTOMOBILES

One fifth of the population of Connecticut will be licensed to drive automobiles during 1928, state motor vehicle department records indicate. The approximate number of operators will be 320,000, an increase over last year of 26,000, a gain in ten years of nearly 100,000 and in 20 years of more than 200,000. On March 1, last year, there were 292,253 operators, in 1918 there were 103,657 and in 1908 only 13,763.

Application blanks for 1928 renewal licenses were sent out Monday by the department to about 318,000 drivers who are expected to renew their licenses. Certificates now held will expire on February 29, and a new license will be required March 1. Examinations will not be given applicants who held operators' licenses during 1927. The renewal fee is $3.00, and payment by mail should be by check, money order or express order, made payable to the commissioner of motor vehicles.

As all records of license certificates are on file at the main office of the department in the capitol, persons making application for renewals at the branch offices must show a license for 1927, properly endorsed. All mail orders are to be sent to the main office at Hartford. The branch offices are at No. 323 State street, Bridgeport; No. 111 Goffe street, New Haven; No. 573 Bank street, New London; No. 27 Benedict street, Waterbury and No. 32 Atlantic street, Stamford.

There is no change in the application form from that of last year, the prospective drivers being required to answer the usual questions required by statute and department regulations. These include the name and address of the applicant, physical description, a brief driving record and a query concerning the applicant's knowledge of the laws of the state and rules of the road.

Formal notification is to be given applicants under 18 years of age of the state law which makes it illegal for them to drive a motor vehicle upon the highways unless the owner of the vehicle, whether it be the minor or some other person, has established proof of financial responsibility with the commissioner of motor vehicles, in accordance with the state statutes. Renewal applications of minors must bear the written consent of a parent or guardian.

LA FLAMME FUND INCREASED TO $150.25

There was instant response Monday to the announcement that The Bulletin would start a fund for the benefit of Kenneth La Flamme, the Montville young man who lost his sight in an automobile accident on Mohegan hill on Dec. 10. Contributions sent in added $50.25 to the $100 with which The Bulletin started the fund.

An indication of the appeal which the case of young LaFlamme makes to those who want to help him was given when one of the contributors through the Bulletin fund emptied his pockets and passed over $2 under signature "All I've Got."

The Norwich Bulletin.

Dear Sirs:

I am glad that The Bulletin has given me an opportunity to give even a little to help Kenneth La Flamme. There must be many in this city who like myself were filled with pity at this terrible accident to a boy just at the beginning of life.

The doctors who attended the boy undoubtedly know of many institutions where occupations are taught, and life is made as full and as cheerful as possible for the blind.

Believe me.

Yours truly,
MARY A. AIKEN.

The fund now stands as follows:

The Bulletin Co.	$100.00
Judge Allyn L. Brown	25.00

Farley of No. 12 A, Florence street, Hartford, engineer in the employ of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, fell from his engine near Taft's station about 6:10 o'clock Monday morning, suffering contusions of the back, arms, legs and left side and possible internal injuries. He was taken to Hartford by Agent A. D. Smith to have X-ray pictures taken.

Engineer Farley was driving a south-bound freight train from Worcester to New London and near the "cut" at Taftville the headlight went out of order. PAN-AMERICAN DELEGATES HELD INFORMAL MEETING

Agreement Reached Establishing a Rule of Public Committee Meetings and Plenary Sessions—The Motion Was Proposed by the Argentine Delegate and Seconded by Charles Evans Hughes For the United States—Decision Must Be Confirmed at the First Plenary Session Today—Only Formal Stop on Homeward Trip of President Coolidge Will Be at Jacksonville.

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The Argentine and American delegations took the lead today in disposing, in the first informal meeting of delegates before the first plenary session tomorrow of the Sixth Pan-American congress, of one of the admittedly thorniest problems confronting the conference.

Proposed by the Argentine and seconded by Charles Evans Hughes for the United States, an oral motion was approved today to make "open covenants openly arrived at" the keynote of the Sixth Pan-American congress by establishing a rule of public committee meetings and plenary sessions.

Today's meeting was held for an exchange of views between chiefs of missions here to agree upon procedure in conference and to lay a basis for concerted action regarding organization of the parley. Today's decisions must be confirmed by tomorrow's plenary session.

Losing no time in starting work after the festivities of President Coolidge's visit to Havana, chiefs of delegations found themselves in practically unanimous agreement regarding the beginning of the conferences, activities and the general policies to be followed in the conference as a whole.

The happy solution of the problem of public or executive committee sessions was hailed by all delegates as symptomatic of ease with which apparently difficult problems could be disposed of if goodwill were present and the accomplishment introduced a note of optimism into all forecasts as to the congress. It was pointed out that this was the first instance of complete publicity in a conference of this nature and it was recalled that this very subject gave grounds for much vivacious debate in the 1923 Santiago, Chile, congress, with subsequent criticism of the results obtained.

Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine ambassador to Washington, took initiative in bringing up the matter of open committee meetings for immediate discussion and determination. After the meeting he expressed great appreciation that Mr. Hughes, in the name of the United States delegation, had immediately seconded his motion, thereby adding the prestige of American approval and securing beyond doubt a majority for his motion.

PRESIDENT TO MAKE STOP AT JACKSONVILLE

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S SPECIAL TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—With the cheers of Havana still fresh in his memory, President Coolidge was homeward bound tonight on a schedule calling for his arrival in Washington early Thursday. Landing at Key West from the cruiser Memphis early this afternoon, he made an automobile tour of the little island city, then boarded his special train for the forty-hour run to the capital. With him were Mrs. Coolidge, Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg, and Secretary and Mrs. Wilbur.

The Memphis, which seven months ago brought Lindbergh, the flier, to Washington from Europe, was chosen by Mr. Coolidge for the crossing from Cuba in order that a transfer to tenders at sea might be avoided. The battleship Texas on which he sailed to Havana, cannot enter Key West harbor.

The crossing from Havana, made in perfect tropical weather, was faster than the trip going over. The Memphis was escorted by a fleet of six destroyers which later stood by and gave the presidential salute when Mr. Coolidge left his ship at Key West. Although it was a bright sunny day, the president rested indoors during the crosing, but Mrs. Coolidge came out on the deck to watch the crew release a navy bombing plane, just before docking.

During the morning, the ship's crew was assembled to hear a talk by the president, but Secretary Wilbur, with Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Wilbur standing by, spoke in place of Mr. Coolidge. He told the men that their training would serve them in good stead in civil life and referred briefly to the tragedy of the submarine S-4.

Pointing northward from Key West, the president's special journeyed over the famous bridge line which joins the group of tiny islands at the tail end of Florida. He had specifically ordered the schedule so arranged that he could see these links. Tomorrow morning he will make the only formal stop of his homeward trip at Jacksonville, where he will make an hour's tour of the city.

COURT OF INQUIRY AT SCENE OF S-4 DISASTER

BOSTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Weather and sea conditions off Provincetown today, similar to those on December 17 when the coast guard destroyer Paulding rammed and sank the submarine S-4 today sent the naval court of inquiry investigating the disaster back to the scene in an effort to obtain as graphic a picture as possible of the situation at the time of the collision.

Members of the court, headed by Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson, made the trip to Provincetown aboard the destroyer Mahan afte ra half day's session of the inquiry during which they heard the evidence of Thomas Eadie, diver who worked on the S-4, and that of Lieut. Thomas Fertner, commander of the navy tug Wandank, guard ship of the S-4, and of Lieut. Henry Hartley, commanding officer of the salvage ship, Falcon.

Today's trip to Provincetown was the second the court has made.

EVIDENCE DENIED IN CONTEMPT PROCEEDINGS

WASHINGTON. Jan. 17.—(AP)—More evidence which the government had considered important in its effort to connect Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates with improper surveillance of the Fall-Sinclair oil jury was denied a place today in the record of the criminal contempt proceedings against them.

The prosecution had planned to show that members of the jury were aware they were being shadowed and believed it was being done by government agents but when James J. O'Leary, assistant district attorney sought to draw such evidence from Edward J. Kidwell, Jr., one of the jurors, the defense objected unless it could be shown his consciousness of the surveillance was due to some act of the respondents. The court upheld this contention.

WHEREABOUTS OF MISS SMITH STILL UNKNOWN

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Divergent trails followed by investigators today left them still without solution of the question why Miss Frances St. John Smith, Smith college freshman and daughter of a wealthy New York broker, dropped out of sight last Friday and what became of her.

Of what appeared to be the two most promising lines of inquiry one centered in Deerfield, a few miles from this city, and the other pointed toward New York and possibly Philadelphia. The basis for the Deerfield search was the statement of George D. Wood, of Bristol, Conn., that a girl resembling Miss Smith spoke to him when he stopped his car in Deerfield on Sunday.

SAID EXPOSURE TO GASES MIGHT PRODUCE INSANITY

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Expert testimony was given by Dr. Howard Haggard, of Yale university, today in the so-called "Danbury Ice Box suits" as to the effect of certain refrigerating gases used in the type of apparatus which figures in this case. He informed Judge Allyn L. Brown, in superior court, that exposure to the gases which had been mentioned in the evidence might produce temporary insanity if inhaled.

The suits arose out of the death of Frank W. Force and his grandson, Warren Force Fromee and temporary insanity of Mrs. Clara Force, after a gas had escaped from a refrigerating apparatus in their apartment in Danbury on October 13, 1926. Dr. Haggard is a witness for the plaintiff.

McDonald, chairman of the Foreign Policy association, in discussing tonight before the conference on the cause and cure of war with the relationship of empires and dictatorships to the organization of world peace.

The movement for universal peace, he said, offers to Americans just such an ideal.

"Fascism and communism have much in common," he declared, in that "both are dictatorships contemptuous of democratice principles." But as regards their position in foreign affairs, he said, they differ.

More Than 200 Leading Musicians in Membership of New Organization.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—A songster's trust may be in the making. Merger of nine leading music bureaus controlling more than 200 musicians was announced today by Sigmund Spaeth, author, lecturer and music critic who becomes managing director of the new organization.

The merged bureaus will be known as the Community Concerts corporation and all their interests will be pooled to carry the best music into territory which in the past has had difficulty in obtaining the first class concerts.

Among the artists controlled by the corporation are Galli-Curci, Chaliapin, Jeritza, Elman, Hofmann, Poinselle, Bori, Schipa, Martinelli, Easton, Gabrilowitsch Levitski, Lhevinne, Ravel, the Flonzaley Quartet, the Paul Whitman orchestra, and the San Carlo Opera company.

"Already," said Mr. Speath, "invitations have come in from a number of cities to organize associations for them."

UNDER INDICTMENT FOR COPPER STOCK PROMOTION

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Accused of "ballooning" Idaho Copper stock, Walter H. Week, nationally known mining engineer who assisted in the survey of Yellowstone Park, George G. Rice, stock broker and editor of the Wall Street Iconoclast, and Walter K. Yorston, of Boise, Idaho, were indicted today on charges of using the mails to defraud.

The charges grew out of the promotion of the copper stock, allegedly through a publicity campaign conducted in Rice's publication. The indictments, returned by the federal grand jury after hearing evidence for six weeks, accuse the three men of holding options on 1,200,000 shares of stock at 10 and 12 cents and selling them as high as $6.25.

Rice is said to have placed the stock on the Boston curb market at 56 cents. Between March, 1925, and March, 1926, the stock went up to $6.25. Assistant U. S. Attorney Peck charged that this was accomplished by "ballooning" the stock to readers of Rice's paper.

De Forest Lockwood, city health officer, who declared that the prevalence of smallpox in surrounding municipalities constituted an emergency here.

Seek Change of Venue For Slayer of Child

Hotelling Has Agreed to Plead Guilty in Circuit Court Proceedings.

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 17.—(AP)—Adolph Hotelling, confessed slayer of Dorotry Schneider, will be speeded on his way to either the hospital for the criminal insane or a state penal institution, if possible without returning to Genessee county (Flint), Gov. Fred W. Green told The Associated Press today.

The state will make a motion in the Genesee circuit court probably Wednesday morning for a change of venue to Ingham or Ionia county, the governor said. Hotelling's presence will not be required. If the motion is allowed, the prisoner will be taken into court in one of these counties at once and, according to the governor, will plead guilty.

Once the anticipated plea of guilty has been entered a commission of three physicians will examine the slayer. If it is their determination that he is insane he will be sent to the hospital, otherwise to the state prison.

The governor decided that the change of venue will be requested at once, and that it now can legally be granted, as Hotelling was brought back to Genesee county for a brief arrangement late today.

The prisoner was rushed from the Ionia reformatory, where he has been sheltered since a mob threatened the Flint jail Monday night, to the farm yard of State Senator Peter B. Lennon, just inside the county line. Court was held with the prisoner, Justice Frank Cain and guards sitting in automobiles.

Hotelling waived examination, in compliance with the agreement that he will plead guilty in subsequent circuit court proceedings. He was bound over to circuit court without bail. Immediately the cars dashed back across the county line and started across country for Ionia.

He will be held in the Ionia reformatory, under heavy guard, until after his court appearance and the determination of the sanitary commission, the governor said.

PLAN TO REDUCE HIGH FREQUENCY RADIO WAVES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The short or high frequency radio waves, for years neglected by all but amateur operators, today assumed a position of importance in the development of air communication, with newspaper service and commercial senders urging the federal radio commission to allot them channels in the short wave spectrum.

Representatives of the telegraph Mackay system, the American Telephone and Telegraph company, the Radio Corporation of America and other commercial operators declared their large investments and pioneer work, as well as their public character, entitled them to early consideration.

Charles E. Hughes, Jr., for the Mackay system, said that "only by combining the facilities of the telegraph companies, can the short wave telephone and television developments be fully carried out. If newspapers wish to use the air they can use our service."

The merchant marine will need 50 short wave channels for its "life and death" needs, Frederick G. Simpson, of the Dollar Steamship Line, said, adding that short wave communication was essential to the ships at sea.

MAY EXTEND "PRICE WAR" RAGING IN OIL INDUSTRY

NEW YORK. Jan. 17.—(AP)—The "price war" now raging between the Royal Dutch Shell group and the Standard Oil Company of New York in India will immediately be extended if the American offers Russian oil for sale in other countries. This was made clear here tonight by Richard Airey, American representative of Sir Henri Dederding, head of the Shell interests.

"I do not anticipate a price war in any other country," Mr. Airey said, "but this is entirely in the hands of the Standard Oil Company of New York. If they ship Russian 'stolen goods' to any other country, the Royal Dutch Shell group will fight it."

OLD "HALF WAY HOUSE" DESTROYED BY FIRE

MANCHESTER, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Flames today removed the old "Half Way house," famous landmark of horse-trading at an estimated loss of $11,000. Four horses, and eight cows were rescued.

In the days when the "Half Way house" was noted as a horse trading center, it was supposedly located on the boundary line of the towns of Manchester and East Hartford with one house believed in each town and a semi-circular bar connecting the two.

FEDERAL INVASION OF STATES' RIGHTS OPPOSED

Spokesmen Urge Sharp Limitation of the Scope of Proposed Senate Investigation of the Financing of Public Utilities Corporations—No Opposition to the Inquiry If Kept Within Bounds of Questions Relating to Interstate Commerce.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Sharp limitation of the scope of the proposed senate investigation of the financing of public utilities corporations was urged yesterday before the interstate commerce committee by spokesmen for state commissions, investment bankers and owners of the securities of such companies.

Appearing at the second day of hearings on the Walsh resolution, Louis E. Gettle, chairman of the Wisconsin railroad commission, and William D. B. Rainiey, chairman of the Pennsylvania public service commission, protested against any invasion of states' rights by the senate in carrying forward its inquiry.

They told the committee they had no objections to the proposed investigation if kept within the bounds of questions relating to interstate commerce, but were opposed to any proposition that the state commissions had under their control.

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, author of the resolution proposing an inquiry agreed that there "should be no unwarranted interference with the state commission."

Gettle was emphatic in his view that there had been enough of federal regulation, declaring that the experience of his and other commission on interstate commerce commission control of the telephone and administration of the transportation act had made them "exceedingly apprehensive about federal regulation." The Wisconsin official conceded under questioning by the committeemen that there are eight or ten states which have no bodies regulating public utilities companies and he volunteered the statement that "many states do not have adequate regulation of the issue of public utilities' securities."

Speaking for the Investment Bankers' Association of America, Henry R. Hayes, its president, said he was not opposed to the inquiry, but ventured the opinion that if one were held it would show no need for federal regulation, but rather a need for broadening the powers of the state regulatory bodies.

While not opposed to the Walsh inquiry, Frederick C. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and chairman of the committee of the National Association of Owners of Railroad and Public Utilities Securities, said he felt deeply on the question of the course the inquiry should take.

Calling attention that the insurance companies, savings associations, colleges and other institutions in his association held $200,000,000 in public utilities bonds, Ecker said it was "important that the confidence in these securities should not be disturbed."

HOUSE VOTES AGAINST REVISION OF THE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Taking an exactly opposite position to that of the senate, the house today went on record against any downward revision of the tariff.

Upon motion of the republican leader, Tilson, of Connecticut, the house voted 183 to 164 to table the McMaster resolution declaring for a scaling down of "excessive" import levies. The senate yesterday approved the proposal, 54 to 34.

In the house, Representative Garret, of Tennessee, the minority leader, advocated referring the resolution to th ways and means committee, where tariff, like revenue legislation must originate.

On the vote, seven democrats, De Rouen, Kemp, Martin, O'Conor, Spearing and Wilson, all of Louisiana, and Casey, of Pennsylvania, joined with 176 republicans to table the proposal.

Twelve republicans and one farmer-labor Kvale, of Minnesota, voted with 151 democrats against the Tilson motion. The republicans were Beck, Brown, Peavy, Nelson, Lampert, Kading, Frear, Schafer and Schneider, all of Wisconsin, Christopherson South Dakota, and Clague, Minnesota.

While the McMaster resolution constituted an expression of views only and proposed no actual change in rates, its approval by the house would have shown that advocates of tariff reduction held a whip hand, in which event introduction of a bill to lower tariff rates might have been expected.

After the vote, the house plunged into one of the most heated and extended tariff debates in recent years.

Garrett took the floor to make what he described as "a plain statement concerning what had happened regarding the senate action on tariff."

"I think unquestionably that such a resolution being here, it is the duty of this house to have it considered in committee," he said. "Tabling the resolution means that those voting for the Tilson motion are against revision of the tariff."

VOTE ON SMITH'S SEAT IN SENATE COMING TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Setting itself to the task of finally barring its doors against Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, republican, Illinois, the senate today engaged in hours of acrimonious debate and heard a southerner raise his voice in defense of the south against the frequent charge of the disfranchisement of the negro.

A brief report from the special slush fund committee, embodying a resolution denouncing Smith's credentials as tainted with "fraud and corruption" and declaring his seat vacant, furnished the tinder for the verbal sparks that flew so thick and so long that a final vote on the resolution went over until tomorrow.

While few new thoughts were contributed to the discussion, there was present in even greater measure the bitterness that has marked consideration of the case since the senate committee uncovered contributions to Smith's 1926 primary campaign from Illinois public utilities officials aggregating more than $200,000.

Once more an implied warning to senators from the south that if they voted for the resolution to declare Smith's seat vacant their own seats might some day be put in jeopardy because of the general disfranchisement of the negro was hurled across the chamber, this time by Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania.

The tenacious Pennsylvania, who has the lead in defending the case of Senator-elect William S. Vare, republican, Pennsylvania, which is to be considered later, addressed his remarks to his distant cousin, Reed, of Missouri, chairman of the special committee which investigated the campaigns of both Smith and Vare.

SENATE SHELVES HOUSE TAX REDUCTION BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The $290,000,000 tax reduction bill passed before Christmas by the house was laid on a shelf in the senate finance committee room today until after March 15, but democrats announced their intention to ask to bring it out at an earlier date.

An effort by Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, to obtain immediate consideration of the bill today by the the committee was turne ddown by the republican majority on a strict party vote, 11 to 9.

Informed by Chairman Smoot of the committee that the administration desired to learn more about the tax returns for this year, which will be revealed partially when first payments are made on March 15, before having a reduction bill enacted into law, Senator Simmons replied upon defeat "you will hear more from us later."

FARM RELIEF DISCUSSED BEFORE HOUSE COMMITTEE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The much discused equalization fee of the McNary-Haugen bill, was upheld as a basis for a permanent farm relief system before the house agriculture committee today by Chester H. Gray, of the American Farm Bureau federation with the opening of hearings on means of remedying the agricultural situation.

Representing farmers' organizations throughout the middle west and west, Gray advocated the passage of the remodeled McNary-Haugen bill on the ground that it represented the best legislation obtainable. He suggested one important amendment, the creation of advisory councils in each of the twelve federal land bank districts in place of commodity advisory councils to be established at the discretion of the federal farm board.

This would mean, he said, that emergency situation in all commodities in the various regions would be met and dealt with by the councils of the respective regions. Under the present plan, separate councils are required as situations arise respecting any one commodity.

RADIO WILL BE USED FOR COMMERCIAL PURPOSES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Radio was pictured to congress today as a means of communication that rapidly is weaving itself into the very fabric of American industrial, commercial and agricultural life. The view at present, it was added, is only a glimpse of waht each day becomes an ever widening panorama.

Broadcasting was described as "only a very small part" of the picture and it was said that applications for ardio licenses were being received by the Federal Radio commission from railroads for "caboose to engine" communication; from chain department stores and from lumber companies desiring to keep in contact with men "away up in the hills."

Acting Chairman Caldwell of the commission, in appearing before the house appropriations committee on the bill carrying funds for the commission's activities, said that "in economic importance to this country, broadcasting is almost insignificant compared with the other radio situations."

The engine and tank, over 90 feet long, if fstood on end resting on the rear shackle of the tender, would only need four broom sticks tied to its cow catcher to reach to the top of the Congregational church spire, which measures 110 feet from the tower corner to the base of the cross on the top of the steeple. The weight in excess of 300 tons, recalls the old Pequot, Mohegan and Uncas. They were considered giants in their day, weighing around 40 tons, the local people's eyes popped out when the old locomotives snorted by with Dan Preston or Al Walker at the throttle, pulling 25 cars at 30 miles an hour. The new engine can "wheel" 125 loaded cars at 60 and maybe more.

How Often Should Bobbed Hair be Shampooed?

As often as a man's, say authorities, that is, about once a week. Use a good soap to banish germs with the dirt—the pine tar in Packer's Tar Soap (the standard shampoo soap for 35 years) is antiseptic. Use two latherings and rinse thoroughly with hot water. Massage, too, is helpful. You can get Packer's at any good drug or department store.

DANIELSON

AERIALS OVER POWERS MUST BE REMOVED

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 17—If you care anything about remaining among the living things on this mundane sphere, be careful about putting up radio aerials. If you do not happen to care, you may go as far as you like in taking silly chances stringing aerials over primary wires of the Eastern Connecticut Power company—but be careful representatives of the company do not catch you at it or find out about it, as they eventually are almost certain to do.

Manager William Sangster of the Danielson division of the power company said this morning that three dangerous aerials have been located and removed within the past few days. In each instance these were strung above and across electric light wires carrying 2,300 volts. Manager Sangster said that it was only by the greatest good fortune that the placing of these aerials was accomplished without causing the death of those who did the work. Anyone handling an aerial that comes in contact with one of these heavily charged electric light lines, even though the charged line be insulated, is just about certain to be shocked into Kingdom come. There is also the added danger that a contact between a heavily charged electric line and an aerial wire may be the means of setting afire any building to which the aerial wire is attached.

The lighting company's interest in calling attention to this matter is for the protection of life and property. A real danger exists. It can be guarded against. Only pure carelessness and recklessness can cause such serious happenings as are herein mentioned.

Stringing of aerials under a charged electric light also is dangerous, because there is always the possibility of the electric light wire snapping off in a storm or for some other cause and falling down onto an aerial. There is the same chance that an aerial over and across an electric light wire may break and fall on the charged line. The admonition is to keep aerials and electric light lines well away from each other, and never to take the chance of trying to toss an aerial wire over an electric light line. Three people were killed in one accident in Massachusetts recently in this identical manner.

National guardsmen—officers and enlisted men—discussed with interest today the results achieved in the test mobilization at the state armory last evening. In an unusual degree there was interest in the work done by the Headquarters detachment, special troops, Major E. L. Darbie in command, in getting reports from other units of the special troops in Connecticut and Rhode Island, consolidating them and rushing them on to the adjutant general's office at Hartford.

Special troops of the 43d division reporting to the Headquarters detachment here were the Military Police company of Hartford, with 33 present, 16 absent; the Headquarters company of Putnam, with 40 present and 10 absent; the Tank company of Branford, with 54 present and 4 absent and the signal company of Providence, with 70 present and 20 absent.

The roll of the Headquarters detachment here was begun on the first stroke of eight o'clock by Staff Sergeant Arthur Dupre. Sergeant Rene Caron was assigned to have charge of communications. Other members of the unit were all assignment to detail work of one kind or another, Captain Harold L. Greene being in charge of the compiling of reports.

Heavy rain during the early hours of this morning cleared up a condition that was promising last night to make the most difficult going of the winter season. As early as 8:30 last evening a storm that had started out with light snow changed to a freezing rain and it was no time at all before windshields of motor cars were filmed with ice, making operation exceedingly dangerous and difficult, and highway surfaces were glaring, slippery and hard to travel over safely. Only one minor accident due to the storm was reported here, a collision between two cars, one of which had been stopped on North Main street that the driver might clear ice from the windshield. The driver of another machine did not see it and the accident occurred, no one being injured and the cars not seriously damaged.

The death of Joseph L. Brennan, 65, occurred about noon today at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, where he had been a patient for about a month. The body was brought here this afternoon in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy.

Mr. Brennan was a native of England, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brennan, but he had lived in this country since he was a child and the greater part of his life in Danielson, Wauregan and Dayville, and was widely known throughout this section of eastern Connecticut.

A student for the priesthood during his young manhood, he had always shown special interest in the work of Catholic churches in this territory, and with is unusual talent as a singer and organist had on hundreds of occasions in churches hereabouts contributed to the musical part of religious services. He had in years gone by been organist of St. James' church here and at St. Joseph's church in Dayville. In earlier life he also had given considerable time to teaching in the parochial schol of the Sacred Heart parish at Wauregan. His ability to speak French with the greatest fluency especially fitted him for this work. Many of his years were given to the teaching of music throughout this section of the county.

He is survived by a sister, Mrs. Albert Grenon and by a brother, William J. Brennan, both of Danielson.

Banker, baker or society woman—no matter who we are—every one of us may offend unknowingly.

Frank facts ... about body odor!

IF YOU have ever noticed body odor in another—and who hasn't—you know how it makes you feel toward the offender.

Respect, friendship, love—all wither before this grave offense.

Yet we are all subject to body odor. And body odor is more noticeable in winter because we're indoors more—in badly ventilated rooms, stuffy theatres, crowded street cars.

We'd die if we didn't perspire. Even on cold days—our millions of pores continually give off invisible perspiration—often as much as a quart of waste each 24 hours.

Why we cannot tell when we offend

This body waste, in perspiration form, whether you see it or not, is odorous. And it plays no favorites. Bank presidents and laborers, society leaders and servants—all may offend unless they take precautions. And the pity of it is that we may be guilty—and not know it!

For when an odor becomes familiar, our own sense of smell becomes deadened to it. That's why fastidious people—who think they are safe—may often offend most.

Body odor more noticeable in winter—due to stuffy rooms—closed windows.

Pores give off as much as a quart of waste a day—even in coldest weather.

Now, a purifying toilet soap. Its antiseptic lather keeps you safe from body odor.

Don't take chances

Yet no one need risk embarrassing body odor. Just wash and bathe often with Lifebuoy, the deodorizing toilet soap.

The same antiseptic lather that helps protect health by removing germs—prevents body odor by purifying pores.

NORWICH SHOULD BE INTERESTED

Reports from Washington show that the Connecticut delegation is particularly interested in the effort that is being made by the American Legion of this state for the establishment of a hospital in southern New England by the veterans bureau. That is no more than should be expected and when they lend their efforts and influence they of course echo the sentiment of the people of their state and districts.

There are existing institutions which are taking care of the 400 Connecticut men who need such attention, but those institutions are widely scattered. They are far from home and away from their families. Possibly more would avail themselves of this hospital service to which they are entitled if a hospital was nearer home so that they might occasionally be visited by those near and dear to them.

It is well known that institutions get to the point where they are unwieldy and for that reasons the establishment of enormous institutions is opposed and smaller ones advocated. Better attention and service can be given where the number of patients is not too large.

Advocates of the hospital for Connecticut bear down heavily on the point that while Massachusetts has eight hospitals for the veterans Connecticut has none. If the 400 Connecticut men can be provided for in an institution within their own state it will of course mean just that much relief for other hospitals.

While this hospital is being sought for Connecticut, attention has been called to the fact that Rhode Island is likewise without such an institution. Should approval be given to the idea of a new hospital to take care of the sick veterans of the two states a logical location for such an institution would be in eastern Connecticut. That would centralize it for the territory that would be served.

But while efforts are being put forth for a southern New England, is Norwich giving the support to it that it should, and is it directing attention to the excellence of the many sites which are available in this vicinity? If not, it ought to be.

REGULATING INTERSTATE BUSSES

One step nearer the solution of an annoying situation appears to have been taken as the result of the report which has been made by a special investigator for the interstate commerce commission. This problem concerns the regulation of the auto busses operating from one state to another. This is interstate commerce, but authority for dealing with it was not conferred upon the interstate commerce commission when given its powers because such a problem did not exist at that time.

Ever since the extensive development of the auto busses there has been no question but what those rendering service within a state were subject to the regulation of the public utility commission, quite the same as railroads and trolley lines. But when such bus lines crossed into another state they became involved in interstate commerce and inasmuch as the interstate commerce commission was powerless to act regulatory authority was lacking.

In view of the situation where regulation certainly is needed and where more or less disposition has been shown to defy state authority, the national legislature has been urged to enact such legislation as would meet the difficulty. It is a case where it can be put in the hands of the federal commission, or where such commission can be authorized to delegate its authority to state commissions acting jointly.

In the investigation which has just been completed for the commission, the plan of having the commissions of the states in which the particular bus line operates deal with the regulation has been advocated. There would be the right of appeal from any such joint board to the federal commission. This appears to be a logical solution of the matter. At any rate it would mean making a start, and such a beginning has been needed for a considerable period of time. Bus lines operating between states should be subjected to regulation quite the same as those within and just as much as the railroads with which they compete. The finding of the special investigator is no more than what was expected.

CUT THE ACCIDENTS

How often do we give thought to the fatalities and the injuries that can be prevented? It is apt to be done just about the time some one is killed, just after someone has been injured, or when the causes of such affairs are under discussion, but there is a glaring absence of it on the part of those killed and injured as a matter of protection to themselves. And yet the losses that are involved in accidents are enough to cause the thoughtful to follow a different course.

In connection with a safety campaign which President Grace of the Bethlehem Steel corporation has announced for this year he points to the savings made in time and materials but declares that the desired goal will never be reached until there is a greater saving in life and limb.

While pointing out that remarkable results have been gained in this direction through the cooperation of management and employes, he points out that their "cost in compensating for accidents and their treatment amounts to more than $1,500,000 a year and the losses to employes and their families are even greater. Here is an absolute waste that benefits no one and which if eliminated will profit everyone."

Because compensation is to be had it is not to be inferred that employes are going to force themselves into accidents for what they get out of it for it doesn't make up for the suffering or the lost time, and if they but stopped to realize it means dollars in their pockets whenever an accident is avoided. Through proper effort the losses that are experienced might be greatly reduced. That might have its effect upon the many whose business is increased because of the work involved in attending to the injured, but that is nothing about which the employer or the employed have reason to worry. It calls for some thought, but no more than the person of ordinary intelligence can furnish, while the care that each should exercise is no more than everyone should force upon himself for personal protection. Accident prevention is desirable from any angle at which one may look at it.

THRIFT WEEK

Time has again rolled around to the point where we are once more in the midst of Thrift week. It is a matter that has justified the attention that has been devoted to it in the past and there is good and sufficient reason for devoting thoughtful attention to it now.

Thrift isn't something new. It has been practiced from time immemorial but perhaps not by as many as should have come under its influence.

Thrift means good husbandry, good management, the prevention of waste and there are countless ways in which the individual can employ it. It should have its part in every individual's planning, not to the point of being penurious and niggardly but with the idea of helping instead of handicapping oneself.

Many are those who have created hardships for themselves through the negligence of thrift. Through a failure to make provisions for a rainy day, to participate in a systematic saving, to take advantage of opportunities for making the best use of resources, many have learned too late the mistake of not giving some attention to thrift.

If Thrift week will result in corralling the attention of those who stand most in the need of it and will help to influence all in the proper employment of good husbandry, the effort will have been well spent. It is inevitable that the publicity given to it and the accomplishments that have been made through it will make such an impression that its value will be appreciated by a greater number each year. The upholding of the good example is beneficial in getting results. As thrift is commendable let's be thrifty.

NEW ENGLAND BUSINESS

Speaking to the American Association of Railway Advertising Agents at Chicago Tuesday, Secretary Williamson of the committee on recreational resources of the New England council declared that, while New England is, and always will be, primarily an industrial area, greater attention is being paid to natural beauties and attractions as a business proposition.

As the result of the advertising which it has done for itself and the expenditures that were made to broadcast it further, the estimate that $250,000,000 was realized from the recreational industry in the past year is probably within bounds, but it is no more than it should be and there is opportunity for boosting it still higher.

New England has been fully aware of its attractions for a long time. They exist in great variety. There's the scenery, the climate, the shore resorts, the mountains, the lakes and the means of transportation for reaching them, including a system of highways which invites automobile traffic in large volume. But while they have long been known, the importance of pointing them out to others has not been given the attention it deserved in the past. We have failed to appreciate the opportunity for doing a bigger business in this direction.

It was inevitable that there should be pleasing revelations from a financial standpoint, but now that the results from the development have indicated the possibilities New England, state by state, should make the most of the possibilities and become more widely known from a recreational as well as from an industrial standpoint. The greater development of the one should have nothing but a beneficial effect upon the other.

Plea For Connecticut Hospital.

At a hearing yesterday before the house veterans committee the Connecticut congressional delegates and representatives of the American Legion made strong pleas for the construction of a hospital in Connecticut where its 350 veterans in need of treatment for mental troubles could be cared for without leaving the state. Spokesmen for the delegation were Senator Bingham and Congressman Tilson and for the legion, Commander Richards, Past Commanders White and Cramer, Col. Delacour, Major Scarborough and Captain McCook. The arguments were along the line that as the laws of the United States required such patients to be treated in government hospitals, such hospitals should be so located that veterans need not leave their home state. When reminded that Massachusetts hospitals were not far away Senator Bingham raised a laugh by replying, "I am glad to say we are on friendly terms with that state but Connecticut is accustomed to old fashioned methods and we sometimes disagree with Massachusetts as is the case in the matter of waterways," thus alluding to the Ware-Swift river controversy. Attorney Averill was present at the hearing.

Col. Tilson argued that the need of the hospital was great and that it was the duty of the government to provide it for the Connecticut veterans, who had been second to none in their loyalty to the country.

The committee will take the matter under consideration and the Connecticut men are hopeful of a favorable report.

YOUR HEALTH

The Question of Clothes

By Beverley R. Tucker, M. D., Richmond, Va., Member Gorgas Memorial

Steam and hot water heat in the home and in public buildings have revolutionized civilized dress. Previous to the opening of this century, stoves and fireplaces were relied upon for heat, and the consequence was that when one's back was turned from the fire, or when one went through unheated halls, the chilliness was most uncomfortable, and to protect the body heavy flannels were used. Under this regime, we believe that colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and sinus infections were, however, less frequent than they are today.

There has been an increase in the conditions mentioned since the induction of steam and hot water heat, gas and electric stoves, and since the adoption of muslin and silk for underwear, short skirts and low necks in women's dresses. One now comes into overheated halls and rooms where one must, practically, wear a summer costume in a summer-house heat, and then when one goes out heavy, double-lined, woolen overcoats or fur coats are necessary, but these do not protect the feet and legs, which are most frequently clothed in silk hose and low shoes. It is the fashion, too, for women to keep the front of the neck exposed, even when riding in automobiles.

There is no objection in general to the modern style of dressing, provided one is sensible. By this we mean that it is all right to wear low shoes and short dresses if in winter the legs and feet are kept warm with wool hosiery, and there is no objection to low necks in the house, provided the necks are covered with a scarf or coat collar when one is exposed, but to keep properly dressed for modern conditions requires a great deal of care and attention, and it is necessary for one to have several weights of clothing and overcoats. It is dangerous to wear a fur coat on a mild winter's day, so that one gets into a perspiration, and then drive in a car, or becomes too hot and the coat is removed. Style is one thing, commonsense protection and adjustment to the atmospheric and modern heating conditions is another.

Much of the heat in our homes and public buildings is too dry and gas stoves frequently give off carbonmonoxide in poisonous quantities, and there is no moisture in the electric heat. In cases of this kind moisture should be provided by pans of water and the room should be ventilated by outside air which does not blow on one in a draft.

Intelligent attention to these matters will prevent much of the throat, nasal, sinus and lung troubles experienced by Americans. It is often said that exposure does not cause illness, but that illness is due to germs. This is true so far as it goes, but we must remember that germs, like the poor, are always present, but that exposure or overheating lower the resistance and render us susceptible to bacterial invasion.

Stories That Recall Others

Crowded.

Monday morning after the night before, two sleepy-eyed boys appeared at a factory to begin another week's grind. Before working hours each was telling the other about his week-end experience.

"How far did you drive last week?" asked one.

"Oh, about a hundred miles. How far did you drive, and where did you go?"

"I drove about 35 miles, but didn't get out of the city."

"What on earth did you drive around town so much for?"

"Looking for a place to park."

Exceptions to the Rule.

Mavoureen, age four, had never been entirely convinced on the household rule that she must comb her hair, regardless of the hurry in dressing to "go somewhere." The youngster frequently protested to her mother against what, to the youthful mind, was needless waste of time.

The other evening the family car was at a fire station just as an alarm came in. The sudden stop of the traffic, the quick scramble among the firemen, left the youngster speechless, but she soon came to normalcy by exclaiming: "Now, you see, mother, they didn't stop to comb their hair."

THE EVICTION

Out on East 57th street in Hyde Park's artists' colony a tiny studio is vacant.

Back in the days when rents were low, a brown-eyed, brown-haired woman with a soft voice and a manner which forbade questioning rented it without giving a single reference. The owner of the building never could account to himself for letting her have it, for it was a hard and fast rule of his never to give up a key to a tenant until he had first looked up some references. But—as he explained, or rather tried to explain to his indignant wife—"it would have seemed insulting like to ask her for references."

He never regretted his laxity, however, for she proved to be a good, permanent tenant. So permanent was she, in fact, that the building changed hands several times while she lived there. Year after year passed. Tenants came and went and though always pleasant to casual acquaintances among the "bohemians" of the neighborhood, she made no friends.

In those first years she dressed elegantly in a quiet way and she seemed to have the means to live well and to enjoy life in her own particular fashion. She attended classes at the Art institute and never failed to visit exhibitions at the different galleries. Often a taxi would come for her in the evening and she would return late, presumably from the opera or theatre. She dined regularly at a good restaurant in the neighborhood. Sometimes one or another of the colony would ask her to join them at a studio te or frolic, but she always refused, gently but firmly.

Of late years, however, as rent and other expenses increased, her clothes grew shabby. No taxis came to take her to the loop, and no one knew where she dined, for it had been many months since she had entered her favorite restaurant.

And then—one day—two deputy bailiffs began to carry out the contents of the tiny studio and pile them upon the curb. Just a pile of old miscellany—the treasures accumulated through the years and kept so closely guarded from the eyes of curious neighbors—lay exposed in all its pitiabl. shabbiness to the gaze of passers-by. Books, paintings, odds and ends of furniture, a few dishes and—a girl's laugh rang out from the crowd—a pair of No. 3 high-buttoned shoes on a rickety chair.

The crowd overflowed on to the drive and as a big car with a California license plate drew up and stopped, the policeman stepped up to clear the way.

"What's the trouble, officer?" asked the driver of the car.

"What became of the woman?" asked the man in the car.

"Search me! She left, I guess, before the bailiffs got here."

Through an opening in the crowd the man in the car obtained a clear view of the pyramid of possessions. He stared at a painting that topped the pile, then hurriedly stepped out of the car.

"I must make some inquiries, officer. Do you know the name of this lady who has been evicted?"

"No—I don't—but there's the owner of the building. He can tell you all about her." The man, addressed as owner, was visibly impressed by the stranger and began to make excuses for evicting his tenant.

"She owes me two months' rent—and I'm a poor man. I——" The stranger quickly pulled out a bulging wallet and paid the man the amount named.

"Have these things carried back into the studio immediately," he ordered. In his excitement the owner began to carry the things in himself—then, recovering his dignity, he called a boy to finish the job.

In a sandwich shop around the corner a pale, poorly dressed woman paid for her scanty meal and walked out of the shop homeless and penniless. She dreaded to reach the corner where she must face the sight of her poor possessions spread out on the street for the ridicule of the world.

But—when she reached the corner she saw her things being carried back into the house. She approached uncertainly, and then she saw the big car and in it a big man holding a painting of himself in his youth—the painting which had been such a success that she had joyously chosen a career instead of his love. The career had ended where it had begun, for long ago she had found out that it had been love that had lent skill to her hand.

The big car sped away from the curious throng that lingered.

"But—Alex," she was saying, "I must lock the studio door."—Chicago News.

Former Norwich Leaders

Capt. Loren A. Gallup.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Sept 28, 1896)

Capt. Loren A. Gallup of this city died in Brooklyn, N. Y., Saturday afternoon.

Loren Aborn Gallup was born at Poquonock Bridge, Groton, October 13, 1838, the son of Franklin and Hannah (Burrows) Gallup. He was descended from English ancestry and was proud of being able to trace his direct lineage on the paternal side to the time of King Edward IV., 1465, and on the maternal side to 1634. The Gallup family in the west of England is mentioned as very ancient, the chronological records of which are preserved in the Harlean Society of the British museum. The family estates have been held in Netherby, County Dorset, for hundreds of years continuously by each succeeding generation.

His ancestor in this country, Capt. John Gallup was a soldier under Lord Thomas Fairfax in the Netherlands and came to this country in company with Capt. John Mason, the first deputy governor of Connecticut and the first white settler of Norwich. They came with the Massachusetts Bay colony in 1630. The pioneer Gallup was prominently identified with the early settlement of Boston, as appears by official records. During the colonial and revolutionary history of New England the descendants of Capt. John Gallup took an honorable part in the Indian wars, in naval conflicts and in the revolutionary struggle.

Capt. Gallup was educated in the public schools of his native town, and afterwards entered Wesleyan academy at Abraham, Mass., where he graduated in 1863. For some time he held a business position in New York city, and later came to Norwich by invitation of the late Charles N. Farnum, entering his employ as bookkeeper and salesman. Mr. Farnum dealt in leather belting, hose, lime and cement.

Mr. Gallup enlisted as a private in Comp. F, Twenty-sixth Connecticut infantry, at Norwich, on August 30, 1862. On Sept 26 he was commissioned first lieutenant, and on the twenty-third day of the same month he was made captain. He held this office until the expiration of his term of service, August 17, 1863, when he was honorably discharged in this city.

In August Gov. Buckingham commissioned Capt. Gallup to visit the hospital of the south and southwest to look after the interests of Connecticut soldiers. He later was engaged with the late Col. Joseph Selden in re-enlisting the veterans of the Ninth, Twelfth and Thirteenth regiments, Connecticut volunteers.

In 1865 he became a member of the firm of L. W. Carroll & Co., the other partners being L. W. Carrol and E. P. Jacobs.

In 1877 he went into the wholesale grocery business with Gilbert L. Hewitt, the firm name being Gallup & Hewitt. In 1883 Mr. Hewitt retired, and since that date Capt. Gallup has conducted the business alone at 31 Water street, where he was employed when he first came to Norwich.

Capt. Gallup always manifested a deep interest in church work, and had been a member of the Central Baptist church since 1859 and treasurer of the society since 1865. He was also one of the deacons.

On October 5, 1864, he married Miss Elizabeth Hooker Kinney, daughter of the late Mason Kinney, by whom he had four children. Besides his wife, two sons and a daughter, he leaves a father and mother, who reside in Groton and five sisters.

CHILD TRAINING

BEING FAIR TO THE CHILD

Ruth Valerie

Elizabeth was a little girl who was brimming over with high spirits and the joy of life. One day when she was about three years of age, on being corrected by a maid for making a room very untidy, she gave a witty but very saucy reply. This was received with shouts of laughter from the family, the members of which repeated it in the presence of the child to all who came to the house. Delighted with the result, Elizabeth never lost an opportunity for a "smart" answer. For some time these sayings continued to be considered remarkably brilliant by her parents and were duly repeated to all who would listen. She was a bright child and was encouraged to "show off" by reciting very dramatically, dancing and playing the piano, and later the violin. It was not long before she began to expect a great deal of attention, delighting in flattery, and consequently her manner soon became objectionable.

One day after giving what she considered a clever back-answer to her mother who had corrected her, she was astonished and mortified to receive a stinging slap in the face. Seething with a sense of humiliation and injustice, she asked the reason and was told she had been very rude. As she had answered only as she had always been encouraged to do, she was quite at a loss to understand the sudden change.

From this time on the slaps became very frequent, and were sometimes administered in the presence of other members of the household. Often the child had no idea she had been rude, and she continually smarted under a keen sense of injustice. Almost unconsciously she drifted away from the mother she had hitherto adored. She was hurt and humiliated repeatedly by having her shortcomings related to relatives and guests, who now condemned her as much as they had formerly applauded her.

"Girls are far more troublesome than boys," the mother would complain, "I'm sure I don't understand my girl; she has changed so. She used to be such a bright happy little thing."

Hearing the remark so frequently the child unconsciously adopted a pose. She was "misunderstood." She became sulky and morbid. The rift between herself and her mother widened, until at an early age she left home, and struck out for herself. She was decidedly gifted and was able to do a dozen things brilliantly but her training had been superficial and she found herself unable to turn any of her accomplishments to a profitable account.

She married while very young. Her own home life still being vivid in her mind, she determined always to play fair with her own children. Her second daughter was named for her, Elizabeth, and developed characteristics so similar to hers that the unfoldment seemed like a repetition of her own childhood. She realized that great care and sympathy were needed to bring out the finest and best in her. The child's quick wit was often directed against herself. Often when corrected little Elizabeth would insist she had not meant to be rude, and the mother knew the child was speaking the truth. Very gently she would point out the mistake of making smart answers at other people's expense, and would teach her the respect due to older people. It took years of careful watchfulness and patience to develop the unaffected, charming Elizabeth that so many people later admired. Those years bound mother and daughter very close together. They were happy years and their happiness endured.

Little Talks on Thrift

WHAT $10 MEANS.

"Ten dollars doesn't mean much to you but it means a lot to me."

This statement was made recently by a man of great wealth to a young man just entering on his business career. While it was intended, in a way, as a sly bit of humor, it was not without the purposeful suggestion that no man can ever afford to be careless in money matters.

The elder man had come to the United States as a poor immigrant at the age of 16. When he landed at the port of New York he had just one dollar in his pocket. He has since built up a great fortune through honorable means. Needless to say he understands thoroughly the value of thrift. That is why he has a keen appreciation of the value of money. To him ten dollars is a sum not to be wasted.

In the mind of the younger man, ten dollars meant little or nothing. It would be foolish, according to his philosophy, to worry if it were wasted.

If he ever succeeds in life, it will be necessary for him to get out of that way of thinking.

If he can bring himself willfully to waste ten dollars, without any qualms, he can with equal equanimity waste time, health and other resources. If he should ever be entrusted with large responsibilities, the little leaks, the little shortcomings, the little instances of careless thinking and indifference to small matters, will bring about his failure.

The man who succeeds in the business world must have an appreciation of small values as well as large ones. This does not mean that he must lead himself down with details or acquire a miserly and avaricious attitude. But he must learn to abhor waste. He must learn that the little instances of waste have the same effect on a business or on one's personal affairs as lack of oil has on a piece of machinery.

Within the meantime of true thrift, no sum of money is so small that it can be wasted wilfully.—American Society for Thrift.

The first nonstop transatlantic flight was accomplished in a Vickers-Vimy bomber by two British fliers, Capt. John Alcook and Lieut. Arthur Brown, the distance of nearly 1900 miles from St. John's Newfoundland, to Clifden, on the west coast of Ireland, being covered in sixteen hours and twelve minutes, on June 14-15, 1919.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Hunters' Quarrel

Quarrelers but little gain
Save to give each other pain.
—Old Mother Nature.

Shadow the Weasel is hardly half the size of his cousin, Billy Mink. But that makes no difference to Shadow. I don't suppose that Shadow really knows the meaning of the word "fear." There are enemies he has to look out for, as for instance Hooty the Owl and Reddy Fox, but even in the presence of these enemies he has no fear, in the meaning of the word as other little people understand it. So, when Shadow discovered that Billy Mink was right behind him he was not afraid. He was simply angry.

"What are you snarling at?" demanded Shadow.

Billy Mink's eyes blowed red. He drew back his lips so as to show his glistening white teeth. "What are you following my hare for?" he demanded.

"Your hare!" snapped Shadow. "Your hare! How do you get that way?"

"Yes, my hare!" snapped Billy Mink. "I've been following that trail for a long way and you've only just picked it up. Now get out of my way and go about your business!"

"Tut, tut, Cousin Billy!" cried Shadow in a most provoking way. "This is a free country. You may have found this trail before I did, but I got in on it ahead of you. So supposing you forget it and go off about your own business. That hare is mine."

"Yours!" snarled Billy. "Yours!" "Why, you little pinch of nothing, it's mine!"

"Let's see you get it!" cried Shadow. "Come on, you brown-coated thief, let's see you catch it! I'll show you whose hare it is!"

Then Shadow the Weasel spat at Billy Mink and Billy Mink spat at Shadow the Weasel, and each called the other bad names. Three times Billy Mink jumped at Shadow and each time Shadow wasn't there when Billy landed in the snow. It was a most unpleasant quarrel. They quarreled so insistently and persistently that they actually forgot what they were quarreling about. That is, they forgot Jumper the Hare. You see, they were having a good time. Some people never do have such a good time as when they are quarreling. I don't understand it myself, but it is so.

Shadow the Weasel declared that he wouldn't get off that trail for Billy Mink and Billy declared that he wouldn't get off that trail for Shadow. So there they were, not getting anywhere at all. Each was determined that the other should not have Jumper the Hare. Each claimed that Jumper was his. And all the time neither had caught Jumper. It was such a silly quarrel. Yet it was a mighty good quarrel for Jumper the Hare. Shadow and Billy were getting nothing out of it but angry feelings, but Jumper the Hare was getting a great deal out of it. He was saving his life. So, after all, it does happen that sometimes some good can come of a quarrel.

MRS. BELLE THOMPSON
3101 E. 44TH ST., EAST LAKE, TENN.

Springtime streamed in through the open windows. The green fields of Georgia were basking in the sunshine. Somewhere a bird was trilling. It was a day to be happy.

But the pale woman at the table sighed and pushed away her plate. Nothing tasted right. She couldn't eat much. She couldn't sleep well, either. She was so weak, it was hard to do her work. When the baby cried, she wanted to cry, too.

She had not been well for four years. Her husband watched her with a man's helpless expression. But his mother knew a remedy.

"My mother-in-law," says Mrs. Belle Thompson, 3101 E. 44th St., East Lake, Tenn., "told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I took six bottles of the Vegetable Compound. I could sleep and would get up in the morning singing and feeling fine. I am the mother of three children, and always after the babie came had to take treatments, but I can truly say that this last time I have only used the Sanative Wash. does more good than the treatments. It keeps me on my feet to care for my children and do most of my work. I feel it my duty to let you know how both of the medicines have helped me."

Another Happy Woman

"I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the little books you give away and began to take the medicine. After the first few bottles I began to feel better and could eat better and had fewer headaches. I feel like a different person. At anytime that I don't feel good I take the Vegetable Compound again, as I always keep a bottle on hand. You may use this letter for every word is true. I will answer any letters sent to me."—Mrs. Jennie Bollerman, 611-11th St., Union City, N. J.

Norwich, Conn.

Mr. E. O. Rodier, President Norwich Building & Loan Association.

My Dear Mr. Rodier

As the Norwich Building and Loan association is to open a new series I want to express my appreciation of what the association is doing, in a practical way, for the upbuilding of the community by furnishing the means for increasing home ownership and thereby making Norwich a better city to live in.

Norwich, like other communities, is striving to increase the number and the size of its industrial organizations. That means greater prosperity for the community. It is useless, however, to expect industrial expansion unless we are in a position to furnish comfortable homes for the people already within our borders. In every community there is an urgent need for some agency that will make it easier for the earnest home seeker to build or buy his or her own home. That agency exists in the form of the Norwich Building and Loan association. It is purely a local organization, managed by Norwich men, who without thought of financial compensation give freely of their knowledge and experience to the affairs of the association. It includes on its membership roll the names of men and women who have worked hard for the best interests of the city and I firmly believe that all the citizens of Norwich should get behind the association and endeavor to promote, in every way possible, its development as a community asset.

Very truly yours,
MILO R. WATERS,
Mayor of Norwich.

John J. O'Rourke,
Edward Chappell company,
Norwich, Connecticut.

As I understand it the Building and Loan association provides a means by which people in more moderate circumstances may purchase or build a home. This is done by making a larger loan than can safely be made by the banks and by providing for easy payments over an extended period.

This is certainly a helpful activity in that it encourages systematic saving for a worth while object. Needing but a relatively small start toward the project, many more people can, through this means, own their homes. That community which has the largest number of home owners has the maximum of substantial self respecting citizens having a real interest in their town and in the conduct of its affairs. The home owner is the foundation upon which rests the town's stability and the greater his number, the firmer is that foundation.

H. D. LARRABEE,
President Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Ernest O. Rodier, President,
Norwich Building & Loan Association.
Thayer Building,
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Mr. Rodier:

I have recently had an opportunity of looking over your latest statement, and may I congratulate you upon the success you and your associates have made of the Norwich Building and Loan association's plan and program during these recent years.

I am pleased to learn that you are about to issue your twenty-sixth issue of shares and I trust that a very generous response will be made by the citizens of Norwich.

Such an organization as yours is of real benefit to the building operations in our city, and is of untold value to many seeking to purchase homes for themselves and their families.

Yours very truly,
JAMES L. CASE,
Realtor.

Norwich, Conn., Dec. 27, 1927.

It is a pleasure to pay tribute to real worth, and so I am glad to say a good word for the Norwich Building & Loan association. There is a difference between having a home and owning a home. Nearly every man is trying to save money and the chances are that, if he is not already a property owner, his one great incentive is the laudable desire to own his home.

The Building & Loan association exists very largely, not only to help a man systematically and consistently to accumulate money for this purpose, but to enable him to get the very best returns for his money along these lines. It is preeminently the working man's friend, and, as an employer of labor, I heartily recommend it and its advantages to all employees.

JAMES M. MORTON.
Agent of the Norwich & Winchester Mills of the American Woolen Company.

The Building and Loan association as a means of systematic saving is, I am sure, not fully appreciated. The share holder plans to meet the payments each month as they become due, and thus by small amounts a certain sum is accumulated that otherwise would not have been set aside and then you have the earnings of that saving added. The great value of insurance is the small weekly payments that by themselves could do so little in the home when sorrow comes, turn out to be so great a value as the beneficiary receives the reward of careful planning and forethought.

Investing in the Building and Loan association is coming into that family of just common every-day folks, many of whom have to plan carefully to make both ends meet, but who feel they must, when possible, set aside just one or two share values per month where it may grow in safety to meet any need that may arise. We can, in the Building and Loan association, offer you a safe and convenient method of systematic saving.

July, 1927, the first matured shares were paid the shareholders by this association and they each received as reward for systematic saving of one dollar ($1.00) per month for 12 years, the sum of $205. The 26th series is now open and we invite you to a part in this convenient systematic method of saving.

ROBERT McNEELY,
A Charter Member.

WIFE GRANTED DIVORCE FOR INTOLERABLE CRUELTY

After several conferences and partial trial of the contested divorce suit of Roberta Palmer Lamphere against Charles E. Lamphere, both of Mystic, in the superior court, Judge C. L. Avery declared a recess late Tuesday afternoon and called Mr. and Mrs. Lamphere into his room for further conference. Mrs. Lamphere was the only witness called to the stand to testify.

The result was that Judge Avery granted Mrs. Lamphere a decree of divorce on the grounds of intolerable cruelty, gave Mr. Lamphere the custody of the oldest daughter Helen, and Mrs. Lamphere the custody of two other daughters, Mary and Phebe. Mr. Lamphere is also ordered to pay $10 a week for the support of each of these daughters.

The couple was married Feb. 18, 1911. Mrs. Lamphere charged intolerable cruelty since July 1, 1926 and sought the custody of the three daughters and alimony on the grounds that her husband was worth $25,000.

Attorney G. C. Morgan and B. H. Hewitt were counsel for Mrs. Lamphere, Attorneys H. W. Rathbun and Gallagher for her husband.

SENT TO STATE HOSPITAL FOR FIVE YEAR TERM

On the grounds of insanity, Edward McClue, 26-year-old World war veteran, of 112 Howard street, New London, was acquitted by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the criminal superior court here Tuesday on a charge of indecent assault, alleged by the state to have been committed by him upon a seven-year-old girl in New London on Dec. 1, 1926. Judge Avery, upon the recommendation of State's Attorney Arthur M. Brown, ordered McClue committed to the state hospital for the insane at Preston for a minimum term of five years.

McClue pleaded not guilty to the charge, but after Detective Sergt. Nelson S. Smith of the police force and Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, had testified, the trial was halted and after a conference between the state's attorney, Public Defender Charles Stewart of Norwich, who appeared for McClue, and Judge Avery, State Attorney Brown addressed to the court his recommendation that the youth be committed to the insane asylum.

WILL SELL PORTION OF G. & S. ROAD TRACKAGE

Arthur M. Brown, trustee under second mortgage bonds, is to sell at public auction to be held at the state treasurer's office at Hartford on Feb. 14, one mile of track and property of the Groton & Stonington Street Railway Co., between Mystic and Old Mystic, which was abandoned some time ago.

As trustee he may use his own discretion regarding the selling inasmuch as section 2 of article 6 of the mortgage provides that in case of default of any interest on it for a period of 90 days the property may be sold. He said that he thought the sale would bring less than $1,000.

WOMAN'S CITY CLUB HAS BUSINESS AND LECTURE

The regular January meeting of the Woman's City club was held Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel with a large attendance of members. The meeting opened at 7.30 o'clock with a short business session at which the president, Miss Marion L. Bishop, presided. The secretary's report was read by Mrs. Geraldine Barnett and was accepted, as was the report of the treasurer, Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert. The civic chairman reported for her department as follows: In regard to the sanitation committee's programme, Mr. Robbins, of Hartford, she announced, will be the speaker at the January round table of the club.

This (Wednesday) evening, Mrs. John L. Buell, a speaker of national note, will address the round table for the study of illiteracy, on the subject of "The Menace of Illiteracy." Child study groups will conduct round tables in January and February and at the latter time Miss H. Krutcher of New Haven will be the speaker.

The preservation of the pine trees on the military highway has been one of the most agitated subjects in the club of recent weeks. Nine women from the club, upon visiting and conferring with State Highway Commissioner MacDonald at Hartford, found that the only trees to be sacrificed in the improvement of the military highway, near the Norwich state hospital, are on the curve directly south of the hospital. It was found that 12 trees there must of necessity be removed. The information was also given that $185,000 was spent last year by the state in tree preservation.

Miss Bishop announced that Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham has been appointed corresponding secretary to take the place of Mrs. Levine, resigned. Advance publicity concerning the club meetings may be usually found in the announcement columns of The Bulletin, she announced. Other information of value of the club members is posted on the bulletin board in the club room. There were two five minute speakers. The first speaker was Mr. MacMillan, who is in charge of the Norwich Retail Merchants' bureau campaign. He said that much of the organization work in this country has been done by the merchants. They must consider the wishes of the customers, provide high quality goods and seek to meet the needs of the public. The merchants' bureau here has arranged for Dollar day sales, Suburban day sales, etc. It guards the customers and merchants through developing more truthful advertising and by cooperation with the credit bureau seeks to help both groups.

This is a period of surveys, he said, and we now need a trade survey. He spoke of the present campaign of the merchants' bureau. He spoke of the industrial survey which is now being made by the chamber of commerce and told of the plans for a sales survey.

Mrs. Aurin Payson, accompanied by Mrs. Charles A. Saxton, pianist, entertained with a group of three vocal selections and was forced to respond to an insistent encore.

The second five minute speaker was Miss Bernice Willey who spoke on the night schools of Norwich. Miss Willey gave an outline of what is being done in the local night schools. She stated that the night schools are held under the direction of the state board of education and are supported partly by the state and partly by the town. The local night school opened last October with four classes, three for foreigners and one class known as a general class. There was then an enrollment of 40. Now there are eight classes with an active membership of 140 persons. English is one of the main objectives.

The chief need of the foreigner is to have a working knowledge of English, she said. We also emphasize cooperation and service. The night school teacher has a difficult task. Comprehension comes first. Citizenship is not forced on them. We try to lead them to a desire for citizenship, she said. Miss Willey closed her talk by extending to the club members an invitation to visit the night schools and see for themselves what is being accomplished.

The speaker of the evening was Dean Irene Nye of Connecticut college. The subject of her lecture, which was illustrated by a number of stereopticon slides, was The World of Homer.

Who was Homer? she asked. According to tradition he was a blind beggar, who some 3,000 years ago, wandered about the Greek lands, playing his lyre and singing his wonderful poems, The Iliad and The Odessy. They are the basis of the literature of Italy, Spain, France, England and America. No other book, except The Bible, has so influenced all the literature we know.

Dean Nye's address was illustrated by stereopticon views of relics of the Homeric period. The views shown included pictures of ancient jugs, jars, frescoes, glimpses of the ruins of palaces in Crete and pictures of the reconstructed palaces unearthed by scientists. There were also shown slides of golden cups, beautifully engraved, engravings picturing the life and customs of the people of the Homeric days and much other instructive information regarding life in those days was gleaned from the screen. The stereopticon was operated by Louis Waldren.

The address was given under the auspices of the literature department of the club, of which Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn is the chairman.

EXHIBITS WEBSTER PICTURE ON ORATOR'S BIRTHDAY

In recognition of the birthday anniversary of Daniel Webster, who was born Jan. 18, 1782, there is placed on display this (Wednesday) morning in the window of the Butts Art and Gift shop on Broadway a rare print of this greatest American orator, who is famed as the expounder and defender of the constitution and the Union.

This rare and excellent picture of Webster is owned by and adorns the library of William H. Shields.

The picture is a photograph from the original picture many years ago in the possession of Charles A. Stetson, who was proprietor and manager of the Astor house, the most famous hostelry ni New York city in the first half of the 19th century. Webster always stopped at the Astor house and was a great friend of Stetson who always managed to have rooms reserved for Webster no matter how crowded the house might be.

In the Harvard group of the seven great orators of the world, Webster is given a place, ranking with Demosthenes and Chrysostom of Greece, Cicero, the Roman, Boussuet of France, Burke and Pitt of England.

The Webster family had a connection with Norwich, which probably few of the present day know about. The great orator had a son, Fletcher, who was a colonel in the 12th Massachusetts regiment and was killed in the battle of Manassas in Virginia. Fletcher's daughter married James D. Day, a Norwich man, who had the title of Chevalier by bestowal of the king of Italy. Chevalier Day's father was Canut. James L. Day, who, before and at the beginning of the Civil war, was the captain and owner of fine steamboats on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, but his home and residence was in this city in what many will remember as the old Slater mansion on Broadway. This mansion house was built by Charles W Rockwell, from whom it passed into the ownership of Capt. Day. It later became the home of John F. Slater, who was succeeded by his son, William A. Slater, who eventually sold the big Slater property which included the magnificent mansion house and the entire plot between Broad street and Slater avenue.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

JIM THORPE'S WORLD'S FAMOUS INDIANS TONIGHT AT PLAINFIELD

Jim Thorpe, the big Carlisle Indian athlete, who startled the athletic world with his prowess, and who was recognized as the world's greatest all-round athlete several years ago, brings his World's Famous Indians to Plainfield tonight to oppose the Plainfield Pros. Thorpe has had a hectic life but he is still a big drawing card and his reputation as an athlete will stand for many years. He has banded together one of the fastest all-Indian teams in the country and a team that plays to packed houses in every town in which they play.

His band of warriors who will be on the floor tonight are all former Haskell Indian stars. Jess Parton and Dennis Hilderbrand, known as Swift Deer and Eagle Feather, respectively, captained their college team in 1924 and 1925. Raymond West, six feet two inches, known as Light Foot, was the Haskell leader in 1926. Leo Wapp, Dale Peters and Anthony Wapp are the other hoop performers.

Before the game and between the halves, Chief Long Time Sleep of Carlisle college will entertain with his tom-tom and special snake dance acts. The red skins have been touring the country and have established an enviable record.

Plainfield will use the usual lineup of Normandin, Dissinger and Brusso, forwards, Starvinitsky, center, and Madden and Whitey Bernot guards. This lineup is one of the fastest in the state in the semi-pros and is pointing to the state semi-pro title.

The preliminary game will be between the Plainfield Buddies and the South Manachester club. The Buddies who are understudying the Pros are a fast little team and furnish all comers with plenty of opposition and give the customers a real game.

As usual dancing will follow the game and arrangements have been made to care for another capacity house.

These were the third and fourth, which all three awarded to Heeney, and the seventh which went to the Boston sailor by a unanimous vote.

Referee Jack Denning awarded five rounds to Heeney, four to Sharkey, called three even and voted for Heeney; George Partrick, a judge, gave five rounds to Heeney, five to Sharkey, called two even and voted for a draw; George Kelly, the other judge, awarded five rounds to Heeney, six on Sharkey, called one a draw and voted for Sharkey.

OKLAHOMA COMMISSIONER JOINS NATIONAL B. A.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 17.—(AP)—The boxing commission of Tulsa, Oklahoma, which regulates fistic affairs in that state, has joined the National Boxing association, Thomas E. Donuhue, president of the organization, anndunced today. Twenty-six states now are enrolled in the association which includes all fistic centers except New York state, California and Pennsylvania.

FLOOD OF CHALLENGES FOR PRESENT CHAMPIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Champions of the heavyweight, lightweight and bantam weight division ran into a barrage of challenges today at the bi-weekly meeting of the New York state athletic commission.

Right on the heels of an unsatisfactory showing against Tom Heeney, Australian champion, Jack Sharkey posted $2500 with the commission in support of a challenge of Gene Tunney's heavyweight diadem. The boxing fathers decided today Gene still has months to spare before answering an opening gong in view of the champion's title defense against Jack Dempsey in Chicago last September. Six month's rest is allowed a titleholder between championship matches.

Two challengers for Sammy Mandell's lightweight honors sprouted today when Bruce Flowers, Yonkers Negro, added his defy to that of Sid Terris, the latter on file here for many months. In view of Mandell's aversion to risking his title in New York, the commission suggested that Flowers fight Terris for the "logical contendership."

Mandell, who has not risked his crown since he whipped Phil McGraw in Detroit last July, is under indefinite suspension here for failure to meet Terris. A match between Jimmy McLarnin, Pacific coast star, and Terris, scheduled for Feb. 24 at Madison Suare Garden, was ruled out owing to agreement of 137 pounds as fighting weight. The commission ruled Terris must stay in the 135 pound class, an attempt will be made to substitute Flowers for McLarnin.

Archie Bell, Brooklyn bantamweight, and Kid Francis, of Italy, sought recognition of their 15 round bout in Brooklyn Feb. 13 as a 126-round title affair. Although Bud Taylor, Terre Haute blonde, is not recognized here as the bantamweight champion, the commission conceded the bout only "contendership" recognition.

Cleaning up "loose ends" here and there, the board formally reinstated Jack Sharkey as a result of his draw bout with Heeney. The Boston Sailor was indefinitely suspended when an injured left hand prevented his meeting Heeney last month. Indefinite suspension was meted out to Dave Shade, California middleweight, for reporting sick to the Genessee Valley club of Rochester, N. Y., where he was to have fought Dick Evans, of Youngstown, Ohio, last night. Permission was given the club to substitute Maxey Rosenbloom of New York, for Shade against Evans Friday night.

SHEIK LEONARD GETS ROUGH BREAK IN HOLYOKE BOUT

That Sheik Leonard, the Blond Boy of Norwich, got a rough break in his bout with Gene Mars at the Valley Arena in Holyoke on Monday night is evidenced in the accounts in Springfield papers of the fight. Leonard, according to the Springfield sport writers, should have been given the verdict and the least that could have been given was a draw. Mars had the better of the first two rounds and from then on Leonard clearly and decisively outpointed his opponent. Mars was considerably marred from Leonard's continual punching and left the ring with blood streaming from cuts on his face. Leonard was unmarked.

Leonard said to Norwich friends Tuesday that he was very much disappointed at the treatment he received at the hands of the judges and management of the bouts at Holyoke. In fact the management informed Leonard that Monday night's fight would be the last at which Leonard would ever appear. The difficulty arose, according to the Sheik, over his insisting that Al Caroly be his second. Caroly is regarded as poison in Holyoke and when he appeared in the Sheik's corner the matchmaker insisted that Caroly be put out. Leonard insisted that Caroly would remain as his second or there would be no fight; Caroly remained but Shei kwas told it was his last bout. The Sheik was told it was his last bout. The sportsmanship Holyoke likes. Leonard would like to be matched with Mars in some Connecticut ring.

SCULLING RACE TO BE HELD IN UNITED STATES

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—The next world's professional sculling championship race probably will be held somewhere in the United States, according to Bert Barry, 25 year old British holder of the title. Barry, who won the championship by a ten length victory over Major Goodsell at Vancouver December 26, is in New York on his way back to England. He will sail on the Aquitania, January 27.

Barry has the privilege of naming the place where the next race will be held. He already is considering offers from several American cities although the first challenge has not yet been received.

The young champion said his next opponent would be the first challenger. He expects Major Goodsell will ask for a return match. They have already raced twice in the last year. In the first encounter Goodsell won easily, but three months later Barry turned the tables. Barry said there was some talk that Joe Wright, the Canadian and American amateur champion, might turn profesional and challenge for the title after this year's olympic races.

Barry's triumphant course follows that of his famous uncle, Ernest Barry, who won the professional championship in 1912 and remained undefeated until 1920. His victory gives England possession of all the main sculling honors. Jack Beresford holds the olympic championship while the diamond sculls, historic Henley trophy, was kept at home last summer when R. T. Lee defeated Joe Wright.

AL BEAUREGARD TO FIGHT AT HOLYOKE MONDAY NIGHT

Al Beauregard, midget slugger of Taftville, will show his wares at the Valley arena in Holyoke on next Monday evening. SHARKEY BREAKS HIS SELF-IMPOSED SILENCE

BOSTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—The challenge for a championship match with Gene Tunney, which Johnny Buckley, manager of Jack Sharkey, filed today with the New York state athletic commission, was made with the idea of serving notice that the Boston boxer still considers his status in the heavyweight title quest unchanged.

In the absence of Buckley in Portland, Me., Sharkey today broke his recently self-imposed silence with the conversational announcement that before leaving New York after the Heeney bout he had signed articles with Tex Rickard to "meet any one he had to offer on March 12."

"It can be Jack Dempsey or Gene Tunney for all I know," Sharkey said. "I don't see why I am not a perfectly logical opponent for either of them. As far as I can make out I'm right in the same position I was before the Heeney bout. That decision can't be changed, of course, but it seems too bad that if 21 out of 23 ringside writers gave me the decision that bout should set me back any.

"In any case a long layoff that was no fault of mine and one drawn fight should not keep me from fighting anyone on the top o fthe heap. I'm perfectly willing to meet anyone, but I think they ought to be off the top of the pile andnot the bottom."

TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS SWAMP LAWRENCE FELTING FIVE, 71 TO 35

The Taftville Crescents made away with a very easy win over the Lawrence Felting Company five of Millville, Mass., Tuesday evening, at Parish hall, by a 71 to 35 score. The local boys toyed with the opposition after the first few minutes and it is fairly safe to say that had they been of scoring mind, they would have reached the century mark in points.

An odd feature of the scoring was that a Lawrence player, led with 16 points. He was Tom Carroll, the captain, left forward but he with Runn, his running mate scored practically all of the visitor's points. The Crescents, all threw in at least eight points while Roland Harris, at center led with 14 points on 7 neat baskets.

The Taftville boys put up a strong defense and the majority of the visiting points were made on long distance shots. Carroll was good at these tries sinking more than half of his scores from near midfloor.

Taftville seemed to stress its passing more than its shooting during the evening, and at this they were just as good as in dropping them through the net. With Normandin as the pivot, the Crescents would whip the ball about with dazzling speed and accuracy. Every one of the locals was good in about everything they could be good. Harris made fine work of tapping in those off the backboard when he was not scampering up and down the floor helping the Taftville attack along and almost completely stopping his man, Brown, although in for a little over half the game nevertheless was a big help to the Crescent cause, playing just the same kind of a game that has characterized his work all year. Capt. Eccleston was at his best last night while Jim Murphy and Coleman the other guards also outplayed their men by safe margins. Rabbit Gauthier sank four baskets during his short stay in the game while his passing was good.

The visitors were a fast bunch of young players, most of them of high school age and although they tried hard all the way they were never able to keep up with the Crescents.

For the first few minutes, things were close although the Crescents were never headed. But with about a quarter of the half gone the Crescents unleashed an attack that swept them into a big lead and they were in front 42 to 21 at the half. The last 20 minutes were just about the same only during this half the Crescents had a slightly changed lineup with Gauthier taking Brown's place at forward and Coleman going to right guard in Murphy's place. Brown returned to the game late in the period, replacing Eccleston.

In the preliminary the Taftville Whirlwinds nosed out the Norwich Shamrocks 18 to 16. This game had everything, comedy, roughness, etc., all but good basketball. Nevertheless the fairly large crowd got plenty of laughs out of it.

Next Tuesday evening the Crescents play the Webster A. C. quintet of Webster, Mass.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

Plainfield tonight.

The Taftville Crescents had plenty of hard luck and finally lost a game to the Windsor Locks Advertisers Monday night. First they found themselves without the services of Mondi Normandin before they started for the Locks. Next they met with an accident on the road and were an hour late in arriving. Third, with a make-shift lineup they lost the game.

Brown continued to throw in many points, being responsible for 11 points this time on five field goals and a foul. When it is considered that he was opposed by Wardy Waterman, of the Hartford Yankees, it must be admitted that this performer was pretty good.

The latest in basketball a la open air is on exhibition almost daily at the Little Plain at Broadway and Union street.

The Y Emps, who furnished practically all the basketball to Norwich for nearly the first month of the season now seem to have faded considerably. They were going fine until the New Britain Phantoms trimmed them twice.

Incidentally, the Phantoms play the Willimantic Emps in Willimantic this week.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 17 — Bove's spectacular basket in the last 17 seconds of play was the margin by which Putnam High defeated Plainfield High here tonight 26 to 24. With the score deadlocked and the seconds fast ticking away Bove suddenly found himself momentarily unguarded and taking the ball tossed in the winning basket. The lineups:

MALONEY GOES INTO TRAINING FOR COMEBACK

BOSTON, Jan. 17—(AP)—Tex Rickard's "terrible disappointment" over Jack Sharkey's showing against Tom Heeney in New York last week, today sent Jim Maloney, South Boston heavyweight, scurrying into the Maine woods for six weeks of preliminary roughing it before attempting a comeback to the status of a logical heavyweight contender.

Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager, intimated that if Maloney can stage a few clean cut victories over such men as Risko, Heeney and Delaney he will bid to reenter the heavyweight elimination ranks out of which he was dumped by Sharkey last year. Maloney will spend six weeks in the woods and will be ready for a match about March 1. Harry Wills or Jack Renault have been named as possible first opponents.

The departure of Maloney Sharkey's newly acquired silence and the absence of Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, left a blank space for comment on Sharkey's Tunney challenge and turned boxing interest toward Jack Delaney's heavyweight aspirations.

NORWEGIAN SKI STAR TO COMPETE IN CONN.

LAKEVILLE, Conn., Jan. 17—(AP)—Magnus Satre, young Norwegian, who arrived on this side of the Atlantic ocean a few months ago and was the officially chosen member of 1928 Norwegian Olympic ski team which honor he refused that he might compete in ski events in the United States, has entered the Connecticut state ski championships here set for Saturday and Sunday.

The tournament offers the first opportunity for Satre to appear in this country in jumping and racing events. In combination events in Norway last year for championships of that country, Satre finished third against a large field.

A new team trophy has been offered by the Salisbury Outing club, sponsors of the meet. This trophy will go to the club which scores the best record in the meet for all events over a two year period. Entries are in hand from representatives of the Brattleboro, Vt., club, the Swedish ski club, New York city, Norwegian Ski club, Brooklyn, N. Y., Norway Ski club, White Plains, N. Y., and the Salisbury club.

RICKARD ANNOUNCES FURTHER BOXING PLANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17—(AP)—Tex Rickard's plans for developing a suitable opponent for Gene Tunney underwent another shuffle tonight when the promoter outlined a program matching Tom Heeney and Jack Delaney for March 1 and Johnny Risko and Jack Sharkey for March 12.

Those matches are now tentative but Rickard stated definite arrangements probably would be made before he started for Miami tomorrow night for a conference with the champion.

According to Rickard, he plans to match the winners of both the March bouts to decide who will come out on top of the elimination process.

It was understood that Jack Dempsey had notified Rickard he would not box Tunney next June but preferred to wait until next September. The promoter said such a decision by Dempsey was not final.

"I'm still in a quandary as the result of the Sharkey-Heeney affair but if the results of these bouts show up favorably, I will pit the victor of the elimination against Tunney or Dempsey" Rickard said.

"I would prefer to have the winner in the elimination box Dempsey in June and the victor of that affair oppose Tunney in September. It will be along that line that I shall try to persuade Tunney to have but one fight this year."

The actual signing for the heavyweight elimination bouts is expected to take place tomorrow. Joe Jacobs, manager of Delaney, has already agreed for the Bridgeporter to accept the Heeney match on March 1 or any time set by Rickard. Closing of the dickerings now hinge on the New Zealander's handlers.

DELANEY WILL DROP OUT OF HEAVYWEIGHT TOURNEY

BRIDGEPORT, Jan. 17—(AP)—Jack Delaney, who scored a sensational twenty second victory over Sully Montgomery, Monday night, will in all probability drop out of Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament, his manager Joe Jacobs announced this afternoon.

Jacobs asserted that he had received a telephone call from Jim Mullen, Chicago promoter, asking him to wait until February 1 before signing for bouts in the tournament. Mullen still entertains hopes of signing Gene Tunney to defend his title in Chicago next summer and Delaney has already signed with Mullen for the bout.

Delaney's new manager also said that he will abide by this agreement unless Rickard is willing to stage a Johnny Risko-Jack Delaney fight at ten rounds. The promoter has announced that all eliminations will go the full 15 rounds championship distance.

At the same time Jacobs said that he has received offers for Delaney to fight in Buffalo, Pittsburgh and Toronto.

Delaney left this afternoon for Boston where he meets Jack Humbeck, Belgian champion, Friday night at Mechanics hall.

Augusto Pezzolesi has taken a leap year bride at the home of Justice of the Peace Arthur Anderson Monday evening an auto stopped at 5 o'clock and the wedding of Augusto Pezzolesi and Miss Jeannette Cote took place. Idella Pezzolesi was bridesmaid and Toney Pezzolesi was best man. Later, at the home of the groom's parents, a wedding supper took place, friends and relatives attending. The room was decroated and a large wedding cake made by Mrs. Antonio Pezzolesi was conspicuous on the table. Camerey's Noisey Five orchestra played for dancing and songs were sung. Seven hundred guests were present. Arthur DeBlaisi sang "Let a Smile Be Your Umbrella on a Rainy Day," with three members of the Saturday Night club, Eddie Ellis, tenor, William Crowell, bass, and George Deveau, baritone, singing the chorus. Augusto, the bridegroom, who is the heavyweight champion wrestler of the village, is called Big Mike Passi by his friends. A loud cheer was given the champion with the wedding cigars, and as the smoke was floating about the room, Sam Crawford told of his own wedding, 40 years ago, when with a horse and wagon, he had to travel ten miles to a minister's house so the parson could tie the knot. A wedding suit then cost $20 and one today is $60. For fifteen minutes his talk pleased the crowd. Ice cream and cake were passed with coffee. The newlyweds left for a short honeymoon trip to New York and will make their home on Main street where a furnished house awaits them.

A. Rugg, of Westfield, Mass., came to Groton Long Point recently, picked out a lot on Shore avenue and had plans drawn for a large cottage to be built this winter. This makes his third cottage since coming to the point, eight years ago. That is his hobby—building cottages at the shore. Mr. Rugg worked inside and enjoyed the life at the point away from hot months in the summer time. He is a member of the Groton Long Point club.

Noank Fire company held its annual meeting in the company rooms with fifteen members present. Foreman Albert Banks was in the chair for the last time. The dance committee reported through Sam Carson that the crowds are getng larger, also the dances are making money for the company. Pinochle teams were picked for matches with different fire company teams out of town. The company elected officers: Chief, H. H. Park, was voted in for his fifth year; Walter Palmer, foreman; first assistant foreman, Sam Carson; second, Elbert Palmer; treasurer, Fred Fitzpatrick; secretary, John Ellis (his 23rd year). He has held office longer than any fireman and was called on to make a speech. He said: "Brother fireman, I am glad to serve the company again and I thank you all for putting me in office once aglan!" The Smoke-Eaters gave three cheers for him. About 2:30 Friday afternoon a heavy noise came that shook the whole village and several windows were broken, and at house on Brook street a bottle of milk was on a shelf and was knocked to the floor and broke. An hour later another big report came and did the same thing. A carpenter was on a staging putting on rough boards and it threw him to the ground, but he was not hurt. Many think it was a light earthquake, but some said it was the soldiers on Fishers Island firing the big 12-inch gun. People were running out on the street trying to find out what was the matter.

Walter Welles has entered Park's market as cutter.

Lawrence Ashcraft was in Providence recently calling on relatives.

Robert Lamay has returned from a short visit in Essex.

HOW TO SAVE COAL: No. 3

If You Have Steam Heat

1. The water in the heater should be changed at least every Spring and Fall. Draw a bucketful from the bottom twice a week and replenish from the supply-pipe. Cleanliness of boiler is of supreme importance.

2. Look at the glass water gauge whenever you attend the fire. Turn exhaust-cocks above and below gauge occasionally to make sure that the openings from it to the boiler are not clogged. Keep the water gauge half full of water. More than half uses steam space. Less than half may damage the heater.

3. If you do not have good air valves, get the best at once. They are the worst source of trouble on steam heaters.

4. Boiler and cellar pipe should be covered with asbestos.

5. Keep boiler-flues clean.

A CURIOUS MIXTURE OF GAINS AND LOSSES IN STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Stock prices drifted rather aimlessly today in the quietest full session since last July. The brisk selling movement which had been under way for several days appears to have subsided, at least temporarily, and "bull" pools resumed operations in a few specialties. Final quotations disclosed a curious mixture of gains and losses, with the former predominating.

Call money held firm at 4 1-2 per cent all day, although a shading of that rate had been expected during the afternoon. The deficit in clearing house reserve last Saturday, combined with the new federal reserve regulations requiring semi weekly computations of reserves, instead of weekly reports, undoubtedly tended to reduce the volume of credit available on demand loans on securities collateral. There was no change in the rates on time money and commercial paper.

Owing to the conflicting reports concerning the fight for control of the Lehigh Valley railroad at the annual meeting of stockholders today, Wall street apparently made no attempt to make market capital out of the proceedings. Lehigh Valley common closed a point lowe at 95, after touching 96 3-4, and Wabash, which was disclosed as the purchaser of a large block of Lehigh Valley, showed a gain of 1-2 at 65 on a turn-over of only a few hundred shares. Lehigh Valley sold as high as 137 1-2 in June 1927.

There was little in the day's business and financial news to influence the price movement. Import of an additional $2,000,000 in gold from Canada was regarded as favorable by operators for the rise who were worried by the large exports of gold last month. A few good 1927 earnings reports by small companies, particularly Mullins Manufacturing and New Mont Mining, made their appearance during the day, and initial dividends were authorized on the common stocks of Deere & Co., and the Kroger Grocery & Baking Co.

U. S. Steel common and General Motors failed to break out of the narrow trading area within which they have been fluctuating for the last fortnight. Steel closed fractionally lower at 144 1-2 after having crossed 146 and General Motors showed a small fractional gain at 132. Radio quieted down considerably, but closed fractionally higher at 98 3-4.

National Tea broke 8 points on a few sales. American Snuff, Houston Oil, and Jewel Tea were conspicuously heavy. On the other hand, sharp gains were recorded by Abitibi Power, American Zinc and Lead preferred, Cluett Peabody, Fidelity-Phenix Insurance, B. F. Goodrich, Greene Cananea Copper, International Match preferred, Mathieson Alkali, Midland Steel Products preferred and Otis Elevator.

Spanish pesetas dropped 6 points to 17.08 cents and Japanese Yen twice as much to 46.73 cents, but the other foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Sterling cables held steady around $4.87 1-2.

Commodity markets showed no important change on the day.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Uncertainty regarding monetary conditions continued to influence trading in the bond market today. Prices generally were steady, but the volume of business showed a further curtailment. It was expected in bond circles that the present quiet status would remain until a definite development arose, as many traders were disposed to hold their committments at a minimum.

Meanwhile issues with specially attractive features were accumulated in moderate amounts. The St. Paul bonds made a further advance into new high ground, particularly Puget Sound 4s, which jumped more than 3 points to 73 5-8. Convertible liens advanced with related stocks, but there were few large gains aside from a 3-point jump in Liquid Carbonic 6s.

With the exception of the St. Paul, railway mortgages appeared neglected. Canadian Pacific 4 1-2s were a shade firmer in early dealings, but later lost all their gain, and Erie 5s and Chesapeake Corporation 5s were purchased in nminal amounts.

Laclede Gas 5s led the public utility section with a 1 1-8 point gain. Industrials, other than convertible issues, received little attention.

Those who had expected an expansion of trading in the foreign department as a result of the state department's action favoring French industrial bonds, were given little encouragement by today's activities. Belgian issues were a little higher, and there was some buying of a few Latin American securities. Polish 6s fell below yesterday's final quotation after an early gain of about half a point.

No transactions were recorded in the federal government division until after non, and then the volume of business was of limited proportions. Prices were steady.

CHCAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Lively speculative buying and general excellent cash demand, with abnormal weather, hoisted the corn market today to the highest prices since the middle of December. Corn export business from the United States totaled as much as 600,000 bushels, and premiums overtopped any heretofore plad this season.

Closing quotations on corn were firm, 1-2c to 1 1-8c net higher. Wheat finished 1-2c to 7-8c up, oats at 3-8c decline to 1-4c advance, and provisions unchanged to 10c down.

Unseasonably mild temperatures tending to hinder the movement of the domestic corn crop gave impetus to corn buying today almost from the outset. Moreover, Buenos Aires advices stated that the new Argentine corn crop was deteriorating from lack of rain. Liverpool dispatches meanwhile said Argentine offers were scarce, and that Argentine shippers were advancing prices rapidly. A further stimulus was that No. 2 mixed corn at the Gulf of Mexico was commanding 5c over the Chicago May delivery.

Virtually the highest prices of the day in the corn market were current at the close, notwithstanding that rural offerings to arrive here had enlarged somewhat as a result of the bulge in values. Late reports of soaking rains in Argentina were also practically ignored. A counter-balancing influence was a forecast that temperatures considerably above normal and with mostly clear skies would continue in the Chicago district during the next two or three days.

Wheat market upturns were largely a result of corn strength. Export sales of 500,000 bushels of North American wheat are announced, partly wheat from the United States. On the other hand, beneficial rains were reported in the Texas Panhandle and portions of Oklahoma, but western Kansas remains dry, and a large acreage of Kansas wheat now appears beyond relief.

Oats met with free selling, although contract stocks of oats in Chicago are now down to less than 1,000,000 bushels.

Provisions were easy at hte last, reflecting weakness of the hog market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—(AP)—Operations of American Sheet and Tin Plate Co. have been increased to 74 per cent of tin plate capacity and 73 per cent of sheet capacity. Good tonnages of sheets are being taken by automobile makers for the first time in months, Pittsburgh dispatches say. Other types of sheet consumers also are increasing demand while specifications for delivery of tin plate are in god volume.

The preliminary statement of New Mont Mining Company for 1927 shows a jump in net profit to $14,650,000 after expenses and taxes, from $4,113,671 in 1926. This is equal to $32.34 a share, $10 par, against $9.08 a share the year before. The market value of the company's holdings of listed dividend stocks was $9,487,329 more than was paid for them.

Negotiations which the Maytag Company, Chicago, has been carrying on to acquire another company in the washing machine industry have been discontinued, officials not being able to agree on terms.

L. H. Whiting has been elected a director of Acme Steel Co., succeeding H. G. Merrill, resigned. Other directors were re-elected.

Sun Oil Company has leased 65 acres of sulphur-bearing land at Boling Dome, Texas, where the joint operation of Texas Gulf Sulphur and Gulf Oil is located. Seven wells are being drilled, one of them showing more than 100 feet of sulphur bearing rock with 35 per cent recoverable sulphur, it is said. Boling Dome is considered a rich sulphur deposit, estimates of recovery ranging from thirty to fifty million tons.

PENDLETON HILL

REV. E. P. MATHEWSON IN THE MINISTRY 50 YEARS

Congratulations and appreciations from far and near are being received by the local pastor, Rev. E. P. Mathewson, upon the event, this month, of his fiftieth anniversary in the Christian ministry. Mr. Mathewson has served the First Baptist church of North Stonington (Pendleton Hill) for thirty-seven years. His sermons are brief, scholarly, to the point and helpful to those who hear him. Jan. 29 Mr. Mathewson will give a resume of his long service here. His splendid work has been almost a free gift to this people

Many handsome wreaths which adorned the school, the church and the homes in this vicinity were made as a free gift by Vernon Thompson.

Mrs. Willis E. Almy, who has been suffering from a serious attack of bronchitis for the past three weeks, is able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Tanner and Miss Bertha Lewis of Voluntown were guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cottrell.

Oscar Lindquist is to rebuild the large garage recently purchased by Mr. Carjola of Pachaug.

Mrs. Jennie Thomson is again at her home here after a long term of service in the care of Mrs. Arthur J. Dawley of Norwich, whose death occurred last week.

Charles Wight is the guest of his daughter, Mrs. George Palmer.

Mrs. Annie Cook entertained a family party of eight at dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palmer, son George and a friend, Miss Cruishanck, from Bradford, R. I., were guests Sunday at Mr. Palmer's home here.

The road in front of the R. P. Palmer estate is a lake of mud in warm weather and a mountain of ruts in cold. A few loads of gravel in the late fall, with the cleaning of a culvert, would have obviated this dangerous nuisance.

Miss Carrie A. Ryder, who has been ill for some months, is reported no better.

Mrs. Thomas Palmer is very ill.

The Sewing society met for an all-day session Wednesday, having a fine dinner.

One popular local young lady received, among very many other Christmas gifts, forty-seven handkerchiefs.

Lady, the beautiful blue ribbon Angora belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Almy, died Friday night. She was a very companionable cat, liked people, liked to ride in an automobile, and was always found perched in high places. She was accustomed to sit on the very corner of the sink and watch her mistress wash dishes.

It consisted of beans, salad, pickles, rolls, coffee and cake. Following supper the business meeting was held. The report of the treasurer O. S. Maples, showed all bills paid and a balance in the treasury. During the year the church has put a heater in the parsonage and installed electric lights in both the church and parsonage. The latter has also been newly papered and painted and some general repair work done. The treasurer was re-elected and Mrs. L. H. Lathrop was made clerk for life. Reports from the different organizations of the church were given by presidents and secretaries. Sunday school superintendent, A. J. Bailey; secretary, Mrs. Lloyd Abel; C. E. society, Orrin Banning; missionary society, Mrs. E. A. Bishop; cradle roll, Mrs. Jabez Lathrop; ladies' aid society, Mrs. A. J. Bailey. About forty-two responded to the roll call. Under the ministration of its pastor, Rev. George H. Strouse, who has the welfare of the church so deeply at heart, the church enters the new year's work confident that not only will the spiritual life be deepened but that it will be built up and strengthened in all its work.

The Woman's Missionary society is to meet Saturday at 2.30, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Whitman of Norwich Town. Miss Helen Marshall of Norwich is to be the speaker.

At the business meeting of the C. E. society Sunday evening the officers of 1927 were re-elected: Orrin Banning, president; Lloyd Abel, vice president; Mildred Grandy, secretary; Lida Congdon, treasurer. The society has been active during the past year and has held group meetings with neighboring societies, Goshen and Fitchville, has held several socials and suppers and helped with some church activities. POETRY

The Darkling Thrush

I leant upon a paddock gate
When shades were specter-gray,
And winter's dregs made desolate
The weakening eye of day.
The tangled twig-lines scored the sky,
Like strings from broken lyres,
And all mankind that haunted nigh
Had sought their household fires.

The land's sharp features seemed to be
The century's corpse outleant
Its crypt the cloudy canopy,
The wind its death-lament.
The ancient pulse of germ and birth
Was shrunken, hard and dry,
And every spirit upon earth
Seemed morrowless as I.

At once a voice outburst among
The bleak twigs overhead
In a full-hearted evensong
Of joy illimited.
An aged thrush, frail, thin and small,
In blast ruffled plume,
Had chosen thus to fling his soul
Upon the growing gloom.

So little cause for carollings
Of such ecstatic sound
Was written on terrestrial things
Afar or nigh around,
That I could think there trembled thro'
His happy good-night air
Some blessed Hope, whereof he knew
And I was unaware.
—Thomas Hardy.

Who Keepeth a Dream in his Heart

Who keepeth a dream in his heart all through the years,
From him is eternal light,
Through he walk through the valley of shadow and tears
In the silence of starless night.

Who keepeth a dream in his heart shall behold
The hills from the plains below,
And in vain is the lash of the covering cold
As he climbs with eyeas glow.

Who keepeth a dream in his heart shall be gay,
Though the blossoms of spring lie dead
For the rose that is broken and withered
today
Shall tomorrow for him be red.

Who keepeth a dream in his heart shall not fail,
Though his goal seem a world apart
For the heights he shall scale in the face of the gale
Who keepeth a dream in his heart.
—Morris Abel Beer, in "Street Lamps."

There's an old story about a man who, after listening to abuse and vilification from another quietly retorted, "All that you said I was you are." An ancient anecdote puts Buddha in the situation of that man, and tells of Buddha calmly inquiring of his reviler, "If you offer something to a man and he refuses it, to whom then does it belong?"
The man replied, "It belongs, I suppose, to the one who offered it."
"Then," returned Buddha, "the abuse and vile names you offer me I refuse to accept."—Stray Stories.

Audrey Margaret Tennyson of Cardiff, Wales, grandniece of England's great poet laureate, finds that her famous name is retarding her career as a poet in her own right. She has written poetry since she was 12, but she never let anyone see it because she was afraid of her name. Now her friends accuse her of copying her illustrious granduncle's style. Margaret says this is not true because it was only a year ago that she began reading the poet's works.

Toodles, one of the ordinary dogs of Sacramento, Cal., is very fond of riding in his master's car, but this particular morning Toodles refused such a ride. His master could not coax him away from the back yard. A little later a peddler called, and the dog chased him away from the premises. Then a neighbor entered the yard and was chased out. That led the lady of the house to investigate. She found that her husband had dropped his wallet, which contained $140, and that the dog was guarding it.

An Englishman has invented a self-lighting cigarette. A tiny disc of touchpaper is fixed to one end of the cigarette. Centered on the disc is a fragment of the igniting material about the size of a pinhead. A gentle touch of this end of the cigarette against the prepared side of the cigarette packet and the trick is done. The touchpaper glows for an instant and the cigarette is lit. The tobacco is not affected by the process, the lighting material and touchpaper being completely odorless. The inventor is taking out world patents on the device.

Forty-nine representatives of the New London Y. M. C. A. were present at the meeting of the sixty-first annual convention of the state Y. M. C. A., in Hartford Saturday and Sunday. These men and women made the trip in private cars and were well distributed in the various sectional conferences. The New London association was responsible for the sectional conference on army and navy work, taking from the various service bases about New London leading men to discuss this feature of the work being done by the Y. MAN WITH BROKEN NECK RESULTING FROM FALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 17.—Oscar Walker, 44, of Station 14 1-2, Waterford, is in a critical condition at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, having suffered a broken neck yesterday when he fell from a house upon which he was at work. Walker was doing repair work to the roof of a residence on Berkley avenue and lost his balance, falling to the ground. In landing, Walker struck the partially frozen ground on his head, which resulted in the injury which may prove fatal.

As a precautionary step toward making it imperative that police officers do not misuse or abuse a prisoner while making or after an arrest, Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney has given instructions that the patrolmen use the utmost precaution in the handling of prisoners, especially as regards the use of nightsticks. Sergeant Hicks and Lieutenant James C. Sullivan have issued verbal instructions, in detail, that officers must refrain from using nightsticks in making arrests unless they are endangered of bodily injury. The officers have also been ordered to refrain from using violence in placing prisoners in cells, especially in cases of intoxication, when the prisoner is not responsible for his acts or utterances and that it is far from sound judgment for an officer to ill-treat a prisoner. Not only are the officers ordered to use the greatest of judgment in handling their night sticks, but their fists also. The instructions ordered by Captain Pinney was the result of two instances where it is possible officers did not exercise proper judgment recently in the arrest of prisoners.

The continued cases of John J. Kelley, John J. Murphy and Patrick Barry, of New London, were not tried in Waterford town court yesterday afternoon because of the enforced absence of Constable Chester Brigham, who was called to Vermont by the death of a relative. The men are charged with breach of the peace. Kelley, Murphy and Barry went to the roadhouse of Carl Reynolds, Waterford, last Tuesday night and had been drinking. They endeavored to obtain admittance to the building, but it was refused them, since Reynolds considered them too drunk to associate with his patrons. When Reynolds denied the trio admission a row started and, it is claimed, that one of the men struck Reynolds a blow on the face. Reynolds made complaint to Constable Brigham and all three were arrested, being brought to the New London police station and locked up. The following day they furnished a surety on their respective bonds of $25 for their appearance in court yesterday. They will now be presented next Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ludwig Mann, of Montauk avenue, will start this month on a three months' ocean trip, sailing on the Transylvania out of New York the 25th inst. They will not return to New London until May.

The condition of Robert Chesebro, of Center Groton, a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, suffering from a fractured nose and head injuries, is reported today as being noticeably improved, although he will be a patient there for several days. Chesebro was found lying in the highway near his home Sunday night, and partially unconscious. He was found by a Center Groton resident, who had Chesebro taken home and attended by a physician. The state police were notified of Chesebro's injuries and an investigation started indicates that the man was waylaid by some one who entertained an ill feeling toward him and who inflicted the injuries for which he is being treated. The state police, however, have been unable to obtain any clue that might lead to the identity and arrest of Chesebro's probable assailant.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre

Bessie Love, the girl who spent five years finding her niche in pictures and is now in continuous demand by directors and producers, has the title role in "Lovey Mary," King Baggot's production for Metro-Goldwyn Mayer, coming to the Breed theatre today as the big attraction of a double feature bill. Bessie sprang into the limelight at the darkest period of her career as a portrayer of whimsical and unusual roles, and it is a part of this type that she does in "Lovey Mary." William Haines is her leading man and the cast includes Vivia Ogden, Mary Alden, Russell Simpson, Sunshine Hart, Martha Mattox and others.

"A Sailor's Sweetheart," a Warner Bros. production directed by Lloyd Bacon, with Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook, comes to the Breed theatre today for a run of two days as an added attraction.

The cast includes Myrna Loy, John Miljan, Tom Ricketts, William Demarest and others, and the play itself proves to be one of the really big laughing successes of the season. Scenes in which Louise as a prim school-teaching spinster is caught in compromising situations with Clyde, the sailor, with whom she finds herself handcuffed, convulses audiences everywhere. Bacon has piled situation on situation, literally squeezing the story of laughs.

Strand Theatre.

"Two-Gun of the Tumbleweed," starring Le Maloney at the Strand tonight, enacts a thrilling story of love and battle on the open range in the cattle country. The hero is known as Two-Gun because of the lightning speed with which he can flip two six-shooters in the face of anybody who is looking for trouble. And there's plenty of trouble in this picture, in which Maloney has the support of Peggy Montgomery, Josephine Hill, Joe Rickson and Bud Osborne.

"The Laffin' Fool," starring Jack Perrin, is a romance of humorous qualities concerning a wandering cowhand who arrives in time to save an oppressed girl from a man of no principle and less courage. Before he succeeds, however, there is a wealth of adventure opened to him, and it gives the stars ample opportunity to display their talents. As a majority of western pictures are timed in the past, "The Laffin' Fool" has the additional advantage of being modern, for it presents a story of the west as it is today.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

Norwich back in 1853 during the week of January 10th was experiencing one of the worst snow storms of the winters, train and boat traffic being almost completely at a standstill. Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, who was scheduled to deliver a lecture was unable to arrive because of the storm. Letters coming from California to Norwich people contained a mixture of good and sad news.

Extracts from the files of The Norwich Courier of 1853 follow:

Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1853—A recent letter from California records the death of Aaron S. Lockwood, who was drowned on the evening of Dec. 4th in the South Fork of the American river, at McDowalville, near Mormon Island, while attempting to cross the stream in a small boat. Mr. Lockwood leaves a wife and four children residing at New Canaan, Conn.

We have just received word of the death of Venoni, son of Dr. Stephen Sweet, in Franklin. The deceased was 17 years of age and was a youth of uncommon promise, having at this early age the responsibility of much of his father's farming business. He had been a member of the Sabbath school and a constant attendant upon the means of grace.

We record the arrival at the port of Norwich of the Propeller Quinebaug, Mr. Holm, captain, from New York, with a cargo of cotton. The Propeller C. Osgood, Captain Smith, arrived also from New York loaded with rugs and cotton.

Thursday, Jan. 13—It is with regret that we record the sudden death of Mrs. Mary Hooker, wife of Worthington Hooker, M. D., recently of this city. Mrs. Hooker was the daughter of John Ingersoll of Springfield, Mass., and had made her home in Norwich for many years.

The eighth annual report of the directors of the Providence and Worcester railroad of the receipts and expenditures for the eleventh month ending Nov. 20th showed that the total receipts were $233,744.05, and the total expenses $104,347.83. There is left for dividend payable on Jan. 1, 1853, the sum of $43,725.

Winter has come at last in right down earnest. Such a snowstorm as in progress now puts one in mind of old world times. It commenced yesterday and has kept pretty steady ever since and judging from present appearances we would not be greatly surprised to wake up tomorrow morning and find the air still darkened with the falling particles. As is to be expected railroad and steamboat arrangements are sadly deranged by this state of things. No boat from New York yesterday and none up to the time of sending our paper to press today. The mail due from Boston a little past 1 o'clock this afternoon, has not arrived and reports are that tracks at many points between Norwich and Boston are blocked by the drifting snow. Morning trains from New London and Hartford, we presume are in from the fact that we have received papers from both places. P. S. —Since the above was put into type the Worcester train has arrived.

Saturday, Jan. 15, 1853 — A painful rumor having been rife in town for three or four days past, to the effect that Dr. A. B. Haile, whose departure, in November last, for Maysville, Cal., was so widely and sincerely regretted in this community, had died upon the passage from Panama to San Francisco, we take pleasure in stating, for the information of numerous friends and warm well wishers that the last mail from California brings letters from the doctors announcing his arrival in Maysville, in excellent health and excellent spirits, on the seventh of December.

We learn from the New London Chronicle of Tuesday that, in pursuance of a call of the board of corporation, of the New London Stonington railroad, whose charter was granted last spring, was duely organized on Monday last, by the choice of the following named gentlemen as directors: E. E. Morgan, Amos Sheffield, George L. Schuyler, Augustus W. Lord, H. L. Champlin, John Griswold, Alexander Hamilton, Jr., G. R. J. Bowdoin and Governeur Morris.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes did not lecture last evening, for the reason, we suppose, that he did not succeed in getting here and that the reason in not getting here was that the snow storm headed him off.

Miss Caulkins, author of the history of Norwich, has been writing a history of New London and has been highly spoken of, not only by our friend, the editor of the New London Chronicle, but in other quarters. It is said to be a work of much work, research and interest.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre.

Another big-time vaudeville attraction is to be seen at the Broadway theatre, commencing tomorrow for a three days' run, when Norman Stocker and His Ten Syncopats will be the headline attraction. Mr. Stocker and his band have been playing at the Strand theatre in New York city for the past two years, being featured in addition to the regular house orchestra of 45 pieces. His act is the type that is rapidly becoming popular as feature attractions and the fact that they have played one engagement lasting two years testifies to that fact. Four other acts make up the balance of the program with Norman Stocker acting as master of ceremonies for the entire bill.

The feature picture production for the last three days of the week is the latest starring vehicle for Fred Thomson and his horse Silver King, who perform in true western style in this picture, "A Pioneer Scout." It will be recalled by many that Thomson's first production for the Paramount company, "Jesse James" broke all attendance records, when it played here during Thanksgiving week. This picture is said to be even better than was Jesse James and is being released as a forerunner to "Kit Carson," the next Thomson picture, which will be released some time in the spring as a $2.00 production, to take its place in the history of motion pictures along with the biggest of pictures.

Showing for the last times today are Marion Davies and Conrad Nagle in "Quality Street" and five acts of superior vaudeville.

Palace Theater.

"Fashion Madness," the Columbia Pictures production which is the attraction at the Palace Theatre, today and tomorrow, has Claire Windsor in the stellar role, supported by Reed Howes, Laska Winter, Donald McNamee and William E. Tooker. The locale is the luxurious mansion of a spoiled child of wealth, a private yacht and the Canadian North woods. There are several thrilling sequences, chief of which is a spectacular fall over a precipice with a sheer drop of 1500 feet. This is cleverly handled by Miss Winter. The production was made under the direction of Louise J. Gasnier from a story by Victoria Moore. "Fashion Madness" is sure to appeal to all who enjoy a drama of intence emotion and soul-stirring action. It can be recommended as giving real entertainment value.

In conjunction with the feature there is one of the most enjoyable short subjects that it has been our pleasure to view in a long while. It is one of the new Paramount Novelties and its name, "Toddles." This is one of the series that Charles B. Mintz is making.

Two exeremely young characters do all the work and the way they are handled is a marvel to see. Baby who is all of 13 months, gets into a mess of trouble by his playfulness, and the pup who is his sole companion, tries awfully hard to keep him on the straight and narrow.

In one of the episodes, Baby loses a Sterno can in the yard and a hen and a mother duck eat the contents. So mixed up do these fowls become that they sit on the wrong broods. There are any number of funny incidents tha will be sure to give you more than your quota of laughs for the week.

FIRST DAY BRINGS OVER 40 PERCENT OF AMOUNT IN BUREAU CAMPAIGN

Over forty per cent of the desired amount sought in the campaign for the Merchants bureau was reported as pledged at the end of the first day's canvas when the teams met for their report luncheon at the Wauregan hotel on Tuesday noon. Chairman H. B. Cary voiced the opinion of all that this was a remarkable start for the drive which continues through Thursday.

Tuesday morning at 8:15 the teams met at the hotel for breakfast to make their start together. Speeches were given by Chairman Herbert B. Cary, President Harold D. Larrabee of the chamber of commerce and Ernest O. Rodier of the Prudential Insurance company. A sincere note of optimism ran through all the speeches based upon the conviction that the teams were going out for a reasonable sum for a business proposition in which they all believed. The fund is to be used directly in producing more business for Norwich and every person who contributes will benefit, according to the leaders who spoke.

At the noon report luncheon Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce reviewed the steps that had led up to the campaign. The Merchants bureau and the Credit bureau have been doing consistent work for a number of years, he said. Their maintenance called, however, for two money raising efforts. This year it was planned to have the one campaign and to extend the work of the merchants bureau uto allow the use of the credit bureau to allow the use of the credit bureau a trade survey, merchants institute, cooperative advertising and several other important projects. The two bureaus last year used nearly $3,000. This year $3,600 is desired, the increase being for the additional features on the program of activities. It was pointed out by Mr. Pilcher that many cities like Newburyport, Saranac Lake, and other communities comparable in size or smaller than Norwich were raising sums up to $9,000 for merchants activities. The present goal should be exceeded according to the scale on which other organizations of our size are run, he declared. This would be easily possible if many, who now ask why "you" don't do things, would step in and say "we'll do them."

The teams meet again this (Wednesday) morning at the offices of the chamber of commerce at 9:30 to receive new assignments of prospect cards and learn the latest developments in the campaign before starting out for the morning's work. The report luncheon will be held at the Wauregan at 12:15.

Notices have gone out for the annual meeting and election of the merchants bureau to be held on Thursday evening immediately following the final dinner of the teams. All members of the bureau will be invited to attend and aid in the election of officers. The list of members will include of course all who subscribe to the bureau during the three days of the campaign.

The following subscriptions came in during the day. Many concerns were not covered on the first day and their names will be filed during the next two days:

MEN SENT TO JAIL WOMAN TO STATE FARM

At the Tuesday morning session of the city court Joseph Markott, white, 64, was sent to jail for 30 days on a charge of keeping Edna Jackson, colored, 25, of North Stonington, for immoral purposes at the house at No. 205 West Main street. The Jackson woman was sent to the state farm for women and August Moran, colored 32, charged with fornication, was given a suspended 30 day jail sentence. The three were taken into custody Monday night on complaint of State Humane Agent Frederick H. Wyant and who had been asked to investigate the matter by a relative of the girl.

The West Main street house in question has been the joint home of Markott and a woman named Sadie Wheeler. The Wheeler woman at the present time is a patient at a local hospital. She is said to have been largely responsible for the existing conditions at the house. It is said she persuaded the Jackson woman to leave her home in North Stonington and to come to Norwich last September.

MID-WINTER CONFERENCE WAS HELD AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

At the mid-winter conference of the state tuberculosis commission with the state sanatoria held Monday at Uncas-on-Thames, there was an interesting demonstration by Dr. R. G. Urquhart of the sanatorium staff of the great benefits that come to female patients subjected to scientific gynecological treatment. In all the state sanatoria for tuberculosis, gynecological clinics have been established during the past two years and from all these institutions there came enthusiastic reports of the improved conditions of women patients. Connecticut's institutions were said to be the first tuberculosis sanatoria to offer their women patients this systematized and routine relief. Dr. Urquhart is in general charge of all the clinics, but his efforts are efficiently seconded by the doctors and nurses of the various sanatoria.

There was also a paper by Jean Keiffer of the Uncas-on-Thames staff upon the decolorization of the tubercle bacillus by acetic acid, which showed some rather interesting phenomena which to date had not received much notice.

Persistent rumors that Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London would retire at the completion of his present term, already emphatically denied by New London friends of the representative, were definitely settled Monday when Mr. Freeman stated in Washington that he had no intentions of relinquishing his office.

The congressman said, "There is no truth in reports concerning my retirement. I am in good health and will run for re-election."

Newspapers about the state had reported that ill health had caused Mr. Freeman to decide not to be a candidate for another term in congress.

SEN. HEFLIN LAWLESS IN RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE

Rebuked by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, His Party Leader, For Attack on the Catholic Church and Gov. Alfred E. Smith, Heflin Responded With Tar and Feathers Threat Should Robinson Speak in Defense of Catholicity in Arkansas or Alabama—Senator Robinson Has Called For a Party Conference Today to Decide Heflin's Challenge of Party Leadership—Heflin's Appeal For Support Elicited Roars of Laughter From the Chamber and Galleries Alike.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—Rebuked in vigorous terms by Joseph T. Robinson, his party leader, for his attacks upon the Roman Catholic church and Governor Alfred E. Smith, Senator Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, today challenged the democratic senate leadership of the Arkansan.

The challenge was accepted immediately and Senator Robinson issued a call for a party conference tomorrow to settle the issue. He declared openly upon the floor of the senate that if Heflin could dictate who should lead the minority "that party can get someone other than myself to lead it here."

The most bitter exchanges the senate had heard in years broke suddenly after the Alabaman had spent two and a half hours in a new attack upon the Roman Catholic chuch, what he termed its "political machine" and upon Tammany hall and Governor Smith.

Rising before a crowded chambers and galleries, the democratic leader took Heflin to task for his repeated attacks upon the Catholic church and the New York governor and with all the vigor at his command declared that "he does his country no service who lights the torch or sounds the cry of religious intolerance and persecution."

The massive Alabaman was on his feet frequently with protests and threats while an almost full membership of the senate and southern and New York members of the house, on seats in the rear of the chamber, sat in almost stunned silence. The blunt declarations of the two senators on religious and political issues within their party brought frequent outbursts from the galleries.

As they fired back and forth at each other, the speakers were separated by only a single row of seats. Robinson gripped his desk or pounded palm against palm as he drove home his thrusts at his southern colleague. At times the democratic leader showed the intense emotion under which he labored and once warned Heflin not to interrupt him again.

The Alabaman, too, appeared under an intense strain. His voice was husky after his long speech and he was wrapped in a great coat and launched into a heated reply to which the democratic leader gave close attention, but which he did not interrupt.

Immediately after the senate convened, Heflin obtained recognition for a defense of himself against imputations in documents published in the Hearst newspapers and purporting to be of Mexican origin. He attributed publication of the documents to a conspiracy of the Roman Catholic church against him.

Then he began a double-barrelled attack upon the "pope of Rome and Al Smith," and warned his party not to nominate Smith for the presidency.

"If it does," he shouted, "the republicans can defeat him with anybody by from fifteen million to twenty million votes. The American people, knowing what the Roman Catholic political machine is doing, are not going to put him in the white house just now. Any leader in the south who supports Al Smith will never come back to this capitol."

Charging that the Catholics of all countries would contribute funds to Smith's support, Heflin asserted that they already were spending money in the south and "are sending writers down there from New York to traduce my state."

In opening his reply, Robinson said, and other members of the special committee which investigated the Hearst documents agreed with him, that there was no suspicion that the Roman Catholic church had anything to do with the documents. Then the Arkansan expressed "amazement" that Senator Heflin had called attention that Mrs. William Randolph Hearst was a Catholic as if that had any connection with the publication of the documents.

Heflin was on his feet immediately, demanding the discharge of Robinson from the committee, but when the democratic leader asked unanimous consent for an immediate vote on the proposition the Alabaman objected in a strident voice.

As the Arkansas senator then denounced Heflin's attack on the Catholic church and Gov. Smith, the Alabaman challenged his leadership of the party in the senate.

"The senator from Arkansas cannot remain leader of the democrats and fight the Roman Catholics' battle every time it is raised in this body without some expression from a constitutional democrat," Heflin said.

"Whenever the senator from Alabama can determine who shall be the leader of the democratic party in the senate of the United States," Robinson retorted, "that party can get somebody else than myself to lead it here."

"Well, you have my consent to do that now." Heflin came back.

Senator Robinson declared that it was "with peculiarly bad taste, without justification in the conscience of a single one of his colleagues, that the senator from Alabama has lugged into this debate the name of prospective presidential candidates."

"The senator from Alabama has asserted over and over that the governor of New York, Mr. Smith, will not be nominated and he gave as his reason the assertion that Governor Smith is a Catholic," the Arkansan continued.

"That he was a Tammanyite, a 'wet' and a Roman Catholic," interjected Heflin.

Declaring that he had heard Heflin "denounce the Catholic church and the pope of Rome and the cardinals and the bishops and the priests and the nuns," Senator Robinson said he was "sick and tired of it as a democrat."

"I would like to have the senator make that speech in Arkansas," Heflin said.

"I will make that speech in Arkansas and I will make it in Alabama, too," returned the minority leader.

"Yes, and if you do, they will tar and feather you," shouted Heflin.

In his reply to Robinson later Heflin dared any democratic senator who would rebuke him to stand up. None did, but shortly afterwards, Reed, of Missouri, arose and walked from the chamber.

Again Heflin called upon every democratic senator who approved of the attack made on him to stand up. Again his colleague remained seated and the Alabaman declared that this showed disapproval of Robinson's leadership. A roar of laughter swept the chamber and galleries alike.

Heflin spoke this time for half an hour. He announced that he would introduce a constitutional amendment calling for the deportation of all citizens who could not "with hand on heart" swear single allegiance to the constitution and the flag.

Declaring that he never had been classed as an Al Smith supporter, Senator Robinson told the senate that he did not belong to that class who believed that Smith should be excluded from the list of candidates because he is a Catholic.

"I believe that one who is a Catholic has just as much right to apply for the favor of his party associates as one who is a Methodist, or a Baptist," he continued, "and believe that when you deny that right, you deny a fundemental principle of this government."

The Arkansas senator declared that the Alabaman's statement that he would be tarred and feathered if he made his speech in Alabama was "illustrative of how a good man can go wrong, and how far wrong he can go, and what a fool can make of himself after he has gone wrong."

When Robinson announced he would call a party conference leadership, Heflin entered a disclaimer that he had challenged his leadership. However, Robinson is determined to let his colleagues pass upon the question.

RESOLUTION BARRING SMITH IS MODIFIED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—Modification of the resolution finally barring Frank L. Smith, republican of Illinois, from the senate was agreed upon in private conferences today as the second day of debate on the report of the special slush fund committee proceeded on the floor.

At the insistence of Senators Borah, republican, Idaho, Senator Reed, democrat, Missouri, chairman of the committee and other senators consented to eliminate the phrase that Smith is not entitled to oath of office because of contributions and expenditures in his primary campaign in 1926.

As thus changed the resolution would recite that the senator-elect's credentials are tained with "fraud and corruption" and that therefore he is not entitled to membership in the senate. It would add that a vacancy exists in the representation of the state of Illinois.

Under this declaration of vacancy, a number of senators hold that the governor of Illinois could appoint a senator in Smith's place, but friends of the senator-elect have insisted that Gov. Small would not take this course, leaving Smith free to present his credentials again at the opening of the seventy-first congress after the general elections next fall when one-third of the senate membership is to be chosen.

GUN EXPERTS TESTIFY IN TRIAL OF DE NICOLA

WATERBURY, Jan. 18—(AP)—Two bullets, said to have ben found in the automobile of Alexander De Nicola on the afternoon of December 19, were fired from a German automatic pistol alleged to have been taken from the pocket of Leo Laurito of this city on December 21, according to two expert witnesses appearing in superior court for the state today. Laurito is charged with assault with intent to murder and with carrying concealed weapons. J. Henry Fitzgerald, of Hartford and Captain William A. Jones, of New York city were the two experts who said the gun was the one used in the shooting.

Both of the experts stated that they came to the conclusion that the bullets were fired from Laurito's pistol because of the characteristic markings of the bullets found in De Nicola's car compared with those on bullets fired from the gun for a test. Among the markings on the bullets described today was a white mark which according to the experts was the result of firing the bullets in a barrel slightly oversized.

CONVICT FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER OF GUARD

PLANS CALL FOR 50,000 HORSEPOWER PROJECT

WINDSOR LOCKS, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Plans to develop a hydro-electric power plant in the Connecticut river here, were made possible today when a license was granted by the federal power commission to the Connecticut River Power company for a 50,000 horse power project at this point. The plans were part of those made by the Connecticut Light and Power company for a plant in conjunction with the power derived from the Windsor Locks canal.

It has not been stated what the project contemplated is but as river at this point runs in a series of ripples over a ledge bottom it is understood a dam will be built to secure a greater head of water to supply the turbines which will turn over huge generators.

The project was forecast at the time a number of companies were merged by the Connecticut Light and Power company; one group in the northern tier of towns of the state being the one which would obtain its power from a plant here. At a hearing before the public utilities commission when sanction for the mergers was sought it was stated that the Windsor Locks plant would call for a $6,000,000 hydro-electric development. The power would be used to supply mills and other power companies in this section.

The northern group of companies since merged were the Connecticut Power Company, the Connecticut River company, the Northern Connecticut Light and Power company, the Thompsonville Water company, the Stafford Springs Aqueduct company and the Somers Electric company.

MISSING SCHOOL TEACHER LOCATED IN DETROIT

ROCHESTER, New York, Jan. 18— (AP) —Miss Jeannie McClure, 22 year old Corning school teacher who disappeared four and one half months ago shortly after spending the summer in Massachusetts, has been found in a Detroit hospital, it was learned today.

After spending the summer at Buzzard's bay, Mass., Doyle said, Miss McClure went to Johnson City where she visited her uncle, Duncan McClure This was the last place the girl was seen, but Doyle said that she had been traced to Syracuse, Buffalo and Cleveland, before going to Detroit where under an assumed name she obtained employment as a servant in the home of a wealthy Detroit family.

The identification in Detroit was made by the young woman's brother, Cameron McClure and a couple, with whom she roomed while teaching at Corning.

SPLIT IN SUPPORTERS OF FARM RELIEF BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18— (AP)—A split in the ranks of the supporters of the equalization fee principle of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill developed today at a meeting of the house agriculture committee.

His statement was seconded by Representative Ketcham, republican, Michigan. The opinion that such a bill would be amended on the house floor to cut out the equalization fee previously had been expressed by Representative Adkins, republican, Illinois.

The McNary-Haugen bill was approved by the committee last year by a margin of the vote, eleven to ten as a substitute for the crisp measure patterned on a different line. With this in mind, its proponents are anticipating a hard fight in view of the changed sentiments announced today.

ANGLICAN CHURCH REPLIES TO THE ENCYCLIC FROM ROME

Report on the "Malines Conversations" is to Be Made Public Today—It Deals With the Question of a Union of the Roman Catholic and Anglican Churches—Will Set Forth the Action Taken by the Roman Catholic and Anglican Delegates Under the Presidency of the Late Cardinal Mercier—Statement Made by an Anglican Delegate on the Crucial Question of a Papal Primacy.

LONDON, Jan. 18—(AP)—The long awaited report on the famous "Malines conversations," bearing on the question of a union of the Roman Catholic and Anglican churches, will be made public tomorrow, and it is said may create a sensation in Great Britain. The report sets forth the action taken at intervals between 1921 and 1925 by the Roman Catholic and Anglican delegates under the presidency of the late Cardinal Mercier.

The crucial question of a papal primacy brought a striking statement from one of the Anglican delegates, the statement being made "with full approval of his colleagues," to the following effect:

"We wish for unity, and if the necessary preliminary conditions have been duly met we should not shrink from the idea of a papacy acting as a center of unity, but in so saying we have in view not a papacy such as exists in theory and practice among Roman Catholics at the present time, but a conception of unity such as may emerge in the future."

At one conference among the Anglican delegates a document was ready which included the following statement: "The church is a living body under the authority of the bishops, as the successors of the apostles, and from the beginnings of church history a primacy and leadership among all the bishops has been recognized as belonging to the bishop of Rome. Nor can we imagine that any reunion of Christendom could be effected except on the recognition of the primacy of the pope."

In the pamphlet to be published tomorrow the report presented to the Archbishop of Canterbury by the Anglican delegates is given, together with the report drawn up by the Catholic delegate. The Roman Catholic report states that an agreement was reached without much difficulty on the following points: "The social life of Christians is organized around an Episcopal hierarchy. This social and organized life finds expression within the church in the existence and use of the sacraments.

"In the eucharist, the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ are verily given, taken and received by the faithful. By consecretation the bread and wine become the body and the blood of Christ. The sacrifice of the eucharist is the same sacrifice as that of the cross, but offered in a mystical and sacramental manner.

"Communion in both kinds was once the practice of the whole church, but in the west communion came to be limited to one kind for practical purposes, dependent upon circumstances. Consequently in our view, communion in both kinds is not a matter of doctrine, but one of ecclesiastical discipline."

OPPOSITION GROWING TO PUBLIC UTILITIES INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—With the former United States senators—Lenroot of Wisconsin, and Thomas, of Colorado—as their spokesmen, public utilities corporations came out into the open today before the senate interstate commerce committee in opposition to any blanket inquiry into their industry.

Lenroot spoke for the joint committee of the National Utility associations and Thomas appeared on behalf of the Cities Service company. Both challenged the authority of congress to invade a field which they said should be reserved distinctly for state regulatory bodies.

The former Wisconsin senator declared that before the committee reported the Walsh resolution for an investigation by a special committee it should have before it some specific added that in the absence of such specific charges there should not be "any general indictment of the industry."

"The public utilities are not here as guilty culprits seeking to hide the facts," he said. "The public utilities of America are proud of the record they have made. There is no industry in America in which the people have a greater interest."

In cold—rain—snow—always at his post

MORE dangerous to the policeman than the gunman and the gangster is his constant exposure to wet and cold.

While other people are scuttling to shelter, or snug in the shelter of their homes, the policeman has to stand and face the rain, the blizzard, the biting winds of winter.

Yet where do you find such splendid examples of physical fitness as on the police force? A policeman keeps in the pink of condition when other men would be down with rheumatism or the "flu."

How New York's finest treat muscular pain

We made a canvass of the Honor Police of New York City—the men who wear above their badges the colored stripe that tells of courageous and distinguished service—to find out what they use to overcome the effects of exposure.

295 whom we asked said, "We use Sloan's."

Everywhere people whose work exposes them to damp and cold or to muscular strain, swear by Sloan's Liniment. It saves them hours of suffering—days of lost time.

Read this statement from a policeman who has served on the Philadelphia police force for twenty-seven years: "As I have used a considerable quantity of Sloan's Liniment in the last few months and received almost instant relief, I think it my duty for the sake of humanity to recommend it to others. It gives me great pleasure to recommend Sloan's for all pains in the back and legs, as I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather." William R. Christy, Sr., 1933 Master Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

And this from a man whose work means even more exposure—even more muscular strain: "I have been a life-guard for the City of New York for many years. Sometimes after having been out on the beach all day in rainy weather or a damp day, I come home with my body aching all over with muscular rheumatism. But as soon as I apply Sloan's Liniment, the pain goes away. It gives me the quickest relief of any medicine I know. I also find it good for a rub-down after a long swim or a rescue, and I always carry a bottle of Sloan's in my first-aid kit." Walter C. Henyhart, 918 Gravesend Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Sloan's is sure—quick

Sloan's Liniment is scientific. It doesn't just deaden the nerves so that you don't feel the pain. It stirs up the body's own forces to throw off the cause of the trouble. The pain stops because the cause is removed.

If you've got wet or chilled, Sloan's wards off rheumatism, prevents colds and keeps your muscles from getting stiff and sore.

If your muscles ache from overstrain, Sloan's takes out the pain and limbers them up as nothing else can. Never be without it. Get a bottle today and have it on hand for the first emergency. All druggists—35 cents. Use it for:

Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Lame muscles, Stiff neck, Colds and congestions, Sprains and bruises

A company physician who cares for hundreds of workers every year says: "People whose work expose them to strain or to damp and cold usually suffer from a good deal of muscular soreness. We find that Sloan's gives them quick, positive relief."

DANIELSON

EQUAL ASSESSMENTS IS AIM OF CHAMBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON Jan. 18.—This morning officers and directors of the Chamber of Commerce held a meeting in the offices of Attorney Harry E. Back. They talked about sundry propositions and proposals, but outstanding in all that was said was the desire of these representatives of an organization that is really trying to do some worth-while things to interest the people as a whole in the well being of the town of Killingly (not Danielson alone, be it noted).

The meeting went on record as anxious to lend whatever aid it may to manufacturers in meeting such problems as a body like the Chamber of Commerce might help them to solve, and there might be such problems. The meeting concerned itself with revaluations of the properties of the town, with a view to getting equitable assessments for everyone, and over and above all that to produce a grand list that will allow of a mighty slash in the tax rate. This is all important students of economic things and especially considering the production costs, with all its overhead, for manufacturers, is concerned.

Briefly, those charged with the duty of making the Chamber of Commerce function for the benefit of the town of Killingly were at work on that job this morning. Plans and programs were talked over. There were some good suggestions. More will be welcomed, these men said. If there is anywhere in the town of Killingly a person who has an idea that put into practice, will be of benefit to the town the Chamber of Commerce wants to know about it. Constructive suggestions will be welcomed; criticism, also of a helpful nature, likewise will receive the most careful attention. Danielson is bound and possessed that it will step out front, if trying hard, giving honest service and being worthy of success will accomplish that end. The Danielson Chamber of Commerce is a willing organization, b ut it is not omnipotent and welcomes aid and advice from every quarter. Its program for the year contemplates meetings that will interest not only the members but also the general public, which is to be invited in.

Some things for the benefit of the entire town of Killingly were talked over at the meeting that cannot at this time be discussed here without breach of confidence. It may be said, though, that they have to do with the industrial welfare of the town as a whole, as good for East Killingly and Dayville and Goodyear and Attawaugan and Ballouville and Dayville as for Dnielson itself.

WINDHAM BANK FIRST DID BUSINESS IN PARLOR

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON Jan. 18.—This particular item is too good to be hidden away in The Bulletin's "What Do You Know?" column. It has to do with the Windham County National bank, doing business in Danielson these many years, but originally chartered to do business in the town of Brooklyn.

Hunting around for material for more questions for the "What Do You Know?" column this writr happened onto first-hand information about the bank mentioned. It was chartered in 1822, 106 years ago. When the charter came along the bank building where business was to be done at Brooklyn was not ready for occupancy, so some temporary arrangement for banking quarters of necessity had to be made.

It was eventually decided to inaugurate the bank's activities in the parlor of the first treasurer of the institution, Adams White, Mr. White being the grandfather of Sidney W. Bard, treasurer of the Brooklyn Savings bank, of Danielson, and that particular parlor happens to be the same one in which Treasurer Bard and members of his family now sit of an evening and divert themselves as fancy or circumstance dictates.

Harking back a little more than a century one hears that Treasurer White transacted such banking business as came to the institution he represented throughout the day and that when he retired to sleep at night he took along the day's receipts to his bedroom. For protection against anyone who might come to rob him he was solely provided with a long pair of shears, used in his banking business but with no firearms. Nothing untoward ever happened to him or to the bank's funds during the several months this arrangement continued.

Delay in occupying the bank building was largely due to the fact that the safe deposit vault was not completed. Those who have a curiosity about such things may see that vault today by visiting the old bank building now used to house the Brooklyn Public library. The south portion of the present library was the original bank building. The security of the old vault is largely based on the great blocks of stone that constitute its walls. It was difficult a century ago with the primitive devices at hand to handle such great blocks of stone, but the ingenuity of the forefathers solved the matter of setting them in place by erecting a runway from near where the Unitarian church stands on Brooklyn green and rolling them down its graded length to the site of the bank building, sitting at a considerably lower level.

The Windham County National bank, that started in a parlor over in Brooklyn, is now one of the richest, most successful and thoroughly progressive banking institutions in this corner of the state. It is proud of its history and its record of achievement.

Joseph Miller, 77, a native of Plattsburg, N. Y., died today at his home in Plainfield. While he had been ailing for some time, death came suddenly. Mr. Miller leaves his wife and four sons, George, James and Robert of Plainfield, and Joseph of High street, Danielson.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Foster Center Christian church for Mrs. Nancy Munyan, Rev. Gilbert Cutler of North Scituate officiating. During the services, Mrs. Lucinda Cole and Mrs. L. Harris sang Jesus Lover of My Soul, and Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown? Miss Ina Hill was organist. The bearers were Elmer Hopkins, George Tucker, Ralph Nichols and J. Lester Brown. Burial was in the Hopkins Mills memetery. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Officers of Brooklyn grange were installed last evening at the hall of the organization by Miner Ives of South Meriden master of the Connecticut State grange, Mrs. Ives assisting as marshal, with Mrs. Mabel Ennis and Miss Mildred Pike as assistant. Miss Helen Witter was pianist and Mrs. Clara Marlor soloist. About 90 were in attendance. There were visitors from Killingly and from Willimantic. Sidney W. Bard was the retiring master.

The new officers are: Master, Miss Laura A. Pike; overseer, Archie G. Ennis; lecturer, Mrs. Susie G. Williams; steward, Theodore Anderson; assistant steward, William F. House; chaplain Helen M. Polmer; treasurer, Joseph B. Stetson; secretary, Mrs. Addie C. Hyde; gate keeper, Donald House; Ceres, Catherine L. Tinsley; Flora, Louisa Reeves; Pomona, Florence C. Brenn; L. A. Steward, Doris Evans.

Returning here from a meeting of representatives of institutions having membership in the Connecticut Savings Banks' association, Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank says there was a large attendance at the Hartford club in Hartford yesterday. The association took action relative to a blanket bond for Savings banks and also voted in favor of broadcasting over a radio chain a program once in two weeks for a year, the New England states, New York and New Jersey to be covered. This program will be of an hour's length, will be largely made up of musical numbers and will include a short talk each broadcast night on mutual savings banks and the services they render the public.

Mrs. Susie G. Williams, Brooklyn, secretary of Quinebaug Pomona grange, was in putnam today on business connected with the activities of the organization.

Elmer Brindamour, owner of Kum-Along-Inn pavilion, on the west side, was about today in Danielson for the first time in a month. He is now well on the road to recovery from an injury to his left leg a hurt sustained while he was engaged in moving a piano.

J. C. Witter and N. A. Witter were in Bristol, R. I., today on a business trip.

Harry W. Clarke is confined to his home by a painful, but not serious, injury, sustained when he slipped and fell from a load of hay.

Confounding all tradition as to what January weather should be, the temperature ran up to 56 degrees in Danielson this afternoon, and there was the suggestion of early spring about the day.

Last Sunday there was a communion service at the church in Goodyear and a good attendance. Rev. C. A. Down's text was Luke 22:11-12 and the subject treated was Life's Upper Room.

If the taxi servvices here continue cutting prices—as mark the innovation of today—it will be possible for patrons to get a premium by just hopping into a nice machine for a ride about town. Rides today are surely down to a hard-pan cost basis.

Our New Englanders allow that democrats down in congress are not doing "Al" Smith's chances for a nomination any good at all by advocating slashes in the protective duties now in force—but that happens to be what they are doing right now.

Foundations have been set in these mild winter days (free advertisement for New England weather) for an addition 40 feet long for Kum-Along-Inn pavilion on the West Side. Dancers who go there next season will find dance space 160 feet in length and 50 feet in width.

As things are it does not seem too early to tell an expectant world, that circus route managers are negotiating to bring their shows to Danielson next summer—not the greatest show on earth, by any means, but some creditable tented attractions well worthy of the attention of the public.

Killingly will have a goodly representation at Grange hall in Brooklyn Friday when the 13th quarterly meeting of the Poultry division of the Windham County Farmers' association is held there.

Danielson hopes, among other things, that it may have a new theatre this year, and the prospect is not among the unattainable possibilities. And a new hotel?, one hears someone ask. Well, that, too, is a possibility. The borough is up and coming. There is the worth-while chance in both developments for the men with vision—and the necessary cash.

Officers and directors of the Danielson Rod and Gun club have a meeting scheduled for Friday evening of this week.

AN UNWISE PROVISION

There are those who are so determined to push through their own pet scheme concerning any matter, and are so particular to establish ironclad provisions for carrying it out, that they entirely disregard the uncertainties of the future and really back legislation that must be regarded as more unwise than wise.

This is well illustrated in the action of the house naval committee in behalf of more warships. The committee can probably justify its demand for more ships by comparing the strength of our navy with that of other countries, but when it undertakes to say how every detail must be carried out in such construction for the next five or ten years, even to the cost of that construction, and that nothing whatever can stand in the way of the completion of the programme no matter what happens to make such ships unnecessary, it doesn't make a good impression to say the least.

Let it be conceded that the country needs an adequate navy, that we not only need auxiliary ships in greater number but that the question of the replacement of battleships must be kept in mind, but when the attempt is made to cast to the winds the possibility that further international agreements may be made that will make such expenditures unnecessary it cannot fail to be looked upon as a great mistake. The Washington conference was a marked success and there's no telling but what there may be an extension of its agreement.

Whether the naval treaty, or something that replaces it, is made to deal with the international situation after 1932, it would be folly for congress to insist upon the completion of naval construction amounting to hundreds of millions of dollars this year without making it possible for such a plan to be interrupted in case it was deemed unwise or unnecessary. Yet that is what the naval committee would do in taking away the authority which is customarily placed with the president to hold up or modify such construction in case it is found advisable. It will be very surprising if congress follows the lead of the naval committee in that direction.

POLICE DETAIL FOR FIREMEN

Many cities will be interested in the action which has been taken by the superintendent of police in Washington in arranging to assign special motorcycle patrols to the fire engine companies in that city which respond to the most calls for the purpose of immediately arresting the drivers of all vehicles who fail to yield the right of way to the fire apparatus.

This is a step that is calculated to cause vehicle drivers to get a move on and draw up to the curb as they are required to whenever they hear fire apparatus approaching. Many are the instances where stubborn drivers refuse to pay any attention to the demands made by the sirens of the fire companies. They create big hazards to themselves and to the firemen by sticking to their course, to say nothing of impeding the progress of the firemen whose effectiveness depends to a large degree upon the quickness of their response. Some of the drivers even essay to enter into a race with the firemen.

It is perfectly apparent to such drivers that the firemen are too busy in their efforts to make a quick response to pay much attention to their registration numbers or to stop and argue about their arrest. To deal with this situation and to do so promptly the motorcycle police will be assigned, and there ought not to be much difficulty in impressing their duty upon those road hogs who refuse to yield to the fire apparatus.

Another difficulty which is experienced by the firemen, and which calls for equally effective treatment, is that caused by the many auto drivers who start for a fire the minute an alarm is heard and then so clog the streets that the firemen can get busy only with much difficulty and in some instances cannot get the apparatus near enough to be of use. Such instances could be quickly handled by a special detail of motor police, but there ought to be a sufficient willingness on the part of all drivers to give fire apparatus full leeway for a quick run without being forced into it through special mounted police whose services are probably needed elsewhere.

TOLL HIGHWAYS

A few years ago there was the feeling that the toll bridge would be a thing of the past long before this. Some of them have gone within the last few years, but while they have disappeared others have sprung up and it is not improbable that they will increase. The toll bridge of today is recognized as providing a service for the greatly increased highway traffic that cannot be approached in any other way and the users of such a facility are only too glad to meet the expense for the accommodation rendered.

It is not surprising, therefore, that there has been a bill introduced in the New Jersey legislature seeking the right to construct toll highways in that state. The idea is to build and maintain such highways for the motor travel to the shore resorts of that state, whereby through the payment of the stipulated fee it would be possible for motorists to get away from the congested public highways and onto a thoroughfare that would permit of less restricted progress. It would cost the motorist something, but that is to be expected. In these days there is always a willingness to pay for service.

Because such a bill has been introduced does not mean that it will become a law. What may eventually come of it there's no telling. It indicates a demand for it, and apparently a demand for more speed, though there's no assurance of greater safety on such a highway than on any other except that it might be through a reduction in numbers.

It is possible, however, that such a solution, or something similar, will be required to deal with certain phases of the highway problem in congested areas. Railroads acquired their own rights of way and it is possible with the increase in motor transportation of the various kinds that the day will come when the motor vehicles will be restricted to certain lines of travel in accordance with their type. The toll highway may seem undesirable and fanciful but stranger things have happened.

DELAYING TAX LEGISLATION

Endorsement must be given to the action which has been taken in Washington which means the continuance of the revenue bill until the middle of March.

Only as political thunder must be considered the effort to charge the postponement to the relieving of Mr. Mellon of a million in taxes. As the Baltimore Sun (democratic) says, "If the best argument democrats in the house can advance to postponement of enactment of a new revenue bill is that Mr. Mellon is going to make a million dollars out of the delay, they are in a bad way. Few people will be caught by that sort of loose talk." That democratic advice to the democrats has a good ring.

Ordinarily there is a desire for the early enactment of revenue legislation in order to make sure of it. Such would be the case now but for the manner in which the bill which was passed by the house so seriously disregarded the recommendations of the treasury and the administration. While the experts who are in close touch with the situation declare that there is a limit which should not be exceeded when it comes to tax cutting, the house has proceeded to disregard it. Others have even urged them to go farther than they did in tax cutting and ignore the possibility of a deficit. For the senate to proceed now simply means to refuse to take advantage of new facts and figures which will be disclosed by the middle of March. Then it will be possible to more definitely tell where tax cutting should be held. That being the case sanity must be regarded as having guided the action for postponement, and all the claims and charges to the contrary must be judged in accordance therewith. Where they may be good reason for hastening revenue legislation under ordinary circumstances, there is the best of reasons for delaying it for a couple of months at this time.

A HELP TO FORESTRY

What promises to have excellent results is the plan which has been arranged whereby Supervisor Rogers of the Plumas National forest in California begins this week a visit to 11 forestry schools of eastern and midwestern universities for the purpose of presenting to the students in those institutions the opportunities afforded for professional service as foresters and the policies which are carried out in the national forests.

Forestry work is greatly needed. Increased interest is being displayed in the various schools and such aid as can be given through government channels in this respect should be highly beneficial.

It is to those in forestry schools to whom particular appeal should be made by these lectures. In their efforts to get at the fundamentals and to study the practice in established forests it is desirable that there should be an insight into the practice of the government in caring for its large possessions. There is the chance for many to get first hand information right on the ground in their particular locality if they happen to be conveniently located, but through one who is in close touch with the entire situation from the government standpoint an even more valuable idea of the manner of dealing with the various problems will be obtained.

It is through the forestry schools that many states expect to see the day come when a proper value will be attached to the business of growing trees, and so doing it as to properly conserve our timber supply, utilize waste land and come nearer supplying the lumber requirements in those respective states. Connecticut has reason to be interested.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The man on the corner says: Oh, that we might have predicted this wonderful January!

One might suspect that it would be hot enough in Houston in June without a democratic convention.

The confessed murderer of the Michigan girl can expect to be no more popular than young Hickman is in California.

Although Chamberlin came near it last week, midwinter doesn't appear to be the most favorable time for an endurance flight.

The eighth anniversary of the Volstead act may not have passed unnoticed, but there certainly was no nationwide celebration.

Doesn't make much difference where you are, if you haven't seen that missing Smith college girl there's something the matter with your eyesight.

WHAT PRICE LAUGHTER?

The grandfather clock in the smoking room of the Jefferson club chimed six times. Bancroft, who had been lounging dreamily in one of the large leather chairs, looked up with awakened interest. It was time for dinner and he was pleasantly anticipatory.

Looking around for some one to join him, his glance fell upon a dejected figure at the other end of the room. Bancroft raised hsi eyebrows in surprise. What was Carter doing at the club at this hour—and ni such a crestfallen mood? Richard Carter had the reputation of being a devoted husband and no one had ever seen him at the club between the evening hours of 5 and 8.

"Hi, Carter!" boomed Bancroft, as he approached the other. "Eating at the club tonight?" Carter looked up and smiled sheepishly.

"Yep—I'm in disgrace."

"Well—c'mon and eat with me, and let's have the lowdown on the trouble," laughed Bancroft, as he took Carter's arm in friendly comradeship.

"It's really so gosh-darn funny, that only the remembrance of Jane's few words and her face as I last saw it makes me realize what a rotter I was," Carter remarked ruefully, as they sat smoking their after-dinner cigars.

"What was the high crime?" asked Bancroft, vainly endeavoring to conceal his curiosity.

"Murders have been committed for less than that," observed Bancroft grinning.

"You see," Carter went on to explain, "Jane's not having any kids of her own upon whom to expend her maternal instincts, we both decided that we'd have to have some sort of young life around the place. So we bought a collie. He's only 8 months old, and, man!—he's a darb!

"Jane was delighted with him, and I've never seen the girl so full of life as she's been since we bought Buster.

"Well, about a week ago, Jane said, 'Dick, Buster should have a house all his own—a kennel,' she added, as she noted my look of inquiry. 'And I'm going to build it for him! Out in the yard under that big maple is just the ideal spot for it, and, really, Buster should be out of doors all the time!'

"So I decided to let her have her way, and get a line on a carpenter to help her out if she should get stuck.

"Believe me, Bancroft, if we had been building a castle on the river Nile for ourselves, Jane wouldn't have had as much fun as she had building Buster's house. She fitted up a regular workship in the basement, and every morning she'd hurry through with the housework so that she could get down to the basement. She was like a kid with his first toolbox—hammering and sawing and singing away for all she was worth!

"Well, Jane sure gave me the surprise of my life when, after several days, she let me come down to see the progress she'd made. It was something new in kennels, all right! The doggiest affair I ever hope to see. Honestly, I can't begin to tell you all the tricks that were in it.

"Wednesday night it was up to the paint job, which was to be in white with green trimmings to harmonize with our house. Jane planned that it should dry all last night and most of today, and that I should come home early this afternoon to move Buster's new domain out under the maple tree." Carter's lips twitched into a crooked smile.

"I had the dickens of a time getting away this afternoon, but I made up my mind that even a chance to do business shouldn't prevent me from being on deck with Jane and Buster.

"Jane was bubbling over when she met me at the door, and before I had a chance to take off my coat and roll up my sleeves we were down the basement steps to view the finished and gleaming product of Jane's ingenuity and a week's labors. I tell you, Bancroft, I was proud of Jane! So, with the tenderest care, I lifted the kennel and carried it to the door." Carter paused.

"What happened?" asked Bancroft interestedly. "Did you drop it?"

"Nothing so simple," replied Carter dryly. "I tipped and tilted and even took off the door itself, but—the kennel was too big for the doorway!

"Of course, like a clown, I had to see the funny side of the situation, and, still holding the kennel, I leaned against the door frame and roared."

"Of course," laughed Bancroft.

"Of course," echoed Carter. "Poor Jane—well, you see, here I am."—Chicago News.

Sugar and Smoke

By George A. Moore, M. D., Palmer, Mass., Member Gorgas Memorial.

Tremendous increase in the use of tobacco has revived the question "Is the use of tobacco harmful?"

Despite the publication of studies by competent and incompetent observers, the public mind has reached no conclusion; it is bewildered by conflicting reports.

All a smoker need do to justify the habit is to select a report of the entirely harmless effect and the grateful influence of tobacco on one's sensibilities.

All an anti need do, to fortify his opposition, is to read a report which proves the destructive influence on man's mentality, morals and physical being.

One group deplores the habit among men, women and children and ascribes the increase of feebleMindedness and mental lethargy to it. Another points to the widespread use of tobacco and the lack of cases of injury from it. A third group just smokes and takes comfort and worries not at all.

No attempt will be made here to discuss the general subject of tobacco effects. It is too big a subject for one person or a few words.

This paper will discuss the effect of tobacco using on the eyesight—and that in a restricted sense. Is the use of tobacco ever injurious to eyesight. The answer to this question is "Yes." For there is a class which should be very cautious in tobacco using. The persons who compose this class are diabetics and those in a pre-diabetic stage, by which we mean having a higher than normal blood-sugar content.

"Diabetics should avoid the excessive use of tobacco; it is dangerous to their eyesight."

This is a proven fact and is known to ophthamologists. The bad effect of tobacco on sight is called tobacco amblyopia. Amblyopia means dimness of vision and ranges in degree from disturbance to actual blindness. If discovered early, most cases can be cleared by correcting the habit and giving proper remedies.

Others than diabetics may suffer from amblyopia but diabetics are especially susceptible. Diabetics are subject to eyesight trouble separate and apart from any tobacco effects and the two may co-exist in the same eye, but one can even then differentiate the tobacco from the other sight defect.

Thus too much sugar (diabetes) may cause the loss of eyesight; too much tobacco may cause loss of eyesight; and sugar and tobacco together constitute a special eyesight hazard. Diabetics, watch your step in the use of tobacco!

Sir Richard A. S. Paget, who has recently arrived in New York, has come to America to undertake the establishment in the United States of an institute similar to the Royal Institution of London, of which he is a prominent member. A group of prominent Americans has asked him to undertake the work, the plan being to form an organization through which reciprocal relations with the London institution might be maintained. Former Norwich Leaders

In the death of James L. Geer, which occurred Thursday noon at his residence, 35 Park street, Norwich loses one of its oldest and best known citizens.

James Lewis Geer was born at the old Geer homestead in Ledyard, on Nov. 8, 1808, on the farm first occupied by his ancestor, George Geer, who came to this country from Hevitree, near Exeter, England, in 1635. Mr Geer was also descended from several of the prominent early settlers of Norwich, among them Rev. James Fitch Major John Mason and Robert Allyn, from whom Allyn's Point receives its name.

Mr. Geer when a young man taught school in Ledyard, Preston, Groton and Syracuse, N. Y. While living in Groton he boarded with "Mother" Anna Warner Bailey of Revolutionary fame. He came to Norwich in 1835 and since resided here, living on Park street over half a century. He was for some time engaged in cabinet-making and was also a house painter.

In 1859 he formed a partnership with Shubael Gallup in the furniture, crockery and commission business, which they carried on until 1870 on Market street. Since that time he had not been engaged in any active business, although at the time of his death he was president of the Robert Geer Salt Co., of Albany, N. Y., of which his son, Robert Geer, is treasurer.

Mr. Geer was one of the original members of Trinity Episcopal church and was a member of its first board of vestrymen.

(From Norwich Bulletin, Nov. 10, 1896)

Mr. Geer remembered well the September gale in 1815; the sublime meteoric shower of Nov. 13, 1833 and the magnificent aurora borealis of Nov. 14, 1837. He remembered also seeing the tall masts of the Frigates United States and Macedonian and sloop-of-war Hornet of Commodore Decatur's squadron as they lay at anchor in the Thames river near Allyn's Point in 1813-14 until the blockade was removed. He also recalled LaFayette's visit to Norwich on Aug. 21, 1824.

Jumper Uses His Long Heels

If we will but the truth confess
Each some advantage doth possess.
—Jumper the Hare.

Now, you wouldn't think that Jumper the Hare possessed any advantages, would you? There are times when he thinks he hasn't any advantages at all. There are times when he thinks that Old Mother Nature hasn't treated him fairly. Why, even little Shadow the Weasel can kill him, or could if he could catch him. Did you notice that "if"? If Jumper wouldn't lose his head, Shadow never could catch him. You see, Jumper's advantage over others is a pair of long heels.

While Shadow the Weasel and Billy Mink were quarreling in the most silly way as to which of them Jumper the Hare belonged, Jumper the Hare was settling the question. It just happened that Jumper was just back of a little hemlock tree only a few jumps from where Shadow and Billy Mink were spitting and snarling at each other and quarreling. Until he heard them begin to quarrel he hadn't known that they were on his trail. The chances are that had Billy Mink not come along just when he did, Shadow the Weasel would have surprised and killed Jumper. Or if Shadow hadn't been in the way, Billy Mink would have surprised and caught and killed Jumper. Jumper hadn't had the least idea that either of them were around until they began to quarrel.

"This is no place for me," thought Jumper, and wasted no time. He crept out from under that hemlock tree, trying to make no sound. As soon as he thought it was safe to do so, he took to those long heels of his. Now, when Jumper really is in a hurry, he certainly can use those long heels to good advantage. He was in a hurry now. He wanted to get as far as he could from Shadow the Weasel and Billy Mink, and then double the distance. "I hope they'll keep right on quarreling," thought Jumper. "The longer they quarrel, the farther I can get. I wish they'd get to fighting, but they won't. Shadow the Weasel will never let Billy Mink get his teeth in him. He'll never let Billy get near enough for that. Oh, dear, I wish I could jump twice as far as I can. I wonder which one of them will follow me? I'll have to get just as far as I can before they start to follow. Then they may get discouraged and give it up. If they shouldn't"— Jumper didn't finish that thought. He just shivered all over. He knew that of all the hunters in the Green Forest none is more persistent than Shadow the Weasel or than Billy Mink.

So Jumper made the most of his long heels. Away he went, lippertylip, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip. Every once in a while he would make a long leap off to one side an then go on again, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip. And he did a wise thing—a wiser thing that members of his family usually do—he kept to one direction. Members of Jumper's family are very likely to run in a circle. Shadow the Weasel and Billy Mink know all about this and they take advantage of it. They know that, as a rule, if they can only get a hare or a rabbit frightened enough that hare or rabbit is pretty likely to get around back to where it started from, or pretty near that point. So all that is necessary is to cut across the circle or to lie in wait.

"This is no place for me," thought Jumper, and wasted no time.

Jumper the Hare was headed deep into the Green Forest, and he was getting deeper in with every jump. He was heading for a certain place, for a thought had come to him of someone who might help him. So his long heels were taking him there, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip, lipperty-lip, as fast as he could make them go. And how very thankful Jumper was that he had such long heels.

Stories That Recall Others

What Fur?

Jimmy's mother went to the phone and gave the operator the number of a local store. When the connection had been made she said into the phone, "I want the fur department, please."

Jimmy, who was playing on the floor and who is always interested in the fire department, dropped his toys and excitedly rushed to his mother and asked: "Mother is the house on fur?"

"Why, no, son, why do you ask me that?"

"Well, then why are you calling the fur department?"

Didn't Know His Cabbage

A business man has a fondness for cabbage stalks. His indulging wife always leaves the stalks in a conspicuous corner of her work table. Recently, while waiting for the finishing touches to dinner, he strolled into the kitchen for his appetizer. After a survey among the kettles and pans he discovered what he thought to be the coveted morsel. One bite and a hasty exit was made by the husband. On his return to the kitchen he said, "Why didn't you tell me that was soap?"

"Oh, I thought you knew your cabbage," was the quick retort.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Dows and The Huntingtons.

To the Norwich Bulletin.

Mr. Editor: As Norwich was my birthplace, and Lorenzo Dow, I suppose, an ancestor, I have read with much interest the letters published in The Bulletin about the life of Lorenzo Dow. My grand father, Simon Dow, was born August 17, 1793. I do not know his birthplace. I have never been able to find any genealogy of the Dow family. Simon Dow married Almira Johnson, September 16, 1819. (Beverly Dow whom I think held the position of tax collector in Preston in the seventies, was Simon's brother). My mother was Cornelia Dow, born in Manchester, Conn., June 13, 1834, and married to Maxon P. Lewis, of Norwich Conn.

I have in my possession a letter that was written in 1782 by Elizabeth Palmer to her cousin Tirza Dow,—also a letter written in 1836 by Marcia Dow (sister of Simon) to a brother, Ezra Dow,—also a letter written by Johnson Dow (son of Simon Dow), dated April 22, 1855, from Osawatomie, I think 50 miles southwest of Kansas City, telling of the trials and privations which are "too hard to be endured without the certainty of future reward." We certainly owe much to those pioneers who settled the country.

I have the book Mr. Pendleton of Colchester speaks of-"The dealings of God, Man, and the Devil," by Lorenzo Dow, in which he says he was born in Coventry (Tolland county), Conn. I also have the Journal of Peggy Dow, his wife, by Lorenzo Dow. She was born in Granville, Mass., and was brought up by her sister and brother-in-law. I think there was only one child of Lorenzo and Peggy, who died young. Peggy died January 6th, 1820, age 39. I remember hearing my mother say she had seen a clock at Mr. Leighton's (who was a photographer in Norwich for many years. I should say around 1870 to 1885 and perhaps longer) that was like my grandfather's (Simon Dow), and that there were only three of that style made. She never knew what became of grandfather's clock.

My grandfather, I have been told, also made felt hats to send south, as Miss Pendleton says so many farmers in the north did.

Lorenzo Dow preached all over the country and in Europe. He was often called "Crazy Dow." He preached to audiences of four and five thousand people.

I thought some of these facts might interest some of your readers who perhaps are descendants of the Dow family. It seems a coincidence that a Huntington long ago was a relative of the Dows, and that my Grandmother Lewis whose name was Agnes Palmer before marriage, may have been a descendant of the Elizabeth Palmer who wrote the letter to her cousin, Tirza Dow, and now once more a Huntington marries a descendant of the Dow family, a daughter of Cornelia Dow (who married Maxon P. Lewis).

I hope to see other articles relating to the Dow family.

FORMED VERMONT SOCIETY OF EASTERN CONNECTICUT

The Vermont Society of Eastern Connecticut effected permanent organization Wednesday evening at a meeting held at the Wauregan hotel, at which Francis T. Diggins was elected president, William W. Carrigan, vice president, and Hugh C. Laird, secretary and treasurer, with Mrs. H. D. Larrabee, John P. Lyston and James M. Young on the executive committee.

All the officers and members so far are in this city but it is intended that the membership shall include all those eligible in this section of the state from and including New London to the Massachusetts state line. Any former residents of Vermont or those who have attended educational institutions in that state are eligible for membership.

It is intended that the club will arrange for a programme of activities by which it will raise further funds to send to flood sufferers in Vermont.

President Diggins showed a pamphlet with pictures of the devastation by the flood in Vermont and read the following letter of acknowledgment from there:

Dear Madam:

I cannot thank you enough for the nice outing flannel you sent us. It will help keep my kiddies warm this winter. I have four children, Donald 12, Roland 7, Edward 5 and Jane 2. Perhaps if I tell you just how we are left financially you can better understand how much we appreciate the outing.

We had been married 14 years, were paying a lot of insurance and putting the rest, beyond living expenses, into a piano and nice furniture for our home. I was proud of my home before the flood but in 24 hours we were almost beggars. Half of the house went away and what was left wasn't worth saving. We had no provisions and only the clothing on our backs and that was both dirty and torn. We walked in the water and over blackberry bushes and over the hills until we came to a house. The terrible waves and so much water, I never could believe the little river could get so mad. The barn on this farm went, so all that is left is the main part of the house, which was made of brick. Mr. Larrabee can tell you about this place, it is the second house above Bolton Falls, plant No. 1. My husband has worked there a good many years.

We haven't got as many things as we had so we sleep beside the fire, camp style, to keep warm. We have plenty to eat now and if we keep a fire are warm enough. I made four nighties yesterday and the baby says it is warm like a kitty, poor pet.

Thank you a thousand times and may you be rewarded a thousand times for your kindness.

Yours truly,

"PHANTOM STABBER" REPORT ALARMS NORWICH WOMEN; NO TRUTH IN IT

In a statement issued Wednesday vice assisted by Rev. Fr. Mandier. Unas false reports that a "phantom stabber" has been at work in Norwich for the past few days. There is absolutely no truth to any such reports, said Captain Thomas P. Murphy at police headquarters.

Many people, especially women who have heard the false reports that a stabber was at work here, have been considerably upset the past few days and numerous telephone inquiries have been received at police headquarters and at The Bulletin office asking if there was any truth to the reports.

The wildest of rumors were in circulation Tuesday and Wednesday. One report had it that three girls who had been stabbed by the "unknown assailant" were patients at the hospital and that three stitches were necessary to close one of the wounds. Other reports were to the effect that three Norwich Town girls and women, two Taftville girls, a West Side girl and one or two Greeneville girls had been stabbed. Police investigation has branded the reports as absolutely false.

A Bulletin representative visited the home of one of the girls who was reported to have been attacked and stabbed, and learned from the family that the report was not true.

How The Story Grew.

The story apparently started when two young women in the Thamesville neighborhood were startled Saturday night by a man who attempted to approach them. Someone broadcast the story in one of the department stores in the city and it flew from mouth to mouth, losing nothing in the re-telling and new frills were constantly added. Before the night was over, there were numberless people who were certain somebody had been stabbed and was in the hospital.

Sunday morning the police began an investigation of the rumor and Sergeant Myron Morgan was sent to the home of the young woman in Thamesville to make inquiries. He reported "no stabbing," when he returned to headquarters.

By Monday the rumors began to be embellished with more particulars. The size and location of the wound and the number of stitches required to close it were the added details.

By Tuesday night the stabbing had spread to Greeneville and other parts of the city, and by Wednesday afternoon police headquarters was deluged with a flood of telephone inquiries. "Has the stabber been caught?" was the burden of most of the questions that came over the wire, some women declaring that they were afraid to leave the house until they were assured the alleged stabber was in the hands of the police. Late in the afternoon a telephone call came that a man with a big dagger in his hand had been seen in the Mohegan park neighborhood. He was said to have a long, dark beard. Police investigation of this report also showed no foundation for it.

Wednesday night about 9 o'clock several young women on the West Side got a case of "nerves" when they saw a man standing alongside a pole and observed him cross to the other side of the street and follow along in the same direction in which they were going.

One of them telephoned to police headquarters and some time later a man was picked up on West Main street near Fountain street. He admitted he had been looking in windows in the Colt street neighborhood and said this was because he wanted to hear the music that was being played in the house. The girls identified him as the man who had excited their suspicions, but admitted he had said nothing to them.

The girls from Thamesville were also brought to police headquarters to take a look at him. When they said he was not the man who had approached them Saturday night, he was allowed to depart with a warning to keep away from houses where he had no business to be.

NEW LONDON SEEKING TO RECOVER TAX MONEY

The suit of the city of New London against Annie R. Morgan and others, executors of the estate of Elias F. Morgan, of New London, was on trial here Wednesday in the superior court before Judge C. L. Avery and is to be concluded on Friday after the short calendar session.

The city is suing to recover from the Morgan estate about $2,300, which was a rebate in taxes which the city paid to the Mariner's Savings bank after the bank had foreclosed a mortgage on the Morgan property and paid the taxes which were due on it. It is understood that the sum paid was found to include other taxes than what was on the foreclosed property so that the city treasurer made a return of this amount to the bank and the city is now trying to get the money back from the Morgans.

Witnesses who were called Wednesday by Director of Law Thomas E. Troland were E. Frank Morgan, Tax Collector Allen C. Richards, Hibberd Norman Alexander, an accountant, and City Treasurer Herbert G. Huntley.

The defense sets up that it never received notice of these taxes alleged to be due and Attorney Morgan also claims that they were paid to the city so that the city can make no claim that they are due now.

MOTOR VEHICLE REGISTRATION NEARLY 6 PER CENT. GAIN

There were 23,579,002 motor vehicles registered in the United States during 1927. This is according to the figures just released by The B. F. Goodrich Rubber company's statisticians, who have compiled their records from January 1 totals computed by the registrars of each state.

Motor vehicle production for 1927 is estimated at 3,530,000 indicating a heavy replacement business. This figure added to the registration figures for 1926 gives a total of 25,803,643. Since 1927 registration returns show only 23,579,002 motor vehicles in use the difference of 2,224,641 would indicate the number of motor cars scrapped or discarded. Replacements during the year were 9.4 per cent. of the total registration.

New York state still holds first place in number of motor vehicles, but California is running a very close second. New York's percentage of increase was 9.3 while California's registration climbed only 5.5 per cent. On the other hand California possess a motor vehicle for every two inhabitants or an average of two per family, which is figured at 4.6 persons, while New York possesses one car for every 5.2 persons or not quite one car per family.

Taking the registration total and dividing it into the estimated population of the United States shows one car for every 4.9 persons, or approximately one car per family. The 1927 registration total also provides 7.9 motor cars for every square mile of area in the United States.

Gasoline consumed by motor vehicles in 1927 amounted to 9,697,000,000 gallons. 84 per cent. of all the crude rubber imported was used in making tires and accessories for the motor car industry.

In the five New England states the figures are as follows, showing their ranking among the states and the number of cars in 1926 and 1927: Massachusetts, 8th, 826,224-923,312; Connecticut, 23rd, 230,000-300,000; Maine, 36th, 172,020-162,073; Rhode Island, 39th, 110,734-120,012; New Hampshire, 42nd, 88,976-97,387; Vermont, 45th, 74,071-73,265.

MAKES DIAGNOSIS OF CITIES' BUSINESS CONDITIONS

In its monthly diagnosis of business conditions in the state for December, the state chamber of commerce finds that the month was generally better this year than last and the year as a whole was an improvement over a year ago. For Norwich and New London the reports on December are as follows:

Norwich

Secretary Pilcher of the Norwich chamber reported as follows: Thirty-six building permits issued during December, 1927, had a total value of $83,635, which was about $10,000 more than the value of 12 permits issued during December, 1926. The values for the years are: 1927, $668,718; 1926, $445,746. Bank debits last month totaled $9,487,963, a slight decrease from a year ago. Savings deposits on December 31, 1927 totaled $38,318,013; 1926, $39,569,443; 1927, $42,134,453. Gas consumption for December, 1927, was slightly less than December a year ago; electric consumption was also less, but the total for the year was larger than the total for 1926, the four figures being 973,120 K. H., 985,900 K. H., 10,140,140, and 9,524,300 K. H., respectively. The net increase of new telephones during December, 1927, was 127, almost 100 more than a year ago. Although postal receipts, which total $16,500 last month, were $500 less than December, 1926, the total for the year was $2,000 more than the $120,000 for 1926. Hotel business showed an increase. Retail trading activities during December held up well, considering the slackened production in manufacturers. Four large retailers reported an increase of from 10 to 15 per cent in sales volume, while three reported 3 to 20 per cent less than a year ago. Real estate was more active than last December. The market is considered quiet, but on an upward trend. There are practically no store rentals available, and few residence properties are on the market. Insurance is in good demand. There is very little manufacturing space available. A new $100,000 corporation has just been organized to bleach, dye and print cotton cloth and also cotton and rayon cloth. Between 30 and 40 persons will be employed. December production in factories was considered to be about 70 per cent of capacity.

New London

Secretary Garlepy of the New London chamber reported as follows: Retail business during December showed a decided increase over November. A general invitation, sent out to the surrounding country inviting those people to shop in New London during the holidays, was answered by a great many people as the reports from the local stores clearly indicated that this invitation in addition to the regular daily publications produced results. The employment situation here during December was about the same as during November. Gas and electric consumption showed quite an increase in December over the previous month. Postal receipts too were somewhat better. Car loadings in the city also increased during December. Perhaps at this time it would not be amiss to compare 1927 with the proceeding year. The city's population is now estimated at 35,963, an increase of forty percent since 1920. Postal receipts increased $4,244 during the past year over the previous year. A net gain of 169,121 kilowatt hours, 1,028,500 cubic feet gas, 278 electric meters and 182 gas meters is registered for the year. The building situation shows a most encouraging situation. Permits totaling 549 and amounting to $1,801,240 were recorded as against $1,276,815 in 1926, showing a net gain for the year of $524,425. Everything taken together would indicate a very pleasant upward trend for New London.

DECLARES U. S. NEEDS DEFENSE AGAINST ILLITERACY

The Menace of Illiteracy to National Defense, was the subject of an extremely interesting lecture given on Wednesday evening by Mrs. John L. Buell of Litchfield, nationally prominent in the D. A. R., before the round table of the Woman's City club under the auspices of the civics department of the club at the Wauregan hotel. Mrs. Buell, who spoke for about an hour, showed how illiteracy is a menace to the ideals of the founders of the country and also a menace to the country itself.

This country stands out among all the nations as a land of freedom, she said. It is still the land of prosperity, marvelous and unequalled. It is still the land of high standards of living. It is a land of high wages. Why do the foreigners flock to our shores if not for the high wages offered. This country is a land where the status of women is high. A nation rises or falls according to the status of women. It is a land of steady progress where the constitutional government prevails and a land where the origina constitution still prevails. The constitution prevails because it works.

We ought to be careful how we change the foundation stones of the country. It is a nation of enlightened citizenship where most of the people are educated. With this outline, isn't it a nation which is worthy of defense? Yet there are a great many who are attacking it from within and without. It needs defense against illiteracy. This country stands 9th in the scale of education. Connecticut is the only state where illiteracy is on the increase.

The draft figures show that one-quarter of the drafted men in the World war were illiterate. It is time to define what is meant by illiteracy. An illiterate person is any one over 10 years of age who cannot write in any language. No government can endure, which is based on popular franchise when the people are too illiterate to use that franchise properly. No country can endure whose people can neither read nor write.

Illiterate immigrants came flocking to this country before 1924 when the immigration law was adopted. Over one quarter of the population of Connecticut came from foreign lands. Before the World war there were admitted one million immigrants a year. New York city's native stock is only one-fifth of its population. Chicago's native stock is only one fourth of its population.

Foreign stock in Connecticut cities ranges from 50 per cent in Winsted up to 83.7 per cent in Ansonia. In Norwich 69.8 per cent of the population are foreign born. Speaking of illiteracy by nationalities, Mrs. Buell said that of the immigrants in this country the illiteracy figures follow: Jews, 3 per cent; Italian from southern Italy, 34 per cent; Italians from northern Italy, 12 per cent; Germans, 5 per cent; English only 1 per cent; Scandinavians, less than 1 per cent.

Of the population of the country, 51,000,000 are still English. This country is still a little over 51 per cent English. National defense in the subject of illiteracy means the maintenance of the racial makeup of the nation as it was, as it is and as, I hope, it will ever be. This does not mean that other races are not welcome. The present law gives foreign stock its proper place in the immigration quotas.

This immigration policy of ours is for our own best interests. It is high time the descendants of the early settlers of this country should have a square deal in their own house. That is what the present law is doing. Socialism and communism are leading the fight against restriction of immigration. All other people who are working to break down our immigration laws are, consciously or unconsciously, playing into the hands of communists.

The people who are trying to discredit the Pilgrims and the Puritans are not working for the best interests of this country. The Pilgrims and Puritans were not perfect, but they gave us a pretty good country. The problem we have today is to attack illiteracy. Many patriotic organizations are already engaged in this work. Keep the country all American, all English-speaking and all patriotic. Unless we do, the ideals of the founders will not predominate and the republic cannot endure.

At the close of her lecture, Mrs. Buell answered a number of questions relative to illiteracy, means of combatting it, etc.

Divorce, Alimony and Custody

A divorce, custody of three children and alimony in the amount of $15 weekly was awarded Mary Shugrue Moshier of New London from Leonard Moshier of Greenport, L. I., by Judge Christopher L. Avery in the superior court here Wednesday.

They were married March 26, 1913, and intolerable cruelty and habitual intemperance, on which grounds the divorce was granted, were alleged since Jan. 1, 1924.

PLAINFIELD PROS TAKE SCALP OF JIM THORPE'S FAMOUS INDIANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 18—In a sensational finish the Plainfield Pros tonight grasped victory from Jim Thorpe's World Famous Indians by a 45 to 39 score. Four spectacular baskets by Whitey Bernot were the turning point of a hectic struggle. The largest crowd in history saw the struggle.

The first half was full of long shots by the visitors and a succession of ties and one or two points leads and the Indians could be given a slight edge in these first 20 minutes for in the latter part they stepped away to lead by 20 to 22 at the half.

However, Plainfield completely outplayed them in the second half, holding them to three baskets from the floor in this period.

The work of the visitors on long shots in the first half was the most remarkable ever seen in the Community house. Out of 16 baskets scored 12 were from past mid-floor and one of the three was at the foul line. It was with the utmost ease that the Indians let fly the ball to see it drop through without hardly shaking the net. Plainfield could do nothing against this sort of play even though they were doing a job at guarding that would have been called very good in any other. It got so that towards the end of the period the Pros had their defense drawn up on the Indians' foul line, three quarters, the length of the floor. Newkirk the captain, was best at this long-distance shooting, tossing in six neat baskets during the half.

However, in the second half, the inevitable happened and the Indians started missing these long ones while Plainfield fighting doggedly slowly crept up until with nearly three quarters of the period gone they tied the count and went one ahead only to have the Indians again knot things up. With about four minutes to play Madden sank a foul and then threw in a field basket to give Plainfield the edge at 40-37 and never to be headed again.

That it was the most thrilling game of the year was taken for granted by the hundreds that jammed every inch of the hall. It was a pro-Indian crowd, Plainfield having but few supporters. Both sides did their share of the fouling and it seemed that the outbursts towards the referee when he called an Indian for fouling were uncalled-for.

Before the game Chief Long Time Sleep gave an exhibition of an Indian War Dance with tom-tom etc., that was interesting but brief.

In the preliminary the Buddies put it all over the Manchester team, winning 31 to 9.

Next week the Pros play the Boston Whirlwinds at the Community house.

YALE SWIMMERS BREAK THREE NATIONAL RECORDS

MIDDLETOWN, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Yale swimmers broke three national intercollegiate tank records here tonight when they defeated Wesleyan natators, 44 to 18. Captain House, of the Eli team, broke the intercollegiate back-stroke 150-yard record by time of 1 minute, 48 1-5 seconds, bettering the previous mark by 2 1-5 seconds.

A new mark was made in the 800 yard breast stroke relay, four Blue swimmers making the distance in 11 minutes, 24 2-5 seconds; 24 3-5 seconds better than the previous mark set by the Navy.

In a special 1,000 breast stroke relay, the Bulldog swimmers again made a record over the mark formerly set by the Navy when they covered the distance in 13 minutes, 47 7-10 seconds; 44 9-10 seconds quicker than the Middies made it when they set the previous time.

Sanford, of Yale, broke the Wesleyan pool record for the 440-yard swim which he established two years ago

WEST POINT MAKES REPLY TO NAVY STATEMENT

WEST POINT, N. Y., Jan. 18—(AP)—West Point deplores the prolonged newspaper discussion of the Army-Navy athletic controversy and considers that the issue was closed on January 7 when it was definitely decided that no football game between the two institutions would be played in 1928.

The Army's view was made public tonight by Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics, in a statement designed to answer one issued last night by the Naval academy which said the door still was being held open for an Army-Navy game if the Military academy should decide to adopt the eligibility rules which govern Navy athletics.

Declaring that the Navy statement "tends to place upon the Army the entire responsibility for the failure to schedule the next game, and to indicate that the Army eventually may sign the actual contract for 1928," Major Fleming said that the Army was forced to reply in "justice to itself."

Major Fleming's statement follows:

"The Military academy deplores the prolongation of the discussion in the press of the athletic controversy between the two academies. However in justice to the Military academy, the following comment is made in regard to the Navy communication of January 17.

"This dispatch tends to place upon the Army the entire responsibility for failure to schedule the next game and to indicate that the Army may eventually sign the actual contract for 1928

"General Winans in his statement several weeks ago explained at length the Army's situation. A four year contract was signed by the two institutions in 1926 on which one game was played in 1927, and three games remain to be played. This contract, like all preceding contracts, contained no stipulation as to the eligibility requirements.

"The Navy in June, 1927, made an announcement 'adopting and requiring of their opponents the three year varsity competition rule.' The Army has always felt that this announcement made subsequent to the signing of the four-year contract, was incompatible with that contract.

"The Military academy has had no communication with the Naval academy on this question since Admiral Nulton met General Winans at the request of the latter, in Washington, on January 7. The two superintendents announced after their conference that the four year contract was cancelled and that there would be no game in 1928."

JUNIORS AND FACULTY IN BASKETBALL TIE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Jan. 18.—By virtue of their victories last night, the Faculty and Juniors go into a tie for first place in the interclass basketball league at Connecticut Agricultural college, the Seniors and Sophs are deadlocked for second place, while the Frosh and Ag school quintets jointly hold the cellar position.

The Juniors found the Ag school boys easy picking and ran up a 31-5 count in a walkaway contest. The Faculty had to work hard to gain a 13-12 decision over the Freshmen, while the Sophomores had the hardest fight of all in winning from the Seniors by a 28-26 score.

The league standing follows:

Juniors	2	0	1000
Faculty	2	0	1000
Seniors	1	1	500
Sophomores	1	1	500
Freshmen	0	2	000
Ag School	0	2	000

Senior-Sophomore Game

In what was easily the most interesting contest of the evening, the Sophs upset the dope and defeated the supposedly stronger senior quintet 28-26. The lead alternated right up to the closing moments of play, and Pivnick was the big factor in the Soph attack, scoring 12 points alone. Eddy gathered 10 points for the Seniors.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Original Celtics gave Hartford fans a treat in beating the Yankees 29 to 24, Tuesday night. This team generally is conceded as the world's best by any fans before whom they have appeared.

The Y Emps now come forward with the announcement that they will resume playing this week, meeting either the Taftville Whirlwinds or Baltic Maroons.

The Emps will have a different lineup than when they appeared on the court last. They will romp on the floor now with something like the following front: Ogulnick, Hamil and Economous at the forwards with Sussman at center and Diachyshyn and Murphy at guards. The Emps will probably meet the Good Will club of Hartford in the near future.

The Danielson Towners ought to pack them in tonight at Town hall for Sam Miller's Pawtucket Tigers have quite a rep in Rhode Island. The Towners beat them early in the season by a close score.

In the announcement of the Senior Church league schedule yesterday in the Bulletin it should have been included that all games will start at 7 p. m. There are games Friday and Saturday in this loop.

The Taftville Crescents sure got plenty of exercise all-round the other night in the Lawrence Felting game. About the only one connected with Taftville that was forced through the tilt was Les Pingree, official scorer.

When the Crescents have Normandin and Brown at the forwards, Marris at center and Eccleston and Murphy at the guards they present a strong team, there's no doubt about that. And then, in Coleman and Gauthier they have fine reserve material.

The Plainfield Buddies have a tough one tonight in meeting the Danielson Towner's second team tonight at Danielson in the preliminary to the main game. This ought to be a good game between two fast amateur clubs.

Connecticut Aggies play Providence college Saturday at Storrs and Alexander's men, after experiencing a cancellation of their game with Wesleyan last night, ought to be in for another win.

The C. F. C. looks for another win over the Noank Crescents Saturday night. They beat this team here early in the season.

BROWN LEADS TAFTVILLE CRESCENTS IN SCORING

The records of the Taftville Crescents to date shows Aubrey Brown, forward and now only in his first season with the "big fellows," leading the team in scoring with 51 points on 23 field goals and 5 fouls. Mondi Normandin, who teams up with Brown at forward and who is regarded by many as the backbone of the Taftville quintet, is next in scoring with 41 points. This pair makes one of the best set of point throwers in their class in the state and since they have played together opposing guards have not been able to halt them very greatly. Roland Harris, the lanky center, follows Normandin in scoring with 33 points on 16 field goals and 6 fouls and it is his work that is also proving of great help to the locals.

The Crescents now seem well in their stride afte a poor start and no doubt they will do some big things before the season closes. In the Webster A. C. team next week Tuesday at Parish hall they tackle a quintet that appears well able of extending them and this game should be one of the features of the local season.

The Crescents have won 3 games and lost 3 but have outscored their opponents by 215 to 169.

TERRIS AND McLARNIN SIGNED FOR FEBRUARY 27TH

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The lightweight elimination match between Sid Terris, of New York, and Jimmy McLarnin, of Los Angeles, subject of considerable dickering, was closed today for Feb. 24 at Madison Square Garden when McLarnin's manager agreed to a stipulation to make the weight 135 pounds, the class limit.

The Pacific coast boxer previously favored agreement on 137 pounds but the state athletic commission refused to sanction the match on that basis since both men are title aspirants.

The winner is expected to be matched for a championship go with Sammy Mandell.

CHAPMAN BECOMES RICKARD'S RIGHT HAND MAN IN GARDEN MANAGEMENT

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—John M. Chapman, veteran bike racing impresario, today was elevated to the post of vice president and assistant general manager of the Madison Square Garden corporation, placing him next in rank to Tex Rickard in handling the Garden's varied sports activities.

Chapman took charge of affairs tonight simultaneously with the departure of Rickard for Miami, Florida, where the promoter is expected to come to final terms with Gene Tunney on the 1928 heavyweight championship boxing program. Chapman's position is a new one in the Garden organization, designed to give Rickard a first assistant and also furnish an executive head when the promoter is away.

A former bike rider himself, Chapman has been associated with Rickard in various enterprises since they met at Goldfield, Nevada, in 1905. He is best known, however, as promoter of six-day bike racing in New York, as well as Chicago and Detroit. Chapman is the czar of the professional cycling game. He is 49 years old and a native of Rome, Georgia.

Rickard plans to spend four weeks playing golf with Tunney and discussing the heavyweight situation, prior to posting $100,000 February 1 to bind an option on the champion's services for 1928.

Following the fruitless session with the handlers of Heeney and Delaney, Rickard left somewhat perturbed by the tangled state of affairs now dropped into the hands of Chapman.

Although Delaney's manager, Joe Jacobs, agred to terms for a match with Heeney to start the final "elimination" round planned among five heavyweights, the Ansac refused to come to terms. Frankly acknowledging that he "did not want the match," Charley Harvey, manager of Heeney, demanded 33 1-3 per cent of the gate. The request sent Rickard to his train in a "huff."

With Heeney and Delaney temporarily shelved, an attempt will be made tomorrow to match Jack Sharkey, who fought a disappointing draw with the New Zealander Friday night, and Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, for a fifteen round bout at the Garden March 12. Due to injured hands, the Boston tar will be unable to fight before that time.

The fifth entrant in the "do or die" tourney designed as a final means of picking Tunney's first challenger, appeared today to have eliminated himself. Rickard declared that Pualino Uscudun, who leaves New York tomorrow for a match with Quintin Romero, of Chile, in Mexico City, January 29, has been dropped from consideration. The Spaniard also has an engagement with George Godfrey, the current "Black Menace," in Los Angeles in February.

FAVORITES WIN IN WOMEN'S GOLF AT NASSAU

NASSAU, New Providence, Bahamas, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Favorites were easy victors in the first round of match play in the women's championship of the Bahamas golf tournament which started here today. Qualifying rounds were dispensed with.

Ada Mackenzie, Canadian champion, beat Mrs. William Ladd, of New York, 7 and 6.

Marie Jenney, Metropolitan champion in 1926, beat Katherine Christie, of Toronto, 8 and 6.

Rosamond Sherwood beat Mrs. A. C. Forteous, of Portland, Maine, 8 and 6.

LATZO IS NOW IN LIGHT HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Pete Latzo, former world's welterweight champion, who now lives in Margate City, has become a light heavyweight.

Last summer Pete weighed 147 pounds for his title bout with Joe Dundee of Baltimore and lost. Following a workout in the Elks club today, he tipped the scales at 172 pounds. In short, Latzo has skipped the middleweight division with its limit of 160 pounds.

The wonderful air down here and the kind of treatment everybody has given me hasn't done a thing to keep my weight down, Pete said today. I have grown into a full fledged light heavyweight. But that's the prank nature has played on me. I'm going after the light heavyweight crown now.

NAVY BECOMES FIRST TO MAKE GOLF COMPULSORY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Jan. 18.—(AP)—The United States Naval Academy today became the first college of importance in the country, it is believed here, to make golf a compulsory part of its curriculum.

Hereafter midshipmen qualifying at the academy for commissions as officers of the navy must take a course of ten lessons in golf, and must pass the course.

The lessons, three days a week, begin with midshipmen who will be graduated this year. James Roche, widely known golf expert, will be the instructor. For the winter season will be given on an indoor golf course.

New Britain Team Challenges

The New Britain Lions basketball team averaging from 18 to 20 years would like to challenge any team in Norwich or vicinity at the above average. To the present writing the Lions have compiled a wonderful record and hope to keep it up. They have won 9 consecutive games without a loss to mar their record. If there is any team in Norwich or vicinity their manager can arrange a game by writing to Jerome Karbonik, 155 North street, or phone 2624 between 6 and 6:45 o'clock.

TWO FAST GAMES AT DANIELSON TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 16.—A double bill has been provided for the basketball fans at Danielson and in the surrounding territory for this (Thursday) evening. It involves the meeting of the Danielson Towners with Sammy Moore's Pawtucket Tigers, in the "big" game and the clash of the Danielson Seconds, the reserves of the Danielson Towners, with the Plainfield Buddies.

Altogether, this program appears to promise action—and lots of it. The Tigers come out of Rhode Island with a fine record for this season's play. They have been wading through fast teams in their own state and Massachusetts with great abandon and have taken only a few defeats themselves. Danielson anticipates sending them home tonight with the short end of the score, but there is nothing so certain about that.

The Danielson Seconds and Plainfield Buddies should make about the best preliminary game of the winter in Danielson. Both of these teams include fine, fast and clever players and the teams are fairly evenly matched.

THREE OLYMPIC SKI EXPERTS ARE PICKED

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—The American Olympic committee today announced the official selection of a team of three skiing experts to represent the United States in the Olympic winter sports at St. Moritz, Switzerland, next month.

Two of these performers, Rolf Monson, of Springfield, Mass., and Charles N. Proctor, of Dartmouth college, will leave for Europe this Saturday on the liner Arabic. The third, Anders Haugen, of Chicago, former national amateur champion, will sail January 25 on the Degrasse.

Maribel Vinson, of Boston, member of the Olympic figure skating team, was a passenger of the Hamburg, sailing late tonight.

THREE-GAME BIG PIN RECORD IS BROKEN

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Rolling a three-game total of 2,870 here tonight in a regular city league section B match, the Sacred Heart bowling team is claiming the so-called world's five-man bowling record which a team in Peoria, Ill., and the New York A. C. five were discussing last week.

The team comprised Fabian Grabowski, Joe Brisk, Paul Demerski, John Rutkowski and Anthony Bergett and compiled scores of 1,124; 1,52; 1,444. The Sacred Hearts defeated the Leopards team which scored only 2,237 three-games to retain the lead in section B of the city league. Anthony Bergett rolled 258 in each game for a three game individual total of 774.

JUDGES DECISION TO BE ANNOUNCED IN ILLINOIS

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Individual decisions of the judges and referees of all wind up bouts in Illinois hereafter will be made public according to Paul Prehn, chairman of the state athletic commission who announced today that this rule will be formally approved at a meeting Tuesday of the commission.

Heretofore the individual decisions of the judges and referees have not been made public.

Under the new plan the individual decisions will not be announced from the ringside but the verdicts will be given to the newspaper writers covering the match and they will be authorized to announce them in their respective publications.

SPORT SLANTS

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Serious consideration has been given within the last few days to a proposal to shuffle football dates, so that the Army-Notre Dame football game in New York next fall will furnish the Cadets a substitute for the cancelled clash with the Navy on November 24.

Notre Dame's previous schedule commitments, coupled with the fact that the Irish face a long jaunt to the Pacific coast to play Southern California, probably will prevent a shift for the Army's benefit but both Knute Rockne and "Biff" Jones, the rival coaches, are understood to have discussed the idea and expressed mutual enthusiasm for it.

The two teams are slated now to meet at the Yankee stadium on November 10. So far as the Army is concerned it would be a simple matter to defer the contest two weeks to fill the yawning gap in the Cadet schedule. Rockne and Notre Dame, much as they would like to accomodate West Point, may find it impossible to step into the breach. It may be easier for the Hoosiers to do so, however, now that their intersectional fray with U. S. C., at Los Angeles, has been put back a week, to December 8.

Army and Notre Dame have agreed to a 1929 game, if the break between the Cadets and Middies persists it would not be surprising to see the intersectional game occupy the climax date on West Point's schedule next year, at any rate.

The American tennis ranking list for 1927, already agreed upon, will not be disclosed until the annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis association in Chicago, Feb. 11 but there is no doubt of the position of William T. Tilden at the top.

Big Bill will be the No. 1 man for the eighth successive year, thereby equalling the record of the late William A. Larned, but it is a somewhat hollow satisfaction for the tall American, who has been forced to yield the national title to Rene Lacoste for the past two seasons.

There will be keener interest than usual in the rest of the American ranking, Frank Hunter, Tilden's partner in doubles throughout the year, probably will rival Manuel Alonso for the No. 2 position. The best Hunter has ever placed before was fifth and that was in 1923.

"Little Bill" Johnston ,fourth in the 1926 list, may be shoved further down the list by the rush of younger talent toward the top. Or the Californian may not be ranked at all since he figured in so little competition, outside the Davis cup.

It would not be surprising to see the "First Ten" fashioned somewhat along this order:

1. Tilden.
2. Alonso.
3. Hunter.
4. Lott.
5. Hennessey.
6. White.
7. Johnston.
8. Doeg.
9. Van Ryn.
10. Jones.

TUNNEY'S OPPONENT TO BE NAMED ABOUT FEB. 1

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Gene Tunney's first opponent this year will be named in Miami about the first of February, Tex Rickard announced tonight shortly before leaving for the Florida city where the heavyweight champion is visiting.

Rickard made the announcement following a two-hour discussion with the managers of Tom Heeney, New Zealand champion, and Jack Delaney, retired light heavyweight titleholder, in which he attempted unsuccessfully to match the fighters for a fifteen-round bout in Madison Square Garden March 1.

STEVENS HAD REMARKABLE RECORD AT WASHBURN

TOPEKA, Kans., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Marvin Stevens, who is under consideration as head football coach of Yale won letters in five sports at Washburn college here.

Ten letters were awarded Stevens in a three year period ending in 1923, three in football, three in basketball, one in track, two in baseball and one in tennis.

Stevens was captain of the Washburn football team which won the Kansas conference championship in 1920.

He left Washburn in the summer of 1923 to enter Yale. Stevens came to Washburn from Osborne, Kans.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 18—(AP)—W. S. Haddock, chairman of the Olympic hockey committee, emphatically declared tonight that he would contest the action of the American Olympic committee, which today disapproved his recommendation that the Augsburg college hockey team of Minneapolis be sent to St. Moritz, Switzerland as the United States representative in the Olympic winter sports competition.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 18—(AP)—Black Gold, winner of the Kentucky Derby in 1924, fell in front of the judge's stand in a fast finish of the running of the Salome Purse, one mile race, at the fair grounds here today, and had to be killed. The horse suffered a broken foreleg. Jockey Emery was up.

He will be buried tomorrow in Philmont, Columbia county, his native village.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

A new show presents itself at the Broadway theatre today, bringing to the stage and screen a program guaranteed by the management to be one of the best seen here this season. The vaudeville headliner, Norman Stocker and his ten syncopates, come to the Broadway direct from a record-breaking engagement of two years at the Strand Roof, in New York. It is through the courtesy of the National Broadcasting company that Mr Stock is allowed to accept a limited number of vaudeville engagements his being able to appear in Norwich being indeed a stroke of good fortune for local theatregoers. Other acts on the bill include Flo Carlson and company in a delightful song and dance offering. Miss Carlson is a pretty miss with a manner of personality that should win her many friends. Tim and Betty Meyers present their comedy skit "Castles in the Air." Victor Graff possesses a charming voice, together with a choice selection of songs, while Martin and Martin open the program with their acrobatic novelty called "Alles 'Oop."

Fred Thomson appears on the screen in his latest Paramount production, "A Pioneer Scout," a most worthy successor to "Jesse James," his premier effort in big western features. Thomson with his horse, Silver King, has won international fame through his work on the screen and is to be featured very soon in one of the most lavish western productions since "The Covered Wagon."

The show as a whole looks to be very good and capacity audiences are expected by Manager Fink to fill the Broadway the last three days of this week.

Palace Theatre

It was a well satisfied audience that filed out of the Palace theatre last night, "Fashion Madness," the Columbia picture in which Claire Windsor has the stellar role, was the attraction. Judging from the comments of those who had witnessed the showing, this picture will be the topic of conversation for several days.

It is seldom that one finds so much variety in a single feature without any sacrifice to story, consistency or probability. "Fashion Madness" is one of those sane, regular moving narratives which might just as well be a page from life as a work of fiction. It will be shown for the last times today.

A very quaint and delightful short feature, "Toddles," is at the Palace in connection with Fashion Madness. It is a Paramount novelty that was produced by Charles E. Mintz, who was responsible for "The Elegy," "Fantasy," "Frenzy" and "A Short Tail."

The main characters are Baby, who is but 18 months old, and a pup. A few hours of their lives are depicted, and the events that these two mites go through are most amusing and delightful. The day starts with Baby's bath and it ends with his going off to slumberland. What goes on in between will keep you in a steady train of laughter. The direction of these two little characters must have been exceedingly difficult; but see for yourself how successfully it was done.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

When Ed Cartwright of the St. Louis team drove home seven runs in one inning of a game on Sept. 23, 1890, he set a record that never has been equaled in the major league.

It is said that more skating records have been made on the famous Mirror Lake at Lake Placid, N. Y., than at any other place in America.

Willie Hoppe won the 18.2 balkline championship for the first time on March 27, 1908, in New York, defeating George Sutton, 500 to 372. Hoppe averaged 20.83 and had a high run of 99, against an average of 11.33 and a high run of 33 for Sutton. Hoppe held the title about a week and then retired temporarily, returning the championship trophy to the donors.

STEVENS MAY SUCCEED JONES AT YALE

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Marvin Stevens, only 23 years old and one of the shiftiest ball-carriers who ever wore blue jersey on the gridiron apparently is slated to succeed T. A. D. Jones, Yale's head football coach for the past eight years.

Stevens, an assistant backfield coach under Jones for the past four years and generally regarded as Tad's right-hand man, is "acceptable" to Yale's football rulers, according to Louis E. Stoddard, chairman of the 1927 football committee.

The endorsement, coupled with the fact that Jones is understood to favor the selection of his young aide, is regarded by close observers as all but the final word. Definite action on the coaching situation will not be taken until the 1928 committee, to be appointed shortly, takes hold but it is generally believed that agreement already has been reached.

Indications pointing to the selection of Stevens also confirm the impression that all efforts to persuade Jones to keep the gridiron helm for 1928 have failed. However, if Stevens is named new head coach, it is likely Jones, whose home is in New Haven, will act in an advisory capacity.

Stevens, because he had had two previous years of college competition, played only one season on the Yale team but his all-round backfield work on Bill Mallory's famous 1923 outfit made an indelible impression. A Kansas product, Stevens displayed unusual ability as a ball carrier and kicker, figuring largely in the crushing defeats that the Elis administered that year to Princeton and Harvard.

"Memphis Bill" Mallory, Lyle Richeson and Century Milstead were among Stevens' team-mates in 1923. The "Kansas comet" was placed on Walter Camp's second all-American team for the year. Stevens was graduated in 1925, serving as assistant coach during his last two undergraduate years.

ADVICE to the Lovelorn

By Ima Goodjudge

Dear Ima:

I have been keeping company with a young man who is awfully good looking and very well to do. His father is a big steel man or something. I am in love with him and he has asked me to be his bride. Should I accept him?—Minnie.

Ans.—Ask him if he smokes Old Golds. If he says "Yes" you may safely accept him.

Dear Miss Goodjudge:

I am a young woman 27 years old and have been married four years. Last night we had our first quarrel. I sent his suit to the tailor without taking out a package of Old Gold Cigarettes and he threatened to leave me. I need advice.

Ans.—I'll say you need advice. Wives have been divorced in this country for less.

Dear Ima:

I am in love with a man who doesn't smoke. Could I be happy with such a one? Hazel.

Ans.—The chances are all against it. Try to win him over to Old Gold Cigarettes. He will be a different man.

SEA SLED MATES SURPRISE PAUL M. SULLIVAN

When the men at the Sea Sled plant gathered in the large room for lunch Tuesday there was a surprise for Paul Mike Sullivan. It was his last day in the boat-shop. He is a first c'ass cabinet maker, rated one of the best. He also sent two sea sleds off to the boat show in New York, to be held soon. Kid Sherman, featherweight boxer of the fishing village, came with slow walk from the back of the room and said in behalf of his fellow workmen, "I am here to present our cabinet maker Sullivan for his faithful services with the company for four years, this small box." Mr. Sullivan came forward and responded: "Men, this is more than I expected! A thousand thanks!" Tears were in his eyes, "I am sorry to leave such a fine bunch of carpenters!" In the box was a gold wrist watch, with "P. M. S." on it, also the words "From his friends at Sea Sled plant." Then a short entertainment program was carried out. Duncan McDonald did the black bottom, as Elliott Bennett did the whistling, for no piano was in sight. Buck MacGowan, with hand quicker than the eye could follow, pulled a rabbit from a derby hat, also made a hen roll over. The closing stunt was when the painters' trio sang, "We have lost another good fellow, good bye Paul good bye." Three cheers were given for the cabinet maker by 50 strong voices. He is going to work for his uncle, Eugene McDonald, at Groton Long Point, where McDonald's company has a large cottage to build. Then the whistle called them all back to work.

With brooms and shovels, neighbors and children were busy to conquer the blaze, as houses were in danger. Working hard for 30 minutes, they got it under control. No alarm was sent in for the fire fighters but they were told to stand ready to go. Soon however First Assistant Foreman Sam Carson told the smoke eaters to put away their coats and hats for they were not needed.

STOCK PRICES HEAD UPWARD UNDER LEADERSHIP OF PUBLIC UTILITIES

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—(AP)—Stock prices drifted moderately lower in today's market without breaking out of the trading area within which they have been fluctuating the last fortnight. After a quiet opening, the market headed upward under leadership of the public utilities, but turned reactionary again around noon when a "bear" drive developed against the railroad shares. The reaction was held in check, however, by successive lowerings of the call money rate from 4 to 3 3-4 and 3 1-2 per cent., the lowest since November 28. Total sales again fell below 2,000,000 shares.

Despite the drop in call money, considerable uneasiness still was apparent over the credit situation. A firmer undertone was reported in the time money market. Renewal of discussions over the brokers' loan situation, which was again thrown into the limelight by the resolution of Senator La Follette calling upon the federal reserve board to restrict further expansion of loans by member banks for speculative purposes, cast a damper on bullish enthusiasm.

Weekly steel trade reviews were cheerful in character, Iron Age pointing out that the demand for finished steel not only was growing greater in volume, but becoming better balanced. The American Petroleum Institute reported a moderate decline in the daily average of crude oil production last week although some private estimates showed an increase. The few earnings reports which came to hand were in line with expectations.

Selling of the rails is believed to have originated with bearish professionals who acted on the theory that a stale long account existed in several of the leading issues which would be dislodged by the touching off of stop-loss orders. Chesapeake & Ohio, Canadian Pacific, Erie, Gulf, Mobile & Northern, and "SO" common were the hardest hit, net declines ranging from 1 1-2 to 3 points.

U. S. Steel common dropped below 144 to a new low on the current downswing and then rallied to 144 3-4, up 1-4 net. General Motors, which has been acting rather sluggishly since the first of the year, sold down to 131 1-4 and then rallied a point from that level, also showing a small fractional net gain. American Can, American Smelter, General Electric, Montgomery-Ward, Woolworth and other leaders registered losses ranging from fractions to 2 points.

High priced pool specialties again fluctuated erratically. Midland Steel Products preferred broke 13 points to 130 and closed within a fraction of the bottom. U. S. Cast Iron Pipe tumbled 9 1-2 points and rallied 7. Case Threshing dropped 5 and rallied 3. Adams Express scared 8 1-2 points to a new peak at 226. Burroughs Adding Machine rallied 7 points and lost 2.

New peak prices since 1926, or longer, were registered by Abitibi Power, Electric Power & Light, Sun Oil and few others.

Measured by the Associated Press averages, the 20 leading industrial issues closed tonight about 6 1-4 points below the high mark established on the first trading day of the year, and the average of 20 leading rails was about 4 points lower, the day's decline being about a point each case.

Except for a drop of 10 points in Swedish kroner to 26.75 cents and a similar gain in Japanese yen to 46.83 cents, there were no changes of importance in the foreign exchange market. Sterling cables held steady around $4.87 5-8.

Commodity prices were again mixed, a slight advance in cotton being offset by fractional declines in grain futures. Sugar quotations held fairly steady but coffee dropped 10 to 20 points.

HERMAN JOHL INSISTS SCHOOL DOORS OPEN OUTWARD

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 18—Herman Johl, well known manufacturer and resident of Groton, has entered a protest with the board of selectmen because the doors of the schools of the borough open in instead of outward. As soon as Mr. Johl's communication was received by the selectmen, it was forwarded to the board of school visitors. There is a state law, which provides that the entrances of public buildings open from the building, for safe egress in case of fire or panic. It is believed that the remonstrance of Mr. Johl will result in the doors being changed, as the changes, it is understood have been approved by O. S. Fitzsimmons, inspector of the bureau of building construction and maintenance of the state board of education.

PET DOG GETS OWNER INTO A HEAP OF TROUBLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 18—Mrs. Justin McCarthy, of Meridian street, Groton, was arrested this morning by Captain Andrew F. McCarthy, of Groton police, charged with breach of the peace, but was released upon furnishing a surety on her bond of $100 for her presentation in the Groton town court Monday next. The cause of Mrs. McCarthy's arrest was attributed to the conduct of her female dog and the entire row, which resulted in Mrs. Herbert Prouix, Ramsdell street, being struck upon the head by a chair wielded by Mrs. McCarthy, the destruction of several windows, also furnishings in the Prouix home by the latter we . Mrs. McCarthy formerly resided on Ramsdell street and her dog was a frequent visitor at the Prouix home. Recently neighbors complained because of the dog frequenting that neighborhood, and the matter was taken under advisement by Dog Warden Young, who requested Mrs. Prouix to retain possession of the dog if the animal entered her home and to inform him of the dog being detained. Yesterday when the dog entered the Prouix house, Mrs. Prouix had the dog imprisoned in the cellar. Within a short time, Mrs. McCarthy appeared and demanded her dog. Mrs. Prouix told her to communicate with the dog warden. This enraged the caller, who, it is alleged seized a chair and attacked Mrs. Prouix, dealing the latter one or more blows on the head, besides demolishing windows and furniture. Mrs. Prouix made complaint to the authorities and a warrant was given to Capt. McCarthy for the arrest of the McCarthy woman. Dog Warden Young took charge of the dog.

Selaporte, it is claimed, solicited fares on the south side of State street and near the corner of Bank street. He was arrested by Patrolman Albert Iverson, following instructions the officer received from Lieut. James Sullivan to cause the enforcement of the ordinance.

The annual banquet of F. L. Allen Hook and Ladder company will be held at the club house of the company, Richards grove Saturday, the 28th. NEW LONDON'S INSURANCE PLAN PROVES ECONOMICAL

At the city council's two hour meeting Monday evening, an account of which was held over because of lack of space Tuesday, twenty-two applications for permission to alter or erect buildings were presented. Three of them were not granted. One was for building on Hempstead street in which a shoemaker proposes to establish business, another for a brick and hollow tile building at 123 Montauk avenue and another for the alteration by Louis Markow of a building damaged by fire. The applications were held over for investigation. Councilor Murray called attention to the fact that buildings were partially erected before application to construct them was presented to the council. Councilor Twomey said the proposed building on Hempstead street was a disgrace to the street.

The city manager was given authority to purchase a centrifugal pump from a firm in Warren, Mass., at a cost of $300.

The city manager reported on the expense of taking care of the sick and injured employes of the city and showed that the city paid less for a period of years than it would have paid had it carried compensation insurance.

This brought up the question of insurance on city property, the mayor arguing that a survey of the city property should be made and that insurance should be carried to protect the city in the case of fire such as occurred at the Colt street building, where the city sustained a considerable loss.

The city manager was authorized to settle with the insurance company for the loss on that building.

He was also authorized to lease the Miller building on Bank street for a period of a year at a rental of $2700 with the privilege of renewal for a longer term. Alterations and equipment will be required by the city to make the building adapted to school purposes that might cost the city some $3,000 in addition to the rental. The owner of the building is also to make additional improvements to the building. The matter created considerable discussion before the city manager was authorized to proceed.

There was one vote in opposition to giving the city manager the power to act for the city.

On motion of Councilor Chappell it was voted to have an ordinance prepared regulating the prices which taxicabs shall charge.

Councilor Scott introduced an ironclad smoke nuisance ordinance which had its first reading.

The city manager was authorized to get bids for razing the Colt street school building, damaged to the extent of more than 50 per cent. of its value.

Mayor May thanked the members of the council, the fire and police departments and citizens generally for the sympathy they manifested at the funeral of Arthur F. Hodges, drowned by the sinking of the submarine S-4 off Provincetown.

Mrs. Alice Lockhart went to Hartford last night where she officiated as the installing officer of Starlight lodge, No. 25, Shepherds of Bethlehem. Mrs. Lockhart, who is supreme deputy of the Shepherds of Bethlehem and deputy of Starlight lodge, was accompanied by Mrs. Jeanette Keenan, Mrs. George F. Hart, Mrs. Mary Rowley, Mrs. Loretta Morgan, Edward Prevost, and Theodore Ivers.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

Victor McLaglen, whose fame as Captain Flagg in the screen version of "What Price Glory" is sweeping the nation, has turned toreador. Cast as Escamillo in Fox Films production of "Loves of Carmen," directed by Raoul Walsh, McLaglen devoted a month to the study of the art of bull fighting. He went to Mexico City with Director Walsh, where they witnessed several exhibitions of the Spanish sport and studied the customs and personalities of the experts.

Walsh, who also directed McLaglen in "What Price Glory," brought back with him from Mexico Rafael Valverde, well known in Spain and Mexico as a toreador. Valverde gave McLaglen daily lessons in his native art and "Captain Flagg" soon became quite expert. Incidentally, this is the second version of "Carmen" to be made by Walsh. The first had Theda Bara in the star role.

Walsh has made this new edition of "Carmen" a very candid affair. The gypsy cigarette girl will be shown as she was and not the tinsled personality of opera and other screen productions. Dolores Del Rio, who gave Charmaine such reality in "What Price Glory," will play the title role. Others in the cast are Don Alvarado and Ben Bard.

Nearly all the wardrobe and equipment for the new Fox Films edition of "Carmen" has been imported from Spain, where Edwin C. Hill, an agent for the company, has been gathering it for months. The picture opens a four-day run at the Breed theatre Sunday, Jan. 22.

Sloan's Liniment

Those who do the world's hard work were asked how they fought off cold and chill, what they did to relieve sprains, bruises, tired muscles. The universal answer was "Sloan's Liniment."

Cab drivers, mill hands, men from the shipyards, fishermen, policemen, postmen and many others all told the same story, "Sloan's Liniment keeps rheumatism away, keeps us fit."

One old Irish cabby had driven a jaunting car back in Ireland. He had driven a hack in New York. Now he drives a taxi in New York and through these many years he has used Sloan's to keep hmiself in condition.

These enthusiastic mass endorsements will be presented to the public in a huge advertising campaign. Each advertisement shows a striking picture of a worker well known to everyone. With it is a human interest story telling how workers in that industry use Sloan's.

People everywhere will want to use the same remedy that keeps those workers fit. Sloan's is an old product known to millions for years. Now Sloan's will gain millions of new users because these workers are getting behind it.

Lily Theatre, Plainfield.

It is with sincere pride of genuine achievement that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer presents John Gilbert and Greta Garbo in the production of "Love" that appears in the Lily theatre Thursday and Friday this week. They have exerted every effort to make this the greatest picture you ever saw, so do not fail to see it.

Strand Theatre

Bill Hart in his most popular days never put more excitement in a picture than has Leo Maloney in "Two-Gun of the Tumbleweed." Maloney several times demonstrates his deftness with the shooting-irons, and Ford I. Beebe, in adapting the story to the screen, has seen to it that the hero gets into some tight situations and out of them in true Maloney daredevil fashion. The supporting cast includes Peggy Montgomery, Josephine Hill, Fred Dana and others.

"The Laffin' Fool," starring Jack Perrin, is one of the most realistic westerns in which the talented Perrin ever rode a bucking horse. In the supporting cast are Pauline Curley, Will Hayes, Billy Lamar and many other clever actors. Miss Curley plays the role of a helpless girl whose ranch is to be sacrificed under the sheriff's hammer. At exactly the right moment a wandering rider comes into town and the course of things is changed, including the course of true love, which in this instance runs pretty smoothly.

Clara Clemens in "Joan of Arc"

Clara Clemens, daughter of Mark Twain, who will be seen at the Lyceum, New London on Sat., Jan. 21, matinee and night in a dramatization of her father's "Joan of Arc," is well known on the concert stage. Also famed as an elocutionist, she is regarded as one of the finest "readers," as actors use the term, on the American stage. "Learn to sing if you would speak properly," is the motto of Mme. Clemens.

Getting Up Nights
Relieved for W. H. Dunham at 86. A Healthy Bladder Works Daytime Only.
W. H. Dunham, Brownfield, Me., says: "I have suffered with bladder trouble 25 years, being obliged to get up 4 or 5 times nightly. Keller's Lithiated Buchu has relieved that terrible irritation and desire. Wish I had found it years ago. Will talk or write to anyone."
Lithiated Buchu acts on the bladder as epsom salts do on the bowels. Drives out foreign deposits and lessens excessive acidity. This relieves the irritation that causes "Getting up nights." The tablets cost 2c each at all drug stores. Keller Laboratory, Mechanicsburg, Ohio, or locally at George Engler druggist.

POETRY

The Bowling Green—New York

This is a place of memories—
Of Sundays long ago,
And snuffling through the Aquarium,
Disliking fishes so;
Of looking down on State Street from
Our father's office—high
For those low days—the tenth floor front
And watching men go by,
And horsecars that looked oh, so small,
And seeing "L" trains slip
Around the curve, like dragons, and
Of saying some great ship;
And then of being on a ship
And saying, "That's it! See"
The little building just ten floors!
And there is Liberty!"

Then, too, that heirloom memory
Of this same place—as faint
As perfume of pressed heliotrope.
A picture, cameo-quaint,
Of our great-grandsire strolling here
To show his fiancee
The water, greensward, and the doves
On some spring holiday;
And of his stopping at a booth
To buy an ice, and how
She said, "No, Charles, conserve your means.
I am not hungry now.
Remember that our wedding day
Is coming soon, my dear!"

But oh, just see that crowd and we Must take the subway here!
—Violet Alleyn Storey, in The Christian Science Monitor.

The Wayside

There are some quiet ways—
Ay, not a few—
Where the affections grow,
And noble days
Distill a gentle praise
That, as cool dew,
Or aromatic gums
Within a bower,
In after times becomes
A calm, perennial dower.

There wayside bush and briar!
These lend a grace
Flashing a glad assent
To sweet desire.
All their interior choir
The woodlands place
At service to command;
Man need not know,
In such a favored land,
The ways that proud folk go.

Perhaps the day may be,
Dear heart of mine,
When riches press too hear
Outside, and we,
To live unfettered, flee
The great and fine,
And hide our little home
In some deep grove,
Where they alone may come
Who only come for love.
—James Herbert Morse.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Oh, papa, can you tell if Noah had a wife?"

"Certainly; Joan of Arc. Don't ask silly questions."—Detroit News.

Fascinating widow—"You foolish man! What made you think I'd ever marry you?"

Suitor—"Well, you've married other fellows."—Life.

Footpad—Your money or your life!

Victim—It's no go, stranger. My wife's in the same line of business and Christmas time, and she's just finished with me.—Montreal Star.

"Can't get along with your partner, you say. Have you tried the milk of human kindness?"

"Yes, but he's one of those fellows who want the cream of everything."—Boston Transcript.

"Hello, Perkins, where did you get that black eye?"

"Oh, it was only a sweetheart's quarrel."

"Sweetheart's quarrel! Why, your girl didn't give you that, did she?"

"No, it was her other sweetheart!"—Weekly Scotsman.

Stage Manager (dubiously)—"There are so many strong-man acts just now—do you fellows do anything out of the ordinary?"

Strong Man (impressively)—"We wind up our act by opening a sardine tin."—Answers, London.

"How long has your hired man been working for you?" inquired Farmer Brentover.

"About two hours," replied Farmer Fumblegate.

"Why, I thought he had been here longer than that."

"He has. He's been here two months."—Tit Bits.

Widow Smith—What? You charge me a dollar for that loose-leaf notebook? How is it I can get the very same thing at Brown's for 50 cents?

Clerk—I can not say, madam. It may be Mr. Brown has taken a fancy to you. He is a widower, and you being attractive and—yes, one dollar even. Thank you, Mrs. Smith. Call again!—Brooklyn Eagle.

PATRONIZE THESE WELL KNOWN CONCERNS

FORBES & GRENIER WILL GUARANTEE GOOD PLUMBING

This is the time of year when people realize most what good plumbing means to them. When it is cold out of doors and snow storms threaten what is more comforting than to know that your plumbing is standing up and that your heating plant has been installed properly by good plumbers.

Forbes & Grenier of 39 Market street, phone 1363, have always done efficient work and they stand ready now to handle your heating problem or plumbing work.

Before rushing ahead blindly why not consult them about plumbing or heating arrangements for your house or garage. Carefully prepared estimates always mean a saving of dollars in a new house. Careless plans, a mistake in radiation or boiler capacity, means the loss of hundreds of dollars during the lifetime of a new house owner.

A few more dollars spent at the start, the installation of a heating plant of sufficient size to properly heat house, and with no need of forcing of tons of coal as the winters roll by.

This type of service, one which looks ahead to the future savings, is the type specialized in by Forbes & Grenier. Let us handle your problems for you, and rest assured that we will handle them carefully.

BELLE RATHBONE IS AN EXPERT IN PHOTOGRAPHY

Pictures of loved ones are always a thing desired about the house. Do not let your children grow up without having pictures taken of them. Photographs which follow closely the growth of a child are interesting studies of his or her life. Each change is caught permanently by the expert camera-work of Miss Rathbone and her photos have that distinctive clearness which is always desired by the patron.

Where Quality and Service are the Watchword

ROTHMAN-MOPSIK KNOWN LONG AS EXPERT TAILORS

To the many people of Norwich and vicinity who do not like the feel of ready made clothing and would like to enjoy the close and proper fit of tailor made clothes, Rothman and Mopsik of 4 Market street guarantee to make suits that suit.

There is something about the feel of a tailor made suit that makes a man feel more at ease. In the first place his suit has been made for him. In fact his tailor made suit has been "built around him." Starting from the measurements, step by step Rothman and Mopsik bring the finished suit into being. Every characteristic of a man, that is as regards habits of carriage and position of body, are carefully checked by the tailor as the garment is being created. When the suit is finished it is for one man, the man to whom it was fitted, and to whom it belongs.

Perhaps you may have the idea that ready made clothes fit you well enough and you do not care for tailor made. Lack of knowledge on your part may be the only reason for this belief. Perhaps you have never given a tailor a chance to prove his workmanship.

Before buying that next suit or overcoat, or, before you decide on anything in the clothing line, why not come in and see us and let us show you the advantages of a tailor made suit. Let us also prove to you the economical side of this same question.

Besides being expert tailors Rothman and Mopsik are also expert furriers and stand ready at all times to handle and treat or repair garments.

However there is no need to dwell further on this subject and we will not try to do so.

In the future if you need anything in this line done why not allow the Norwich Glass company to handle the proposition for you. We handle everything in glass and guarantee efficient and quick service to our patrons.

Call 2463 and let us eliminate that bad pane.

WHY NOT LET THE NORWICH GLASS CO. HANDLE YOUR GLASS

There is hardly a person in Norwich who at some time or other is not in need of having some broken glass repaired, a mirror resilvered, some glass polishing done, beveling work or cutting handled for them. At 5 Bath street is located the Norwich Glass company, a company which has always stood ready to render instant service in these lines.

Hundreds of dollars of damage may be caused to houses, materials, machinery, or, in fact, to almost any article, through the neglect to repair or replace broken glass which is meant to protect that particular thing.

A broken glass in a house at this season of the year costs money every day it remains in that position. Cold air is bound to enter through the opening and this of course means that extra heat is required to keep things at a livable temperature. A sudden rain or sleet storm may be the means of destruction.

Not only must a glass be broken to be dangerous. A cracked glass in a window may give way some night during a wind storm. If it should also be raining hard at the time much damage may be caused before the broken window is repaired.

UTLEY & JONES EVER A POPULAR PRESCRIPTION STORE

Many houses pride themselves on what their name has come to mean to the public. Utley & Jones of 158 Main street also has this same distinction in the druggist business. Careful preparation of medical supplies, carried on through many years of business in Norwich, has built up for Utley & Jones a name which stands for purity and properly proportioned medical supplies.

Thousands of people who have patronized this drug store in its years of service to the public have built up this reputation for Utley & Jones. Nothing good can ever come of careless service and improper handling of public trust. Realizing this Utley & Jones have always taken particular care in selecting their staff of licensed pharmacists and today a staff as good as may be obtained are with this firm, ready to give that same efficient service that has been a watchword with this company through the years.

Some months ago a change became necessary owing to the growth of our business and in selecting our present location on Main street we feel that we have bettered ourselves. We now have a larger store, thus allowing a better display of the large assortment of medical and surgical supplies and today we can truthfully say that practically any need in the druggist line can be immediately supplied from our store.

In giving efficient and expert service the name of Utley & Jones appearing on anything in the medical line means that that article is of the best obtainable and has been put up by experienced men. We do not expect to do all the business in the medical line but that portion of medical trade which comes to our firm is assured a type of service which is above reproach.

If you have not already been educated to be a patron of this store let us serve you the next time you need anything obtainable in a drug store. We feel certain that you will soon become another of the hundreds of patrons who already have learned to put their medical trust in our hands and have found no occasion to regret their selection of a druggist to supply their wants.

Glasses Contribute to General Health
Defective eyes waste nerve energy in every part of the body, and are often responsible for a general run-down condition. Proper glasses stop this loss of nerve energy and permit its general distribution on throughout the body.

BUREAU DRIVE FOR MEMBERSHIP IS AT CRISIS DAY IN THE CAMPAIGN

Today (Thursday) is an important one for the Merchants bureau of Norwich. The day opens with the final drive for members and closes with the victory dinner and election of officers at the Wauregan hotel at 6:15 p. m. The teams met in the morning at 9:15 at the chamber of commerce offices to complete final arrangements for a "free for all" clean-up on outstanding prospects. The whole day will be devoted to the drive instead of only two and one-half hours in the forenoon, as heretofore. Reports from the captains will be made at the dinner at the Wauregan at 6:15 p. m.

Complete lists of the concerns so far pledged are to be distributed to all campaign workers. The teams will sit around a large table in the chamber of commerce office and review all outstanding prospects. After making their selection, the teams will start out under the direction of Chairman Herbert B. Cary. Several concerns whose allegiance to the Merchants bureau is an assured fact, have not yet been seen and the names therefore have not been recorded. With the report of the teams Wednesday noon, the results obtained were exactly up to schedule—$2,488 in two days. The final goal is at least $3,600.

The officers of the bureau have desired that all persons joining the bureau should understand that they are invited to attend the dinner and election at the Wauregan hotel at 6:15 tonight.

Reservations are to be made by calling 2889 in order that accommodations at the hotel may be arranged.

One of the noticeable features at the team luncheons has been the enthusiastic singing. Secretary Walter H. Pilcher of the chamber of commerce and Earl G. Taggart have alternated in leading the songsters and Lionel (Pete) Ethier has presided at the piano. Edward T. Connelly and Earle E. Styers have been most accommodating in rendering solos and duets. Wednesday noon, several visitors dining at the hotel, remarked that Norwich certainly possessed a strong group of singers.
